HISTORY OF
DELTA KAPPA EPSILON

CHAPTER I

GENERAL CONDITIONS IN 1844

BEFORE taking up the consideration of the history of Δ K E it is worth while to glance at the condition of the college world at the time of her birth, and to consider some of the factors which were influential in shaping her early history. These may aid somewhat in the comprehension of what caused those distinctive characteristics which she early developed, and which differentiated her from her older and already well-established rivals.

The earlier part of the Nineteenth Century was a period of great unrest in the United States, in matters political, social, moral and religious. It was a period of fermentation. Old conditions were passing away. New factors were making themselves felt. The growth of democracy was the most noteworthy change in political affairs. The old aristocratic element, represented by Washington, Hamilton and Adams had given way to the early democracy of Jefferson, and later to the wider democracy of Jackson. Moral change was exemplified by the growing agitation against slavery, the spread of the abolition sentiment and the growth of the Women's Rights movement.

In the religious world the same spirit of unrest was present. The early part of the century saw the wide spread of the Free Thinkers movement, when the ideas so logically set forth in Paine's "Age of Reason" made such inroads upon Calvinistic doctrines, only to be followed by the great religious revival which spread over the whole land, and in turn was followed by the remarkable growth of religious sects, which sprang up everywhere upon the slightest pretexts. The two peculiar religious beliefs, Mormonism and Spiritualism, were crystallized into organizations during this period.

In matters educational we find affairs in a very different state from that to which we have become accustomed. While Harvard and Yale were undoubtedly the leading colleges, there was no sharp dividing line between the large colleges and the small ones. In fact there were no large colleges in the sense in which we understand those terms to-day. Yale and Harvard were both comparatively small institutions, microcosmic representations of those characteristics which have developed into social aristocracy and educational liberalism in the one, and social democracy and educational conservatism in the other.

While there were scarcely even the beginnings of those great state universities which have since developed, the country was well supplied, perhaps oversupplied, with a large number of small colleges, extending from Bowdoin in Maine throughout New England, the middle states and the south, but with comparatively few west of the Alleghanies. These colleges were nearly all strongly sectarian, established for the perpetuation of the tenets of the various denominations, and, while somewhat narrow in their outlook, had generally a cordial respect for the scholastic attainments which each in its own way exemplified. There was little actual intercourse between the students of the various colleges; intercollegiate athletics were unknown, and in the colleges themselves the great contests were for the capture of prizes in Greek, Latin, Mathematics, Oratory and Debate rather than in the Quarter Mile Dash or Putting the Shot. But the modern hurry was conspicuously absent, and students as well as teachers took time to communicate with each other in long, carefully-written letters, in which matters of mutual interest were discussed at length.

One of the characteristics of this first half of the century, was its radical attitude concerning secret organizations, which was reflected in the college as well as in the social world. From early times the Masonic fraternity had been influential in America, numbering among its members many of our best citizens, from Washington down. But in 1826 occurred the kidnapping of William Morgan from Canandaigua, N. Y., when he was preparing to print a book revealing the secrets of the order; he was hurried across the state to Niagara Falls, from which point all trace of him was lost. Though the Masons promptly denied all connection with the deed, great odium was attached to them on account of it. Intense indignation was aroused throughout that section, and later throughout the country. Society was divided into two hostile camps. Thousands of Masons were compelled by public opinion to resign, and about three thousand lodges gave up their charters. Anti-Masonic political candidates were nominated and Anti-Masonic parties organized throughout the country. The fever raged up to nearly the middle of the century, and the opposition to the Masons was extended to include all secret organizations.

In the midst of these exciting times began the growth of the Greek Letter Fraternity, an institution probably the most distinctive of any in the American college world, which has no counterpart outside the continent of North America, and which contributes to American college life a peculiar flavor not to be found elsewhere. Founded in almost every instance upon the loftiest ideals; embracing among its members, at least in theory, only the choicest spirits of the colleges in which its chapters are established; knitting them together by bonds of the closest friendship; through the older and graduate members, keeping a watch and ward over the younger ones at once fraternal and paternal; aiding them by counsel and material help, and ever ready to assist them when starting out upon their careers after graduation; giving to its alumni an increased interest in the whole life of the college because of their interest in the chapter; the Greek Letter Fraternity has become one of the most potent factors in the college life of to-day.

The first fraternity to gain a foothold in our colleges was Φ B K, founded at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va., in 1776. While it was, at the outset, secret in its nature, having an object both social and literary, it has now become purely an honorary fraternity, with high rank in scholarship as the sole qualification for membership. The growth of the real fraternities, which have maintained their distinctive character up to the present time, did not begin until 1825, when K A was founded at Union College. It was organized upon the same general lines as Φ B K, and confined its membership to the upper classes. It seemed to satisfy a want in the college world, and was at once successful.

The next year saw the beginning of the Anti-Masonic movement above described. The wave of opposition which swept over the country was directed not alone against Masonry but against all forms of secret organizations. It was particularly strong in the churches, and of course in the sectarian colleges which were the exponents of those churches. It was opposed in the colleges by the growth of the fraternities. Whether this was brought about by the natural tendency of the student to want what the faculty opposed, or simply because their principles appealed to his ambition and the element of secrecy to his love for the mysterious, it is impossible to say. At any rate the next six years saw the founding of some of the most important of the fraternities, Σ Φ and Δ Φ at Union College in 1827, A Δ Φ at Hamilton in 1832, and Ψ Y at Union in 1833.

The fraternities at once encountered the strongest opposition from the faculties of the various colleges. College presidents fulminated against their iniquities, which the cloak of secrecy was believed to hide. The strictest laws against joining them were passed by the college authorities, and to be detected in their membership was often considered a sufficient ground for expulsion from college. They were accused of all kinds of vice and immorality. It was even said that no man could remain a Christian and a member of a fraternity also.

But "the blood of the martyrs was the seed of the church," and the very opposition of the authorities attracted to them the brightest and most persistent of the undergraduates. The fraternities rapidly grew and extended their influence. Chapters were formed in various colleges, and while there was no intercourse between the fraternities, but often the most bitter rivalry, there gradually grew up a pretty constant communication between the various chapters of each fraternity, coupled with the effort to extend their influence to other colleges which seemed to offer suitable soil for their propagation.

It was in this way that chapters of Α Δ Φ in 1837 and Ψ Υ in 1839 were founded at Yale, where as Junior societies they had attained by 1844 a considerable influence. Dr. Edward Griffin Bartlett, one of the founders of Δ Κ Ε, in Vol. I of the Δ Κ Ε Quarterly, gives a very interesting description of the conditions which prevailed at Yale at that time:

"The spring of 1844 seems a queer old time, as I recall it now. Yale to us was the great seat of learning of the world. Rivalry with Harvard had not been thought of, and in fact we knew too little and heard too rarely of the Cambridge school, to take even a languid interest in its welfare. Boating there was none. Baseball had not been invented. We played football with each other, and not according to Rugby. 'The College Press' had then no existence. The great honors of the college were the commencement appointments, each of graded importance, all allotted among the twenty 'oration men' who led their class in general standing. Scarcely secondary to these were the honors of the great literary societies, the 'Brothers in Unity,' and 'Linonia.' The membership in these societies extended throughout the four years' course, and the rivalry between them was so intense that committees of each went as far as New York to interview probable freshmen, and impress them with the merits of the societies respectively. The most of the upper class men lived in the college dormitories, where the seniors had first choice of rooms, the juniors the second, and so on down to the freshmen. Our bitterest grievance was the iron rule which compelled attendance at five-o'clock-in-the-morning prayer, on which occasion cloak and boots at least were expected to be worn. Our most favored recreation was the 'Beethoven' club with its orchestra and fifty trained voices., But the time was close to the line between the old and the new. Our class of '46 received the last diplomas signed by President Day, and our class instituted the first gymnasium, bringing Sheridan from New York to instruct us for the first few months.

"There were then two so-called Junior societies at Yale, Ψ Υ and Α Δ Φ. Their main object was to associate groups of students high in college standing, skilful in college politics, who should mutually coöperate to increase the share of honors which should fall to each, while another scarcely secondary aim was in secret meeting to enjoy private drill in oratory and composition — preparatory to the exercises of the open literary societies. Their aims were practical, their methods business-like. They claimed, too, to make their elections strictly in consideration of the character, as scholars and gentlemen, of the members of the class from which they were made, and that such elections, therefore, were a tribute to the high scholarship and character of the best men in such class. And, while others might have differed with them as to their application of their avowed rule, it became to be considered in each Sophomore class that the leaders in scholarship and gentlemanly qualities had a right to, and might expect, an election."

Such, then, were the conditions in the college and fraternity world, just before the organization of the new Fraternity, which was soon to take so prominent a part in college life, and to take its position almost from the first as one of the "Big Three," which have ever since been acknowledged leaders among the college fraternities.

CHAPTER II

FOUNDATION AND EARLY HISTORY

ELECTIONS to Ψ Y and Α Δ Φ, the Junior societies at Yale, were made from the Sophomore class in the spring term, and as they were supposedly based upon achievement in scholarship, it was generally easy to predict upon whom these honors should fall. In time it came to be considered that certain leaders of the class were entitled to election, which in their cases became a mere formality. As the college increased in size it became necessary to divide the class into two sections for purposes of the various college exercises, and naturally the members of each of these divisions became intimately associated; naturally, too, a rivalry sprang up between them, which in the class of 1846 was very strongly developed. In each division there was a group of members who felt themselves entitled to the coveted elections into the Junior societies.

When the elections were announced in 1844, however, it was found that most of the men had been taken from one division, while a number of men in the other division whose attainments had been such as had heretofore commanded an election, now found themselves outside the breastworks. "So marked was the partiality with which the selection had been made," said Dr. Bartlett, "so prominent were the instances in which merit had been slighted, as the event in college honors afterwards showed, that elections were rejected by several who had actually received them."

Almost immediately the plan of starting a new Junior society was broached. To whom the credit is to be given is difficult to say, as it seems to have been conceived by several members of the class at about the same time. But to George Foot Chester is undoubtedly to be ascribed the zeal and enthusiasm which carried the plan into execution. And to him also is largely due the wise measures which were adopted at the organization of the new society. A preliminary meeting was held in room 12 of Old South on June 22, 1844, and during the first week in July, a committee of which Horton of Alabama was chairman drew up the written articles under which the new society was organized.

These articles were signed by Wm. W. Atwater, Edward G. Bartlett, Frederick P. Bellinger, Junr., Henry Case, George F. Chester, John B. Conyngham, Thomas I. Franklin, W. Walter Horton, Wm. Boyd Jacobs, Edward V. Kinsley, Chester N. Righter, E. Bacon Shapleigh, Thomas D. Sherwood, A. Everett Stetson, Orson W. Stow. All of them have long since joined the chapter invisible; but the organization which they founded that day has grown to such mighty proportions, has enrolled among its members such a multitude of men who have played an active part in our country's history, that the names of this little group of founders will ever be revered.

The first meeting was indeed historical. Here the name, Δ K E, was definitely adopted, the Greek motto was formulated, the matter of a badge discussed, and a design of one made by Bartlett, showing a diamond-shaped badge, bearing a scroll upon which were the letters Δ K E, and having in each corner a star. This design was handed to the artist Inman, who sketched it in the form which was adopted by the society, adding the word "Yale" beneath the scroll. Meetings afterward were held in a hall at the corner of State and Chapel streets. where the lack of furniture and adornment was at first much in evidence. But perhaps here also plain living induced high thinking, for the literary features of the new society were emphasized from the first.

The allotment of honors to the class of '46 was awaited with some anxiety by this little band, for it was felt that it must receive its share as some justification for its being. But there was more confidence than anxiety manifested, and that confidence was justified by the result. Case, Horton, Kinsley, Righter and Franklin each took an "Oration": Conyngham and Jacobs had "First Colloquies"; Chester took "Second Dispute." Bartlett was leader of "Beethoven" (the first Junior to hold that office), Horton was the foremost of his class in oratory and extempore debate, and every member made a creditable showing in scholarship. The belief of the founders of Δ K E that the scholarship of some of their number had not been properly recognized in the elections to the old Junior societies, seemed to have been justified.

From the beginning the principle of selection which seems everywhere to have characterized Δ K E was the one which the new organization followed. Recognizing the value of genuine scholarship, and emphasizing their desire to promote it, they still felt that scholarship alone was not sufficient; that coupled with it must be that quality of good fellowship, which induced its possessor to struggle to achieve, not that he might occupy some proud position alone, but that he might become more worthy to share in the common joys, to add his little to the common glory. In the words of one of our members, "The ideal of culture, which lies at the very root, and is at once the justification for the existence of the fraternity and the reason of its growth, is this — that it has associated culture with good-fellowship. It has multiplied and intensified the delight of the individual in the things of the spirit, by teaching him to pursue them with his fellows." And so we find that from the first, Δ K E made this the touchstone; not scholarship alone, though this was most desirable, and a creditable amount essential; not good-fellowship alone, for then balance might be lacking; but scholarship and good-fellowship, so combined as to form the well-rounded, cultured, companionable gentleman.

Dr. Bartlett has well described this determining characteristic of the Fraternity in the following words: "The little band of its founders had gathered without definite design on the part of those concerned, simply because mutual attraction had drawn together men of congenial temperament. It was this which proved stronger than the inducements of the Junior societies, which would otherwise have severed us; it was this that, controlling our plans, made Δ K E from its institution somewhat different from the other 'societies' of Yale, and beyond others a 'fraternity.' We builded better than we knew, when we founded the brotherhood to which good-fellowship has ever been a passport not less requisite than learning, where glees have been written as often as essays, and where the candidate most favored was he who combined in the most equal proportions the gentleman, the scholar, and the jolly good-fellow." And thus it has come that the words of the motto adopted at that first meeting, "From the heart forever friends," have grown into the very life of the Fraternity.

CHAPTER III

THE FORMATIVE PERIOD — 1844–1865

YALE was in 1844 the college which most nearly approximated a national institution, drawing its members from all over the land. As the new society grew and flourished it began to attract the attention of kindred spirits in other colleges. Shapleigh, one of the founders of Δ K E, had a friend, John S. H. Fogg, who had grown up with him in the town of Eliot, Maine, and with him had prepared for college in the Academy of their native village. But when Shapleigh entered Yale, Fogg remained in Maine, entering Bowdoin. So when the great event of the founding of a new Junior society at Yale took place, Shapleigh wrote a stirring account of it to his friend, Fogg, who became at once imbued with the spirit of the new movement, and suggested to a circle of his choicest friends the propriety of securing a chapter of the new organization at Bowdoin.

The suggestion met with instant favor, and it was soon arranged that Shapleigh and Bartlett should visit Bowdoin in September, 1844. They drove from Portsmouth, N. H., to Brunswick, Me. The Faculty of Bowdoin, knowing the object of their visit, received them with decided coolness. Prof. Packard, who was Shapleigh's cousin, refused to invite Bartlett to a commencement party which he was giving, so Shapleigh also refused to attend, and the evening was spent in becoming acquainted with the proposed charter members of the new chapter. So pleased were the Yale men with what they learned, that they made all the arrangements for granting a charter to the new organization, modifying the methods which had been used at Yale by selecting the members from the three upper classes instead of from the Junior class alone. The Yale chapter, which had taken the name Φ, at a meeting held October 16, 1844, took favorable action on the application for a charter at Bowdoin, delegated Thomas D. Sherwood to install the new chapter; and on the night of November 6, 1844, the Θ chapter of Bowdoin was formally organized under a charter issued by Φ under date of November 1, 1844, and the members were duly initiated. The fact that the initiation fee was fixed at $1.50 witnesses the simplicity of the times. Thus in the first six months of its existence, Δ K E became an intercollegiate fraternity.

The third chapter of the Fraternity was Z, established at Princeton, September 15, 1845. The staid Calvinism of the New Jersey college was most unfavorable for the growth of a secret fraternity. Faculty opposition was at once aroused, and the next year, after its membership had reached the fatal number twenty-three, the chapter was forced to go. It was again revived six years later, but after a brave but hopeless struggle for five years, the edict of the faculty banished it forever from Princeton. Its sixty-nine members have nearly all passed away, and Princeton, by her own act, has been deprived of the strongest bond which unites the various colleges, and teaches them that even those institutions which are numerically weak, have men worthy to rank with the greatest.

Ξ has hitherto been given third place upon the chapter roll, but the researches of John Clair Minot, the historian of Θ, seem to have proved beyond a reasonable doubt that the date of Ξ's charter, June 25, 1845, was the result of a mistake, and should have been a year later. With the zeal which has always characterized Θ, as soon as she was firmly established at home she became imbued with the missionary spirit, and started to carry the gospel to her nearest neighbor, Waterville, (afterwards Colby), College. She soon found congenial spirits there, and an active correspondence was carried on with the little band in the neighboring college. There, too, faculty opposition was encountered — the faculties of that period had little use for secret fraternities — and a considerable portion of the correspondence is devoted to overcoming Θ's fears lest this opposition might endanger the success of a chapter there.

The Φ chapter, too, was at first opposed to the project, and under date of November 14, 1845, its representative wrote to Θ: "Our branch is of the opinion that it would not be productive of any benefit to the Fraternity, and would prefer it not being put into effect." But such arguments were brought forward by Θ and the petitioners, that Φ reconsidered her decision, and January 7, 1846, wrote authorizing Θ to "found a branch" at Waterville. There were many delays now at Bowdoin, and it was not until May 14 that a favorable vote was given and a committee sent to arrange for the initiation. Meantime the petitioners were becoming restless, as it was known that Ψ Υ was trying to establish a chapter there, so Walter M. Hatch and Josiah H. Drummond both wrote, urging haste on this account. The formal petition for the new chapter is dated June 22, 1846, and on June 25, 1846, Jackson and Fogg of Θ went to Waterville and initiated nine men, the new chapter taking the name Ξ.

The next college to make overtures for a chapter was Amherst. Though it seems that the first suggestion to Φ in this regard came from Θ, yet the Amherst men applied directly to the mother chapter, and met with such a favorable reception that a charter was soon voted her, on October 30, 1846; and Ledoux, one of her applicants, went to New Haven on November 14, where he was initiated in due form and with much ceremony. He was then authorized to return to Amherst and initiate the rest of the applicants, and was given a charter for the Σ chapter dated November 1, 1846. He carried out his mission, and from the beginning the Σ chapter has held a strong and honorable position in the Fraternity.

So rapid was the growth of Δ K E during the first decade of her existence, and so symmetrical was her development in the two sections to which this growth was confined, that there is a temptation to ascribe it to a carefully planned and well worked out system. Yet if we are to rely upon the almost unanimous testimony of her alumni, and especially of those who were most active in promoting this development, it was not the result of any systematic propaganda, but was rather a spontaneous growth. The members of Φ were filled with enthusiasm over their new organization of kindred spirits. It was the great theme of conversation among themselves, and quite naturally they talked and wrote about it to their friends at home, some of whom were students in other colleges. These recognized the value of the new social factor, and were particularly attracted by the principle of combined scholarship and good fellowship upon which its members were chosen. There was an abundance of good material from which to form chapters; no spirit of ultra-conservatism or of college snobbishness hindered the granting of charters; so we find that from the founding of the Fraternity in 1844 to 1854, eighteen charters were granted by Φ.

Yet in spite of this rapid growth, almost the entire development was confined to New England and the South. Only two chapters, Z at Princeton and K at Miami, were outside of these two sections. How did it happen that such rapid progress was made in two sections so remote from each other? We have seen how the growth in New England began. The friendship between one of the Φ men and a man from Bowdoin had started the growth here. In the South a similar cause produced like results.

Yale was at this time more nearly a national college than any other. Her students came from all sections of the country, but especially from among the sons of the wealthy planters of the South did she draw a large number. They were worthy representatives of those chivalrous times. Warm-hearted, enthusiastic, brilliant in oratory and debate, firm in their friendships, skilled in political strategy as well as in scholarship, leaders in every branch of college activity, it was but natural that the new movement should strongly appeal to them. And so we find that Δ K E had a much larger membership from the sons of the South than did either of her rivals. Though but two of her founders, Franklin of Maryland and Horton of Alabama, were from below Mason and Dixon's line, yet one of them, Horton, was the acknowledged leader in college in oratory and extempore debate, and the other took high rank in scholarship; and of the two succeeding classes, thirteen out of thirty-eight members were from the southern states. In the classes from '46 to '62, the ante bellum days of the Fraternity at Yale, Δ K E initiated ninety-three men from the South, more than her rivals, Ψ Y and A Δ Φ, together had taken. Such a large number of southern men did she have, and so influential were they in college affairs, that Δ K E became known as the Southerners' Fraternity. And when the Z chapter was established in Princeton, every one of the twenty-three members who were taken in during the first period of its activity was from the South, while of the forty-six members initiated after the revival of the chapter in 1852, but nine came from the North.

It was natural, then, that these ardent members should become missionaries of the new order in their own homes. And so we find that Hitchcock and Horton and Webster took up actively the work of establishing Δ K E in the best southern institutions. The colleges of the South before the war, because the men who held the reins of government were of the educated aristocracy, were on an entirely different basis from those of the North. Senator Matthew C. Butler of South Carolina, in his article, "Δ K E in the Old South" in the Quarterly (Vol. III, p. 3), from which I quote, gives a most vivid description of the situation:

"In the ante-bellum South, higher education was not left to be provided by private generosity or sectarian piety. In Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Alabama and Mississippi, flourishing seats of liberal learning were maintained by the state, while another, the University of Nashville, had been endowed by North Carolina while Tennessee was yet a part of her territory. Of these institutions the University of Virginia and the College of South Carolina were probably the most pronounced types. The former, founded by Thomas Jefferson, was an assemblage of separate schools, each of which granted its diplomas in the branches pursued; degrees in arts, law and medicine being awarded on production of the required diplomas. There was no president except the chairman, chosen from time to time by the faculty; no faculty except a congress of the heads of the schools; no classes except as each professor arranged them for himself; scant discipline, except the vigorous public opinion of the university community. The University was remote from the capital, and was practically a borough by itself, too exalted to be patronized by the state, too dignified to permit exhibition of pomp by itself. So that, though the dormitory system prevailed; though the open literary societies, the 'Washington' and 'Jefferson,' were the great institutions of the place; though in years the students averaged but little beyond the ordinary collegian, it was essentially a university, and a great part of the attendance was post-graduate. On the other hand, the College of South Carolina was not a university, but a college with four regular undergraduate classes pursuing a fixed curriculum; the students chumming in twos, each pair having a spacious parlor and two chambers. Each undergraduate belonged to one of the two great literary societies, 'Euphradian' and 'Clariosophic,' the offices, oratorships, and Anniversarians' positions in which were the great honors of the college; while the finest halls, not merely in the college, but in the city, were those in which their exercises were held. Situate at the capital of the state, the students attended the debates of the legislature, were versed in discussions of national policy, intelligent advocates of state rights, ardent disciples of Calhoun. The South Carolina legislature assembled yearly in November; the commencement of the college was the first Monday of December. It was the event of the year. The legislature adjourned in honor of the occasion; the commencement procession was graced by the Governor with escort of state and men at arms, the judges of the Supreme Court and the Chancellor in robes of office, the college officials in scholastic garb; and the exercises closed with a brilliant ball. Every effort was made to signify that in the students and graduates were the hope and pride of the state; that the youth there educated were set apart, as it were, to the service of the public. Between the two — less absolute in university policy than the University of Virginia, less favored by paternal patronage than the College of South Carolina — were the other institutions named, tending toward the former, passing from, rather than through, the stage at which the latter had stopped.

To these state institutions did Δ K E give special attention, and proceeded in a way once enterprising and conservative. April 25, 1846, it was Resolved, No one present opposing, that ———— (about to visit Columbia, S. C.) be requested to judge whether the prospects were favorable for establishing a chapter of the Δ K E Society at the College of South Carolina.

And for six years was that college the frequent subject of correspondence, visitation and report before the Δ received her charter. In April, 1847, the Γ was placed at the University of Nashville under the supervision of Henry Hitchcock, of Φ, who by two years' attendance at that institution had become intimately acquainted with the students, from whom he selected the charter members. At the University of Alabama the investigation and negotiations were conducted with equal thoroughness. William Walter Horton, of Huntsville, Ala., one of our founders, had early urged consideration of that institution. Later, Cyprian George Webster, of Mobile, in his time the most influential of active Δ K E's, investigated the status, and by correspondence and a visit, satisfied himself that a chapter should be placed there. In April, 1847, a band of youth, chosen under Webster's direction, applied for a charter, and in June following the Ψ of Δ K E was formally recognized. From that date forward there was left little for Φ to do in extending the Fraternity in the South. Early in 1848, and repeatedly afterwards, the parent chapter acknowledged the zeal of the Ψ, in preparing the way at the College of South Carolina, and was soon under equal obligation to the same chapter for its efforts in the University of Mississippi and North Carolina. As to these, efforts were crowned with success, and Δ K E's long indulged hope realized in the spring of 1851.

April 12, 1851 (Φ to "branches"): "We congratulate our brethren of the chapters and call on them to unite with us in welcoming to our constellation two new and brilliant stars; B, at the University of North Carolina, and X, at the University of Mississippi."

While a similar message, of date May 10th, 1851, announced the establishment of Δ at the College of South Carolina. There was now left but one great Southern institution for Δ K E to enter, and in the autumn of 1851 the B, scarce six months old, undertook the preliminaries of establishing a chapter at the University of Virginia. As a result, in October, 1852, a petition was sent from that University signed by a picked body of students and granted in November, Φ's greeting to the new chapter saying with cordial frankness:

"'It has long been our desire to establish a chapter in your University. From its high position as a literary institution, we regard it as an admirable location for a branch of our fraternity.' This closed the planned campaign in the South."

The two great fraternities which confronted Δ K E at Yale had the advantage of several years of growth. As we have seen, A Δ Φ was founded in 1832 and Ψ Y in 1833; the former had established her chapter at Yale in 1837, and the latter in 1839; but while A Δ Φ had eleven and Ψ Y ten chapters in 1844, neither of them had ventured out of the eastern territory, except that in 1835 A Δ Φ had planted a chapter at Miami, and in 1841 at the Western Reserve, both of which colleges were then considered "in the west." Neither of them had ventured into the South, and so the rapid growth of Δ K E in that section was not opposed by either of her Yale rivals. It was not until 1852 that she entered western territory by planting the K Chapter at Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. During the years in which she had grown so rapidly in the South, she had also been strengthening her hold upon New England by founding the Y chapter at Brown University, July 25, 1850, and the A chapter at Harvard University, October 15, 1851. The latter chapter differed from all the other chapters of the Fraternity, in the fact that at Harvard it was a Sophomore society, and while fraternity lines were very tightly drawn in other colleges, it was possible for Harvard men to join Δ K E in the Sophomore year, and A Δ Φ, which was a Junior organization, in the Junior year. This fact has caused considerable conflict of claims between the two fraternities as to Harvard men who have since achieved fame, many of them being members of both Δ K E and A Δ Φ, and maintaining their allegiance to each fraternity. The most noteworthy example of this double membership is that of Theodore Roosevelt. There can be no doubt, however, that in those early days the members of A maintained as strong an interest in the Fraternity as did the members of any other chapter. A letter from Edward S. Rand, Jr., of A, to Thomas T. Filmer, of B Φ, dated October 19, 1857, expresses the pleasure with which he always receives a letter from "a brother in Δ K," congratulates him upon his chapter's having recently acquired a new hall, and then goes at great length into a description of A's initiation. There can be no doubt of its thoroughness, and we know that men who have passed through the ordeal could never have forgotten their entrance into the Fraternity. His conclusion is "those initiations were probably the most perfect ever conducted at Harvard."

In the same year in which the K chapter was established, three others, Δ at South Carolina College, Λ at Kenyon College, and Ω at Oakland College, Oakland, Miss., were established, all prior to H at the University of Virginia, whose charter was dated November 26, 1852.

During all this time though various chapters were active in forming new organizations, Φ retained the right of granting or refusing charters, though this right was exercised only after consultation with the other "branches." The Fraternity, however, had not remained all these years without a meeting of delegates from the chapters to consult upon measures which were of common interest. Only two years after the Fraternity was organized and while the only chapters outside of Yale were Θ, Ξ, and Σ, the Φ chapter passed a resolution, November 14, 1846, as follows:

> Resolved, that we do consider it expedient to hold a general convention of the fraternities in New Haven, on or before the 25th of December next, for the purpose of promoting the more intimate acquaintance between the members of different chapters and to consult upon other interests.

In response to invitations sent out pursuant to this resolution delegates from the other three chapters met in New Haven with the entire Φ chapter on December 23, 1846, the last day of the autumn session at Yale. This was the first Δ K E convention, so small and of apparently so little importance that no record of its proceeding is available; yet it was the beginning of that great organization which proved a source of strength to the Fraternity for many years. What questions were discussed, what measures were devised for the promotion of the "several interests" of the various chapters, we cannot tell; but apparently the confidence which the other chapters reposed in the wisdom of Φ was great, for it was not until six years later, and until after the Fraternity had spread throughout the South and had planted two chapters in the West, that the second convention was called.

During these years Φ remained supreme, and under the leadership of men like Henry Hitchcock, Theodore Winthrop, Charlton T. Lewis, Stewart L. Woodford, Randall L. Gibson, Wayne MacVeagh, and many others, was attaining a position of great prominence, not only in the college but throughout the Fraternity. This was the period of the letter writers, and the vaults of such old chapters as Φ, Θ, and Σ all witness to the zeal with which they wrote; while all this work was done with the pen, it was not considered a hardship by any of them to write a closely written letter of several pages upon any subject of common interest. Nor indeed was the exchange of correspondence between the various chapters confined to letters. Every chapter had its literary programme, and the chapter meeting was by no means a thing to be passed over lightly. Subjects of national and legal interest were warmly debated; poems were read; essays upon the most abstruse subjects were written; books were reviewed and criticised; and it was the common practice when a production of special interest was brought before such a meeting, to transcribe the document and send copies of it to Φ and to such of the other chapters as were particularly interested. The letters of the alumni and the records of the various chapters are full of instances of such activity. Perhaps this was characteristic of the ancient idea of education, but there could be no question that it produced brilliant results among the speakers and writers who were developed by the practice and criticism which they received in Δ K E. In fact, to such an extent was this fraternity drill carried in all of the great college fraternities that one of our alumni records the fact that a man's fraternity connection could easily be determined by the gestures, modulations and intonations which he used. Each of the fraternities had developed a style of its own, and so strong were those characteristics that they could be easily recognized by those who were acquainted with them.

There was also in each college in which our chapters were established a remarkable esprit de corps in the chapter. The good-fellowship of scholarship was fully recognized, and each man seemed to be striving not to promote his own advancement, but to make himself more worthy to wear the badge of the Fraternity. In almost no case was the spirit of the faculty favorable to fraternity life. Old prejudices died hard, and the belief which had so long prevailed, that secrecy was a cover for sin, could not easily be displaced. Everywhere the chapters met with strong faculty opposition, and in many cases hostile legislation was their portion. Even if the zeal to do good had not been present, the necessity for keeping their reputation unspotted so as to give no opportunity for action on this account, would have been sufficient to insure a high standard in the chapters. There can be no question that the general standard of "Greeks" was higher than that of "barbarians," the principle of selection upon which men apparently the best in the classes were chosen for fraternity membership, the constant rivalry between the various fraternities, and the necessity for a high standard of living in order to ward off faculty opposition, could bring no other result. The struggle to maintain their position in the face of such opposition resulted in the survival of the fittest, and the records show that Δ K E survived and took her stand in the van.

The question of holding a convention was often brought up in the correspondence between the chapters, but it was not until the Θ chapter, in a letter written by Jas. R. Osgood, Θ '54, urged Φ to call a convention to be held at Brunswick, Maine, during Bowdoin's semi-centennial commencement, September 3–6, 1852, that any positive action was taken. The convention met pursuant to call and was probably swallowed by the greater festivities of the semi-centennial; at any rate there are no written records to show what was accomplished at that time; but certainly the work for which it was called was accomplished, and the convention adjourned after passing a resolution to meet with Φ the following summer. "Φ made elaborate preparations for this event, again doomed to be appended to a 'Commencement,'" says Chas. H. Beckett, in his account of "Our Convention Development" (Quarterly, Vol. II, p. 12). "The following notice was forwarded to all the chapters and published in prominent newspapers throughout the country:

A convention of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity will be held at the Phi (Parent) Chapter in Yale College, New Haven, Conn., on Tuesday, July 26, 1853. An oration will be delivered by Wm. H. Richards, Esq., of New York City, and a poem pronounced by Charlton T. Lewis of Westchester, Pa.

"Accordingly the Third Convention was called on the morning of the 26th of July, 1853. The chapters were represented by thirty-nine delegates besides a large body of active and graduate members from the Parent Chapter, from the class of '47 down to the then active members, representing Φ, Θ, Υ, Z, Σ, A and Λ. The day passed in the conducting of fraternity business and with great enthusiasm. From the correspondence — all faded and musty now! — of one of the delegates, we may catch a glimpse of what was going on, . . . 'it was proposed to establish an annual prize of from $50 to $100, to be awarded to the best writer on any subject selected by a committee, all the essays and poems handed in, are to be submitted to the decision of another committee, . . . thus the door of our intellectual Gymnasium will be thrown open to the members of all the chapters, active and graduate, and by this means also we hope, that in time there may be collected a permanent body of Δ K E literature.' In the evening the delegates were neither disappointed in the oration by Mr. Richards, Φ '50, nor the poem by Charlton T. Lewis (who also, by the way, delivered the poem at the thirtieth anniversary of his now famous class, at the last Yale Commencement), nor with the banquet that awaited them at the conclusion of their public literary exercises. Evidently, convention organization was here permanently established, now for the first time we confide in complete data; and this also appears from the circumstance that a committee was ordered to publish the oration and poem."

The Fourth Convention was held at Washington, D. C., January 3, 1855, under the auspices of Φ, Z of Princeton, and H of Virginia, and was even more successful than the third, both in attendance, the character of the work accomplished, and the brilliancy of its public exercises. No convention was held for many years without public exercises, at which an oration was delivered by some eminent member of the Fraternity, and a poem read. For more than forty years this practice was continued, and there have been many notable productions which first saw light at these gatherings.

The Washington convention was more business-like and entered with greater activity into a consideration of the needs of the Fraternity than any which had preceded it. The organization of the convention, its exact status and authority and the means for calling it together were accurately determined. The obligations of each chapter to the Fraternity and their individual responsibility were fixed, and a method of financial organization of the Fraternity was enacted. One of the subjects of discussion was the establishment of a fraternity magazine. The convention minutes record "Mr. Whitfield (Ψ) according to instructions from Ψ chapter, presented the following business for the consideration of the convention, (1) the propriety of erecting a monument to Cyprian George Webster, the author of our constitution; (2) the propriety of presenting to the Building Committee of the Washington National Monument Association a block of marble bearing the Greek character representative of our various chapters, and such other of our devices as may be deemed proper, (3) an inquiry relative to the publication of the Δ K E magazine." None of these ideas appear to have been carried out. Cyprian George Webster, to whom Δ K E owes the constitution under which she made such progress for many years, remains with no memorial in stone to his name. No block of marble bearing the name of the Fraternity and the chapters was placed in the Washington monument; and though the idea of issuing a fraternity magazine was broached by Σ as early as 1847 and was repeatedly urged by other chapters in correspondence and in convention, it was not until January, 1883, after the organization of the Δ K E council, that our fraternity magazine, the Δ K E Quarterly, appeared.

Meantime three strong chapters had been added to the fraternity. At Dartmouth, July 14, 1853, the Π chapter was instituted. In 1854 I at Kentucky Military Institute, and A A (formerly called A Prime) at Middlebury College, were duly chartered. Between the fourth and fifth conventions the O chapter was established at the University of Michigan, E at Williams College, and P at Lafayette College.

The account of the next two conventions is again taken from Bro. Beckett's article:

"It was arranged to hold the Fifth Convention with H, at Charlottesville, Va., January 2d, 1856, but during the year 1855, the H ignoring the wisdom of Talleyrand, expressed a desire that the Fifth Convention also be held at Washington, owing to the fact that so large and enthusiastic a body of her alumni were then resident in that city. A spirited discussion took place, but the matter was finally left with H,— she taking all responsibility and management of the affair, and we may attribute to this sudden and somewhat arbitrary change, the fact that so few chapters appeared at this convention, which was called, January 2d, 1856, in the parlors of the Kirkwood Hotel. Four chapters only were represented, Φ by one delegate, Z by one, B (North Carolina) by one and H by seven delegates,— ten all told; but the convention was graced and honored by a body of interested and distinguished alumni. The work of the previous year, as to convention and finance, was somewhat modified, an important message from the Y was read; and our increasing numbers by this time demanded the attention of the Fraternity, as one of the most important objects of legislation. Our second Catalogue, then just published by Φ, was inspected, approved and provision made for its future publication; this also, as to the collection and publication of our songs; which foresight furnished us with the germ of our present song-book, of which every Δ K E may be justly proud, and undoubtedly preserved from oblivion those glorious southern songs — in many cases the only mementos left us of our inactive Chapters. The banquet took place at Gautier's, Pennsylvania Avenue, and there were many invited guests. Beverley R. Wellford, Jr., Judge of the Seventh Judicial Circuit of Virginia, Z '47, was the orator; Jno. R. Thompson, since deceased, of H, the poet; their productions were afterwards published by the H.

Y — having now become one of the leading chapters — sent a message to Washington, as previously mentioned, in which she requested the honor of holding the next convention. The Fraternity accepted her courteous invitation and the Sixth Convention was called at Providence, R. I., September 3rd and 4th, 1857, and here was inaugurated a conservative policy that continues to this day, and which has not only since characterized our Order, but also in its evolution distinguished this conference as "tumultuous" in our annals. This Convention had also external obstacles to meet. The high-handed aspect of college faculties, during this period, is worthy of notice. With the gloomy brows of Round-heads, they had fulminated their anathemas against "secret societies" in general and Δ K E in particular. At Princeton, Madison University, Harvard, and the University of Alabama,— at all of which colleges Δ K E was in the ascendency — we were brought face to face with this Cerberus. But it was the fault of the times, and we may say in commendam of the faculties of 1883, that the interval that has elapsed since the troubles of 1857, in most colleges, is infinitely longer than the period that prevailed between the faculties of 1857 and the liberalism of Cotton Mather.

As to the public exercises on this occasion, we are indebted to the newspaper files of that date, and chiefly to Mr. Wall, Υ '85. The (Providence) Daily Journal of Sept. 5, 1857, says:

"The literary festivities of Commencement week closed with the Anniversary of the Delta Kappa Epsilon Fraternity. At 3 o'clock P. M. a procession was formed upon the college grounds, which, attended by the band, marched to Dr. Hall's church, where the literary exercises were held."

The members of the Υ had sent special invitations to their friends and acquaintances in Providence and elsewhere, and formal invitations to be present at the public exercises had also been forwarded to various secret societies. The Α Δ Φ, Ψ Υ, Ζ Ψ and Θ Δ Χ fraternities courteously accepted our invitation and sent delegations. Judge E. T. Luce, Θ '56, presided; Rev. E. W. Maxey, Jr., Υ '53, opened the service with a prayer, which was followed by an oration delivered by the Rev. Edward Sumner Atwood, whose name stands first upon the roll of our honored brothers of Υ, as one of the founders and first active members of that Chapter. His subject was "Self Knowledge and its Deductions the Need of the Time," and was published at length in the morning papers. A poem was read by the Rev. Edwin P. Parker, Θ '56, whose magnificent oration — one of the gems of our literature — delivered before the Thirty-sixth Convention held with Α Χ, in 1880, many of our alumni still remember with pleasure. Of the banquet The Providence Daily Tribune of Sept. 5th, 1857, says:

"The annual supper of the Fraternity took place at the City Hotel. Of the proceedings we know by actual sight or hearing nothing, but Invisible Green assures us that there was much eating and drinking, much mirth and good fellowship, that toasts were drunk and speeches made and songs sung. He actually avers indeed that he could distinguish the following words sung to the tune of 'America':

"'Hail to our Brother-hood!
Bright is our Brotherhood!
Noble its aim!
Eyes beaming earnestly,
Hearts linked in unity,
And immortality
Guarding its name! —' and that, at last, far into the 'wee sma' hours ayont the twal,' the Brethren separated at peace with themselves and with all the world, much gratified with the success of this their tenth annual festival."

And with the best of the old songs here came the grandest of new ones, an ode, written for the occasion by Joseph H. Gilmore, Υ '58, and now Professor at Rochester University, N. Y.,— which has been fortunately preserved to us in our Song Book."

A long roll of chapters had been added between 1856 and 1858, Τ at Hamilton College, Μ at Madison University (Colgate University since May 16, 1890), Ν at the College of the City of New York, Β Φ at the University of Rochester, Θ X at Union College and K Ψ at Cumberland University brought the number of chapters up to twenty-eight.

Even before this time the rumblings of the approach of the Civil War were heard in the fraternities. In H's minutes of February 11, 1854, the question "Has a state the right to secede peaceably?" was discussed and decided in the negative, showing that the issues which were attracting public attention received due consideration in the Fraternity. From this time on we find indications in the records of the various chapters that the question of secession was frequently discussed.

The next convention, which was held at Bowdoin with the Θ chapter, August 3, 4 and 5, 1858, marks a change in the nomenclature of the conventions which has been a source of considerable confusion in our records. Though it was the seventh convention which had assembled, the fact that it was held in the thirteenth year after the foundation of the Fraternity caused it to be called the Thirteenth Convention, and those held since then have been numbered consecutively from thirteen. Thirteen chapters also were represented when the convention was called to order, and the mystic number seems to have played quite a part in the business of that year. Several delegates representing other chapters, however, arrived during the night and the next day. Much business of fraternity importance was considered; various constitutional amendments were proposed, a graduate pin in the form of a scroll was designed, the beautiful Δ K E march which had been written by Alfred H. Pease, Λ '59, was ordered published, and for the first time we find that the troubles of the A chapter at Harvard received the attention of the law-making body of the Fraternity, a subject with which many conventions thereafter were called upon to deal. The public exercises were held at the Congregational Church, and the orator of the occasion was Anson Burlingame, an honorary member of Σ, then a member of Congress, afterwards Ambassador to China, and the author of the famous treaty which bears his name. That year saw the establishment of two chapters, the A Δ at Jefferson College, Cannonsburg, Pa. and the T Δ at Murfreesboro, Tenn.; the Z Z having been established in 1857 at Centenary College of Louisiana.

The Fourteenth Convention was held in the west under the auspices of the A chapter, at the Masonic Hall in Columbus, Ohio, September 7–9, 1859. Sixteen chapters were represented, and among the delegates we find Whitelaw Reid of K '56, Frank H. Hurd, Λ '58, and Hon. Ozora P. Stearns, O '58.

The Fifteenth Convention was the first one to meet in New York City with the N chapter, December 27–28, 1860. The business meetings were held in the Chapter Hall at 554 Broadway, and one hundred and twenty delegates were present. Literary exercises were held at the Church of the Divine Unity, at which Charles P. Chandler, Θ '54, was orator, and Edward S. Rand, Jr., A '55, the poet. The banquet was held uptown at the Fifth Avenue Hotel. Dexter A. Hawkins, Θ '58, presiding, and Dr. Edward G. Bartlett, one of our founders, being present and speaking. Here again we find that the question of the war between the north and the south was uppermost in the minds of the people, for a resolution was passed "that it is the unanimous wish of the delegates present that the convention for 1862 shall be held with some southern chapter of the Fraternity." "They had their wish," said Brother Beckett, "and many a battle field, and prison-hell and unknown graves, and all the horrors of a bloody war — was their 'southern convention' of 1862. For then that awful Civil War broke over us — and we paused dumbfounded — like laborers afield, who turning, fling up their hands when the engulfing cyclone sweeps down upon them. From that struggle cause-and-effect delights to date, Deucalion-like, all transformations; and no institution was more radically altered, no class of men figured more grandly, no sentiments rose diviner above the smoke of battles — than our own. Upon the altars of that war our chain was hammered to white heat, consumed by that blighting combustion, and every link scarred and calcinated. It is the saddest, sweetest, and the grandest song of our history, that another time and page shall tell. But aside from the individual heroes, who returned not even on their shields, think of that galaxy of glorious chapters that became extinct! Γ, B (North Carolina), Δ (South Carolina), Ω, I, Z Z (Centenary Col.), A Δ, T Δ, K, (Tenn.) and to these may be added X and H, who, left for dead upon the field, sprang up again and grace our brotherhood, crowned with double honors.

The Sixteenth Annual Convention did not therefore assemble with the Φ, until the 29th and 30th of July, 1862. Fourteen chapters were represented by thirty-nine delegates — all coming from north of Mason and Dixon's line. They met once more to join hands, sing the old songs again, enact the crowning laws of our development and then — the camp, the field and the great gulf swept them in; but before they rushed to cross swords with the Δ K E of the South, they spoke of their fond associations with Ψ, B, H, X, Δ, K, I, Ω, and Z and, and one by one re-read their last fond letters to the Parent, breathing all of love and loyalty to Δ K E and, as one coming through the night answers us from the distance, so they responded, and their response,— stand here! — true Northern answer to Southern chivalry.

CONVENTION OF Δ K E,
HALL OF THE Φ,
July 30th, 1862.

DEAR BROTHERS,

The opening of this letter announces to you that the General Convention of our Fraternity is now in session with the parent Chapter.

When your name was called, no delegate responding, the Secretary of the Convention read the last letter received from you by the Φ Chapter, and in proper order, the latest letters received from our Southern Brothers.

The sentiment of their letters was unanimous in their attachment to the Fraternity, and in their determination to let no political differences interfere with their devotion to its interests.

The reading was followed by enthusiastic applause and expressions on every side of the most fraternal feeling for those brothers, from whom the present unhappy strife has separated us, and a committee was immediately appointed to convey to you, as soon as the way should be open, the greetings of the Convention.

It is necessary to say but little, but we wish you to feel that that little is from the very heart of all the Northern branches of the Fraternity. The Convention deeply regrets that unhappy causes deny us the pleasure of seeing representatives from your Chapter. The differences of opinion, which have led to the division of our Country ought not to have any influence on those principles, which have so long bound together Δ K E in happiness and prosperity. Whatever may be the result of the National contest, we trust that our good old Society Union may remain unimpaired. We ask you to resume communication with us, to send delegates to the next Convention, and to cherish with us the hope that we may soon be working together to maintain Δ K E in her present eminence, and advance her to her proud destiny.

Fraternally yours always,
HENRY HOLT,
MAX F. B. WOODHULL, K (Miami).

It is difficult for the historian to write an unprejudiced history of any war until it is far enough in the past so that he can see it in perspective. It is equally difficult to write a passionless story of a struggle in which brethren bound by the tie of friendship from the heart have fought upon both sides; fought with all the loyalty of passionate natures for what each believed to be right, the one for home and family and the state which he believed to be sovereign, the other for his country and his flag whose very existence was assailed by those whom he believed to be traitors; yet so fought that neither for a moment failed to recognize that the bonds which united them in Δ K E were eternal. "Brotherhoods, political parties, even churches and families divided, separated and withdrew into hostile camps," said one of our alumni. "There was a Church North and a Church South, but never Δ K E North and Δ K E South. The Potomac River was no boundary in Δ K E. Though men enlisted and fought on different sides, according to their conception of right, yet underneath and behind the battle and slaughter and death, there was something stronger and greater than all the battle and the slaughter and the death. The mighty ennobling sentiment that unites true fraternity men to each other is more powerful and enduring than any of the outbreaks, or passions, or conflicts in the midst of which they find themselves involved."

So the story of Δ K E in the Civil War is difficult to tell. Amid the countless tales of bravery, and devotion, and suffering, and fraternal sympathy and aid, it is hard to select those which are most significant, and to reject those which so adorn the records of our fraternity. No exhaustive history is here possible. We can only weave a garland to hang upon our altar, made up of a few flowers which symbolize the many that are ungathered.

When the war broke out there were upon our rolls, 2,869 members, living and dead. During the war 571 more were initiated. Of these probably fifteen per cent. were dead and more than ten per cent. more were, through age or ill health, incapacitated for service. There are many of whose service in the war we have no report. Yet of the number of whom we have reports, 796 were in the Northern army and 21 in the navy; 724 were in the Southern army and one in the navy; a total of 1,542 in the contending armies. Of those in the Northern armies 6 attained the rank of Major General, 25 of Brigadier General, 48 of Colonel, 76 of Lieutenant Colonel, 93 of Major, 219 of Captain, 199 of 1st Lieutenant, 124 of 2nd Lieutenant, 321 of Staff Officer, 103 of Non-commissioned Officer, while 268 were Privates. In the Southern army we had 2 Major Generals, 6 Brigadier Generals, 50 Colonels, 42 Lieutenant Colonels, 77 Majors, 189 Captains, 145 1st Lieutenants, 27 2nd Lieutenants, 281 Staff Officers, 50 Non-commissioned Officers and 286 Privates. No other fraternity can point to such a record. While Ψ Y and A Δ Φ are justly proud of the men whom they gave to the cause, yet their noble record can not compare with ours. Of the 2,450 members of Ψ Y in 1861, 650 were in the Northern and 63 in the Southern armies, while of A Δ Φ's nearly 2,500, 581 fought for the North and 86 for the South. So that with approximately the same membership, Δ K E had 162 more men in the war than Ψ Y and A Δ Φ combined.

Much has been written about the chivalry, the bravery and the sacrifice of the men of the Southern chapters of Δ K E, and too much can not be told of it. Their homes were invaded. Their altars were violated. The very colleges in which they had their homes were in the path of the invading armies, and almost to a man they sprang to their defense. The brother of I who wrote to B Φ in May, 1861, "I am the last of thirteen a week ago, and have just been to see three of our band enlist; I am only waiting to finish our chapter correspondence to return and enlist myself," was by no means a solitary example. Yet we must not in our pity and enthusiasm for those who fought a losing fight, forget that equal praise is due to their brothers of the North, who, menaced by no danger to their homes or firesides, sprang unhesitatingly to the defense of their country's flag. They, too, were heroes. They, too, fought without faltering upon many a bloody field. From the time when Theodore Winthrop of Φ fell leading the Northern men in a charge at Great Bethel, till the last Confederate commander, Philip Brent Spence, of Z, laid down his arms six weeks after Lee's surrender, there was not a battle of importance in which sons of Δ K E did not win laurels for the mother whose eyes shone with pride at their valor through the tears which she shed for their sufferings.

Through all the gloomy days which preceded the war, when the fires of rebellion were about to break forth, the correspondence on both sides breathed a spirit of love and devotion to the Fraternity, which war could not quench. On January 8, 1861, Γ wrote to Φ:

"As a people we are in great distress. The two sections of our once solid republic are arrayed against each other. Though I am Southern, politics never enter my mind connected with Δ K E. I love the dear old cause too well to desert her now or at any time. We should have no North, South, East or West." February 4, 1861, B wrote to Φ, "We have no such idea of letting Δ K E go down in North Carolina, we are resolved to perpetuate the honorable existence of B under all circumstances and at all hazards. The principle of loyalty to Δ K E is embedded in our heart of hearts." January 8, 1861, X wrote to Φ: "In these times of secession and civil contention, it is consoling to know that we at least have some friends in the North; that, though Mississippi has seceded from the union of states, the X chapter will never secede from our glorious union of sound heads, stout hearts, and kindred interests." April 15, 1861, H in her memorandum of letters received, wrote: "N writes in the most brotherly manner; says that even if Virginia should secede, he sees no reason why our bond of brotherhood should be severed. 'There is no irrepressible conflict between us of the North and you of the South.' If correspondence with Northern chapters was not suspended, would reply, I trust, in a corresponding spirit." May 16, 1861, a similar memorandum is, "K writes very fraternally, speaks of the prosperity of Δ K E at Miami, and remarks in conclusion, 'Although the future looks dark, yet I trust that all may be settled amicably, and that we all, as members of our glorious brotherhood, may

> 'Linked in love, grow together,
> Ever friends at heart.'

If correspondence with Northern chapters were not suspended, I would reply, I trust, in a becoming spirit." January 28, 1861, K Ψ wrote to Θ: "We are unable to see why the action of political demagogues should influence us to sever our connection with a society having for its object the attainment of excellence in arts most noble and laudable." And the same day to Φ, "It is our hope that we shall continue united and prosperous." So that the sentiment which was expressed by the Δ K E convention which met in the Hall of Φ, July 30, 1862, was not a mere formal wish to express the real feeling of all parts of the Fraternity, both North and South.

The direct result of the war to Δ K E as an organization was the closing of thirteen chapters, of whom only six have been revived, and the weakening of all the rest which were then in existence by the draining from them of the blood of many of their best and noblest members. Not a chapter North or South was unrepresented in the war, and there was not a chapter North or South that did not long bear the scars of that terrible conflict. No better example can be shown of the fraternity spirit which animated our brethren in the great conflict, than the following poem, written by Eugene T. Minott, Θ, 98.

BROTHERS IN Δ K E

(The story told in the following verses is a true incident of the Civil War. The Northern soldier was Lieutenant Edwin S. Rogers of the 31st (Me.) Regt. Vols. He was a native of Patten, Me., and entered Bowdoin College in the Class of '65, becoming at once a member of Δ K E. When a Junior he enlisted in the Union army, and at Cold Harbor, June 8, 1864, received a wound from which he died a few hours later The name of the Southern Deke is unknown to the writer.)

Upon a southern battlefield the twilight shadows fall;
The clash and roar are ended, and the evening bugles call.
The wearied hosts are resting where the ground is stained with red,
And o'er the plain between them lie the wounded and the dead.

And out upon the sodden field, where the armies fought all day,
There came a group of soldiers who wore the rebel gray.
But peaceful was their mission upon the darkened plain:
They came to save their wounded and lay at rest the slain.

And tenderly their hands performed the work they had to do,
And one among them paused beside a wounded boy in blue,
A Northern lad, with curly hair and eyes of softest brown,
Whose coat of blue was red with blood that trickled slowly down.

A bullet hole was in his breast, and there alone he lay
At night upon the battlefield, and moaned his life away.
The rebel paused beside him, and in the lantern's light
He saw upon the soldier's breast a fair familiar sight.
It was the pin of Δ K E, the diamond, stars and scroll,
The emblem of a brotherhood that bound them soul to soul.
He raised his hand and quickly tore his coats of gray apart
And showed the wounded soldier a Deke pin o'er his heart.

Then close beside the Yankee dropped the rebel to his knee,
And their hands were clasped together in the grip of Δ K E.
"I'm from Θ," said the Yankee, and he tried to raise his head;
"I'm from Ψ, in Alabama," were the words the rebel said.
"Brothers from the heart forever"— nothing more was left to say,
Though one was clad in Northern blue and one in Southern gray.

But the Northern lad was dying; his voice was faint at best
As he murmured out his messages to "mother and the rest."
And as the rebel soothed him, with his head upon his knee,
He heard him whisper "Bowdoin," and the "Dear old Δ K E."
And he bandaged up the bosom that was torn by rebel shot;
And bathed the brow with water where the fever fires were hot;
And kissed him for his mother, and breathed a gentle prayer
As the angel's wings were fluttering above them in the air.

And to a lonely country home, far in the heart of Maine,
A letter soon was carried from that Southern battle plain.
It told about the conflict, and how he bravely fell
Who was the son and brother in that home beloved so well;
It told the simple story of the night when he had died —
All written by the rebel Deke whom God sent to his side.
And when it all was written, the writer sent within
A little lock of curly hair and a battered diamond pin.

And thirty years have passed away, but these simple relics are
Of all a mother treasures dear, the dearest still by far.

A simple tale and simply told, but true; and I thought it might Well thrill the hearts of loyal Dekes, so I tell it here to-night.
The Northern soldier's name is found on Bowdoin's honor-roll;
And the names of both are blazoned fair on Δ K's scroll.
God bless our noble brotherhood; its past is sweet to hear,
And its grandeur and its glory grow with each succeeding year;
And the story of its heroes shall an inspiration be
To us who proudly wear to-day the pin of Δ K E.

CHAPTER IV

THE RECONSTRUCTIVE PERIOD, 1865–1881

THE period treated of in the last chapter might well be called the period of the hegemony of Φ; although we find the fraternity convention fairly well developed before the close of the period, the will of Φ was nevertheless practically supreme throughout this time. She was a tactful leader, taking no important steps after the first few years without consultation with and the approval of the most of the other chapters. But until the time of the first Washington convention, her will was hardly curbed by any regularly constituted plan of fraternity procedure. She granted or refused charters as to her it seemed best, and in all matters of fraternity government her word was to a great extent final. The Washington convention, however, was the first convention to begin to encroach upon the powers of the parent chapter, and by the close of the war the fraternity government had to a large extent passed over to the convention, which was then the legislative body of the Fraternity.

From this time on fraternity conventions are the mile posts of Δ K E's progress, and the history of their work is a fairly accurate history of the growth and development of the Fraternity. The convention not only makes the laws of the whole organization, but it amends and revokes charters, disciplines wayward, weak or erring chapters, and determines the policy of the Fraternity as to most matters which affect its external and internal well being. But a Δ K E convention is more than a mere legislative body. It is a gathering of men in the flower of young manhood, from all the leading educational institutions of the land, young men, who, by a rigid process of selection have been chosen from among their classmates and made members of a Fraternity which demands of her members not alone scholarship, but also that kindliness of heart, that knightly courtesy, that courageous gentlemanliness, which in after years produces, along with her scholars, her authors and her scientists, the men who are leaders in business, in politics, in war, in legislation and diplomacy. In such an assembly of kindred spirits there is soon developed a warmth of social intercourse, a jolly good fellowship that is very contagious. "What genial memories my conventions awaken!" writes one of our old war horses. "The abiding friendship, the unbroken vow, the kindling of the flame upon the altar, the generous confidence, the clasped hand,—all the recollections come to me after years of public and professional and judicial life with a warmth and tenderness that cannot be expressed." Such are the conventions whose record is found, not only in the volume of minutes, but in the hearts and lives of those who have felt their genial warmth.

The period of the Civil War was one of chaos in the land, and of something which resembled chaos in the Fraternity also. It is true, conventions were held regularly, one in New York with N, December 28–30, 1863, and one in Schenectady, with Θ X, July 25–27, 1865, at each of which thirteen chapters were represented; but little business of importance was transacted, and great difficulty was experienced in obtaining men to take part in the public exercises. At the Nineteenth Convention held in Rochester with B Φ in April, 1865, only six chapters were represented, but the following resolution, passed with cheers, shows the spirit which actuated the few who remained:

Resolved, that we, as a convention, rejoice at the restored political and civil relations of our common government, and that we welcome back with undiminished regard the Southern Chapters of our Fraternity, and earnestly desire and request that they renew their former relations with the Fraternity at the earliest possible moment, and that we extend to them invitations to the next convention at Ann Arbor."

The history of the second period, as shown by the conventions, reveals the struggles of our various chapters to recover from the losses of that war, and to fill up the gaps which it had made in our lines. No other college fraternity had made such sacrifices as ours for the cause of the nation, and for the cause of the South. Many of our men in northern colleges were sons of the South who believed in the justice of their cause, and who hastened to its defense; while a chain of our chapters stretched across the entire Confederacy, and their members, almost to a man, seized arms and were found where the fight was hottest. The Dekes of the North, inspired by the same ardor, were among the first to leap forward at their country's call. So great was the havoc which the war made, that when, at the end, the roll of chapters was called, Γ, Ψ, Δ, X, B, Ω, H, I, Z Z, A Δ, T Δ, and K Φ were among the missing, and the colleges in which they were situated were for the most part destroyed; while in the North many of the chapters were so depleted that their very existence was problematical.

Just before the outbreak of the war charters were granted to the Φ X chapter at Rutgers College, New Brunswick, N. J., February 14, 1861, and to K Φ at Troy University, May, 1861, but it was not until the Twentieth Convention, which was held June 20–21, 1866, with the O chapter, that any further charters were granted. At this time an application was received from a body of students at the Indiana Asbury University (De Pauw University since May 5, 1884), as well as from Wesleyan University, Bates College of Maine, and Genesee College at Lima, N. Y. Although only six chapters were represented in this convention, the amount of business transacted renders it a very important one. The petition for a charter at Indiana Asbury was granted, as was also that of Wesleyan University, while a favorable vote was given to Genesee College, but for some unknown reason its charter was not issued until after the institution had been moved to Syracuse, N. Y. Under the presidency of Hon. Geo. Raines, B Φ, and the secretaryship of Hon. J. D. Teller of E (though the title of "Hon." was won years later), the business of the convention was carried through in a most workmanlike manner. The convention is marked by the presence for the first time since the war of a representative of one of the Southern chapters, X of Mississippi appearing in the person of Edward Mayes of '68. He was welcomed by the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved: First, That we view with extreme pleasure and gratification the termination of the late national conflict which temporarily separated the states of our Federal Union, and as a consequence severed the relations between the Northern and Southern chapters of our Fraternity, and that we heartily rejoice in the return of peace which enables our Southern brethern to resume their places in the brotherhood and to be again represented on the floor of our general convention.

"Second, That we extend a cordial welcome to those chapters which have reorganized, and that we recommend the reëstablishment, as hereinafter provided, of the other suspended chapters as soon as they may be enabled so to do, assuring them that they will be affectionately received in the golden bonds of our brotherhood.

"Third, That the Southern suspended chapters be considered as reëstablished upon the procural of their old charters. And that the Φ chapter be instructed to issue duplicate charters to the old members upon satisfactory evidence of the original charters having been lost or destroyed.

"Fourth, That a committee of one be appointed to open correspondence with the suspended chapters in regard to organization, and report at the Twenty-first Convention.

"Fifth, That, as an evidence of our feeling toward the Southern chapters, a copy of these resolutions be forwarded to such as have already reorganized, and to others as they may from time to time resume their relations with the Fraternity."

Bro. Mayes was appointed the committee of one referred to in section 4 of the above resolution, and was requested to push the work of reviving the Southern chapters. Public exercises were held on the 9th to 20th at which Prof. Brainard Kellogg, A A '58, gave an oration on the claims of Δ K E to literary eminence, and a poem was read by Arthur H. Snows, A A '65. It is interesting to note that this convention adopted a resolution instructing the Φ chapter to issue catalogues of the Fraternity during the ensuing year, recommending that she "get them up in as good style as possible, consistent with reasonable expense."

On January 8–9, 1867, a special convention at the call of Φ was held with the mother chapter, at which ten of the Northern chapters were represented, and much time was devoted to the discussion of plans for the strengthening of some of the chapters in the North, and the revival of those in the South wherever possible. An address to the Southern chapters was adopted, urging their members to hasten their reëstablishment, and closing with the following words: "Please accept for yourselves and convey to all our brethren you may meet our sincere wish that all the unpleasant occurrences of the past be buried in oblivion, and that we, one and all, both in the South and in the North, stand shoulder to shoulder, hand joined in hand, in the endeavor to push our loved Fraternity to the acme of glory, and show to all the world our fidelity to our motto, 'Always friends at heart.'" The grant of the charter to Wesleyan University was confirmed by this convention, and a charter given to Washington College of Lexington, Va. (Washington & Lee after April 16, 1871). "The literary and social elements in the Fraternity were not forgotten, for an oration and poem were delivered, and the Social Union gave two plays for the entertainment of the delegates, while a banquet with speeches and songs ended the convention at four o'clock in the morning.

The Twenty-first Convention, held at New York with N, October 2 and 3, 1867, was essentially a business convention, no public exercises being held. A charter was granted to Ψ Ω, at the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute at Troy, and the first written report since the war from a southern chapter, X of Mississippi, was received, excusing their absence. The Harvard chapter also received its regular stirring up. Σ entertained the Twenty-second Convention, October 7 and 8, 1868, sixteen of the twenty active chapters being represented. A charter was granted to B X of the Western Reserve University, and several applications from other colleges were refused, while the charter of Θ X, who, weakened by the loss of members in the Civil War, and unable to hold her own at Union College, was withdrawn. The new Cornell University was considered as a favorable site for the establishment of a chapter. Public exercises were held, at which General Francis A. Walker, Σ '60, presided; an oration was given by Professor Cyrus Northup, Φ '57, then a professor at Yale, now president of the University of Minnesota, and a poem by Wm. Sargent Lee, B Φ '61.

A strong conservative spirit had now taken possession of the Fraternity, and while the numerous applications for charters from all over the land testified to the regard in which Δ K E was held, they were all unhesitatingly rejected, unless the strongest reasons could be adduced for their consideration. At the Twenty-third Convention held with Θ, of Bowdoin, at Brunswick, Me., October 6 and 7, 1869, three such applications were rejected, while a committee consisting of Brothers Sweet and Clark, of Φ, and Sloan, of B Φ, were appointed to investigate Cornell, and Φ was authorized to grant a charter to the applicants from that institution, if the report of this committee should be favorable.

Their investigations resulted in a favorable report, and the chapter answered to its name when the roll of the next Convention was called. At the public exercises, Hon. Josiah H. Drummond, Θ, '46, presided; the orator was George Pratt, Φ, '57, and the poet, Charles C. Puffer, B Φ, '63. Music was furnished by the Germania Band of Boston. At the conclusion a banquet was held at the Tontine Hotel, the memory of which still fires the hearts of those who were there. One of the delegates, since a prominent legislator, says of it, "Although Maine is a prohibition State, and at that time no liquors were ever used in the college, yet I fear before we adjourned, at two o'clock in the morning, one at least of those who were to respond to toasts, had fallen under the table. How many others were there, deponent saith not, for he possibly was not in a condition to observe the actions of others. The last thing which I remember about the Convention, which was a notable one in many respects, was that three of us, about four o'clock in the morning, were striving to get up Main street (which is 200 feet wide), singing:

Hail to loved Δ K E.
Honored her name shall be
Till time shall end;
Vain every rival's arts;
Frustrate all hostile darts;
Proudly our loyal hearts
To her shall bend.

"I cannot swear that we ever reached college. It is said that this one and only departure from staid New England habits was due to the fact that the Harvard chapter was represented by a full delegation, and that the members of that illustrious order joined with the Yale mother chapter to initiate the rural youths of Maine. Looking back upon it after having had nearly thirty years in which to get sober, I am inclined to think that report had it right."

The Twenty-fourth Convention met with Υ, at Providence, November 16, 1870. Twenty-two chapters were here represented, X of Mississippi alone being absent. Three applications for charters were rejected by this convention, while reports from the chapters indicated that they had about regained the strength which they had lost by the war; the South, however, was still unrepresented.

At the Twenty-fifth Convention, held with Δ X at Ithaca, October 25 and 26, 1871, several names appear upon the roll of delegates, which are familiar now to every member of the Fraternity. Who does not know Samuel F. Hunt, John Bach McMaster and John DeWitt Warner? Brother Hunt had been a delegate to the Eighteenth Convention in 1864, and was at this time acting Lieutenant Governor of Ohio; but Brothers McMaster and Warner were undergraduates, and this was their first appearance at a Δ K E convention.

Many factors united to make this a memorable convention, both to the entertaining chapter and to the delegates. Δ X's representatives at Providence the year before, in the enthusiasm which marked the first entrance of a new chapter into the councils of the Fraternity, had invited the next convention to meet at Ithaca, and the invitation had been promptly and cheerfully accepted. But when the delegates returned home, they realized what a task they had undertaken. They had no permanent rooms; they had no alumni upon whom to call for financial aid; they had only a small chapter of undergraduates, whose greatest riches consisted in their enthusiasm for Δ K E. Nothing daunted them, however, and they commenced their preparation by hiring and furnishing suitable chapter rooms. They taxed their members about $125 each, and resolved to make the gathering at Ithaca one which should show the other chapters what the "baby" could do, and at the same time show to other fraternities at Cornell what Δ K E meant.

After their arrangements were nearly completed, the largest hotel in Ithaca, where the banquet was to be held, burned to the ground, and no other suitable place could be found. In despair they appealed to the authorities of the University for the college reception room in Cascadilla Building; after the first shock of the request had passed away, the authorities gracefully yielded, and the success of the banquet was again assured. The attendance at the convention was large. Conservatism still prevailed in our council, and applications from Wabash, Dickinson and Northwestern were rejected, but a charter was granted to the "Mystic Seven," at Syracuse University — the last instance in the history of the Fraternity when a charter was granted at the convention at which the applicants and their college were first considered. At the public exercises the orator was Judge Hunt, and his brilliant oration was in defense of the Ψ Φ Chapter, which had been unjustly attacked. He was also toastmaster at the banquet. The poet was Rev. James H. Andrews, M, '68. "No one," said a member of Δ X, "who did not well know the poet, could fathom the disappointment of the committee when he appeared and talked with them, nor their ecstatic surprise, shared by all the delegates, at the poem when it was read. The reprint of a part of it which appeared in the Quarterly from inadequate notes in later years, can give as little idea of its humor and literary finish, as of the inimitable way in which it was read." Altogether the Convention was a most successful one, and fairly compensated the boys of Δ X for the load of debt under which they were compelled to stagger.

The Twenty-sixth Convention held in Middletown with Γ Φ, May 14 and 15, 1873, showed a further advance in the doctrines of conservatism, for not only were all applications for charters rejected, but a halt was called in the election of honorary members, which vice had been indulged in by Δ K E to a limited extent, though not in the wholesale manner which had characterized some of her rivals. A formal resolution was passed by the Twenty-seventh Convention, held with P, in October, 1873, dropping from the roll of active chapters ten of the chapters that had become dormant from the effects of the war. One of the first steps toward alumni organization was also taken, when a resolution presented by Brother J. I. Good, of P, representing the New York

Alumni Association, was unanimously adopted recommending the formation of similar associations in the large cities of the United States, and requesting that meetings of the alumni for such purpose be called by Ψ Ω, at Troy; B Φ, at Rochester; Δ, at Chicago; O, at Detroit; Θ, at Portland; B X, at Cleveland; A, at Boston; H, at Baltimore, and Λ, at Cincinnati. In response to this resolution, alumni associations were formed in many cities, and by reason of the renewed interest in Fraternity matters thus aroused, Δ K E soon had the most thoroughly organized and active alumni of which any Greek Fraternity could boast. At the literary exercises held in the Opera House, Hon. Whitelaw Reid, K, '56, presided, and a most interesting address was given by Hon. Wayne McVeagh, Φ, '53, Minister to Turkey, upon "Constantinople."

For the first time in our history, a convention of Δ K E was held in "Dixie," on October 14 and 15, 1874, when the Twenty-eighth Convention met with H, at Charlottesville, Va. Without doubt, the cost of transportation of the delegates, as well as the time during which they must be absent from their college work, had heretofore prevented meeting in the South; but it was wisely determined by the previous convention to emphasize the revival of Δ K E in the South by meeting with one of the chapters which had been inactive during the war. Nineteen chapters were represented. Among the delegates we notice the appearance of Frank S. Black, Π, '75, later Governor of New York, who was a member of the Committee on Rules and Regulations, and thus early acquired the habit of ruling and regulating, which has clung to him to this day. A charter was granted by this convention to the Ψ Φ Society of Columbia College, which was admitted to the Fraternity under the name of the B Chapter, the name of one of the inactive southern chapters. Much confusion resulted from this action when the old B was revived, and it was the occasion of no little friction when it was thought necessary to change the name of the Columbia chapter.

The charter of K at Miami University was withdrawn, as the financial difficulties of the University had obliged it to close its doors. The traditional Virginia hospitality was not lacking, and perhaps as a consequence the memories which are retained by the delegates are somewhat vague and indistinct. "I was there, to that I'll swear," writes one of them, "and so was Bayard Taylor, and to me he was the convention! I distinctly remember that the representative of our chapter was honored with a seat in the same carriage with the aforesaid 'B. T.' during the convention drive to Monticello, where we were photographed on the steps of the old home of Jefferson, Monticello. I also remember that next to 'me and Taylor,' one other form in that historic group challenged the attention of all, viz.— a demijohn of whiskey! — pronounced good by all the boys, who with rare medical foresight, carried it along as a prophylactic against sunstroke; and as an eyewitness I am willing to affirm that never a son was struck!

"As to the business sessions of the convention, although I distinctly remember that on my return to my chapter my report was accepted as clear, definite and satisfactory, I am now obliged to 'record with shame' the fact that I can't remember a single thing that was done or who did it. I think the oration and poem were the best ever provided for a similar occasion; that the chairman presided with much more than usual dignity; that the banquet was the best on record, the toastmaster unusually felicitous in his remarks, and the responses to the toasts ditto; but I know Bayard Taylor was there, and his stories, inimitably told, threw stacks of fun into the occasion. He was at home with the boys and seemed to enjoy to the full everything connected with the meeting. In fact, he was the jolliest one of the crowd."

At the public exercises the oration of Brother Taylor aroused the most intense enthusiasm, and every delegate was convinced that no truer Δ K E ever lived. On the way home a large party of the delegates stopped off at Manassas Junction, and went over the battlefield of Bull Run.

Little business of public interest was transacted by the Twenty-ninth Convention, which met at Syracuse with Γ Φ, October 6 and 7, 1875, much of the time being taken up in the discussion of questions of purely internal management. It was a very enthusiastic meeting, however, and the discussions of purely fraternity matters were at times very warm. Dr. Alexander Winchell, O, formerly of the University of Michigan, and at that time Chancellor of Syracuse University, presided at the literary exercises. Francis Forbes, B Φ, '66, was Orator, and John DeWitt Warner, Δ X, '72, Poet. A number of the delegates visited Cornell University after the convention, where they were entertained royally, attending the regatta, of which a Δ K E, Barto, was Commodore, Δ X having a majority of the Cornell 'Varsity crew, and representatives on each class crew.

A radical step was taken by the Thirtieth Convention, held with E, October 4 and 5, 1876, when a charter was granted to applicants from the University of California, who came into the Fraternity as the Θ Z chapter. The only interpretation which can be placed upon this action, establishing a chapter at an institution so far removed from all the rest, is that Δ K E had determined to make good her claim to the title of a national fraternity, and the success of Θ Z has fully established the wisdom of such a course. It remains to be seen whether we shall have the courage to follow this policy to its legitimate conclusion by the establishment of chapters in those institutions in the West and South, which have in recent years made such rapid strides that they have come to equal — perhaps in some cases to surpass — some of the colleges in the East, whose chapters of Δ K E have long since been considered bulwarks of the Fraternity. Many believe that Δ K E should be represented by chapters in every college in the land whose course of study ranks with the best colleges of the East, whose support and endowments warrant the belief in its permanent success, and the personnel of whose student body is such that the members of such a chapter would be congenial elements in our Fraternity.

There are several such colleges and universities where we are as yet unrepresented. Many of our chapters, which are now so isolated that they rarely see a Deke except from their own number, would welcome these new neighbors, who would bind them more closely to their sister chapters. Shall we not go out and possess the land? The literary exercises on this occasion were made memorable especially by an oration by Judge Samuel F. Hunt, K, '64, on "Scholarship and Country," which was widely circulated, and a poem was read by Col. Latham C. Strong, Θ X, '68.

No work of especial importance was done by the Thirty-first Convention (held with M at Hamilton, N. Y., October 10 and 11, 1877), as no new charters were granted and no questions of general interest came before it. The Thirty-second Convention (held with B of Columbia at New York, October 23 and 24, 1878), was also chiefly occupied with matters of internal government; a charter was granted to A X at Trinity, which was the last new charter granted until 1889, though two of the inactive southern chapters were in the meantime revived. A resolution introduced by Brother Frank S. Williams, N, '78, was also passed, adopting as a graduate badge the Δ K E coat of arms, which, worn as a pendant, has since been so much admired.

The Thirty-third Convention held with Π, of Dartmouth, October 23 and 24, 1879, marked the beginning of the agitation for a stronger centralized executive body for the government of the Fraternity, which resulted two years later in the formation of our very efficient Fraternity Council. Brother Frank S. Williams was chairman of a committee of five on Central Organization, and this committee brought forward a plan for a national council of three sections, with headquarters respectively at Boston, New York and Detroit, the first section to consist of the New England States, the second of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Virginia, and the third of all the rest. Each chapter was to have one councillor in its own section, while Φ was to have one in each section. The jurisdiction of this Council was to be quite limited, and for the most part supervisory. The plan was adopted by the convention, conditioned upon its ratification by two-thirds of the chapters, but as this ratification was never given, the scheme was never put into active operation. The literary exercises were held in the college church. Edward Atkinson, Π, hon., being the orator, and John DeWitt Warner, Δ X, '72, the poet. A banquet at White River Junction fittingly closed the proceedings, and resolved itself into a jubilation in honor of the new central organization, which all then supposed would be permanent.

The Thirty-fourth Convention, held with A X of Trinity College at Hartford, Conn., October 20 and 21, 1880, closes the second period. This was the writer's first convention, and it impressed itself most vividly upon his mind. Whoever has had the good fortune to attend a convention of Δ K E will bear witness to its charm. While the convention itself is characterized by earnestness and fidelity in the transaction of business, there is nevertheless an opportunity for the cultivation of the acquaintance of the delegates from the various chapters, and indeed for the formation of friendships which continue throughout life. One of the things which perhaps most impresses the delegate at his first convention is the remarkable homogeneity of the members. No matter how far removed the chapters may be from one another, the members all bear the characteristic "Deke" stamp. All show forth that goodfellowship and brotherly love without which, no matter what his attainments in other lines, no man can be a true "Deke." It is this which one can best see at a convention, and he learns there, if never before, to be proud of his Fraternity, to glory in his membership, and to believe that her rolls contain the names of the best men that America can produce.

At this convention a plan for centralization was brought forward by Brother Henry W. Rolfe, of Σ, '80, which differed from the one adopted by the previous convention, mainly in the provision that the entire Council should be located at New York, instead of being divided into three sections, and in the employment of a salaried secretary. The report was adopted and given into the hands of Σ to obtain the necessary ratification and report at the next convention.

The close of this period found the Fraternity advanced from the chaotic condition in which she was left by the war, with her ranks depleted, her chapters inactive throughout the South where she had been so strong, and with those which were left in the North struggling to regain what they had lost by their sacrifices for their country's needs, to a position of pre-eminence among the Greeks of the land, strong in membership, united in loyalty, and ready to avail herself of such thorough organization as would make of her a compact, well-drilled army, with proper officers to direct her campaigns, and with a unity of purpose and a determination to win by merit alone, which could not fail to place her far beyond all of her rivals.

CHAPTER V

THE PERIOD OF CENTRALIZED GOVERNMENT

THE Period of Centralized Government of the Fraternity is marked especially by a rational development along certain recognized lines in accordance with plans carefully thought out and persistently followed. The conventions of this period show the gradual working out of these plans; each one shows a material advance of the Fraternity beyond the place where it stood the year before, and seldom is the time of a convention occupied in undoing the ill-considered work of a previous one. A growing conservatism, moreover, is manifested, not a conservatism which consists in sitting back and refusing to make any advance whatever, but in refusing to advance except along certain well-defined paths, and only after the most careful investigation.

The influence of the alumni upon the policy of the Fraternity is shown more than ever before. While the supreme control of all matters of legislation is still in the active members, the establishment of a Council of Alumni, as the Executive of the Fraternity, provided an advisory board to whom the chapters naturally turned when questions of fraternity policy arose. As its members were in touch with all the chapters, and knew both the sentiment of the Fraternity and its needs, they were able to give advice which materially benefited it and enabled it to advance with greater rapidity and certainty along the paths which had been marked out for it.

And here let me say a word regarding the work done by the men who from time to time have composed the Council. To those who have never felt the thrill which leaps from heart to heart through the hands clasped in the Mystic Circle, it is inexplicable how men engrossed in the daily toil of business, of the professions, of politics, can be willing to give up so much of their time and labor, without recompense, simply to promote the interests of an organization of college boys, whose principal object to the uninitiate seems to be to have a good time, and to shroud that good time in a certain mystery. These barbarians little realize the love which binds the true Greek to his fraternity with a bond which grows stronger as the years advance. The members of our Council have been men of prominence in their various callings, whose advice is eagerly sought for, and commands a high price in this busiest of cities; yet they have freely given of their time to the work of the Fraternity, and much of her progress is due to their wisdom and foresight. Nothing has been left to chance by them. The true purposes of the Fraternity have been carefully studied; the obligations of each chapter, and of each individual member of the chapter, to the whole Fraternity have been constantly impressed upon all; the alumni have been organized and enthused under their wise direction; a fraternity magazine has been established, which, as a publication solely for the advancement of the interests of a college fraternity, is to-day unrivalled; a complete and correct system of chapter heraldry has been prepared and adopted, the building of chapter houses has been encouraged and wisely directed — in short, nothing has been too great, and nothing too small, for their attention where it affected the interests of Δ K E.

All honor to those devoted men, whose names are household words in every chapter of Δ K E, to whose lot it fell to guide our beloved Fraternity into the paths of prosperity. The names of Williams, Warner, Beckett, Grout, Lines, Wells, Fisher, Downey, Munn, Brockway, Simpson, Pavey, Safford, Greene, Walling, Danner, Knapp, Hester — but why continue, when so many deserve a place upon the scroll? Are the names not written upon the hearts of all Dekes?

This period may be said to begin with the Thirty-fifth Convention, held with the T Chapter at Utica, N. Y., October 19 and 20, 1881. Brother Rolfe of Σ presented the completed and elaborated plan for an advisory council, which, after protracted debate, was adopted. It provided for a Council of five alumni residing in or near New York, to be elected by the Convention, and to serve for two years, and a Secretary, to be elected by the Council, to serve during its will. This Council was to have the supervision of the fraternity catalogue and magazine, to receive all applications for charters and report upon them to the conventions, and to lay before the convention each year all matters deemed to be for the best interests of the Fraternity. A fund for the payment of the expenses of the Council was also provided for.

The convention further took action to recall the chapter of H A at Washington and Lee University, as that institution had suspended. Measures were also taken to stir up certain other chapters that showed signs of weakness. Φ, Π, Δ X, Σ and O were elected to choose the members of the new Council.

The Council was organized, with Frank S. Williams, representing O, as its President; John DeWitt Warner, of Δ X, '72, Secretary; and Dickinson W. Richards, Φ, '80, G. A. Plimpton, Σ, '76, and Charles H. Beckett, Π, '81. Their first message to the Fraternity was dated March 15, 1882, and announced as the work which the Council had already mapped out, besides the perfecting of their own organization, the collection of Δ K E annals, the issuing of a catalogue and magazine, the formation of alumni clubs and various minor matters. They asked that each chapter answer a number of questions relating to its college, its internal affairs, its membership, rites and ceremonies, its financial condition and its relations with other chapters. The message was very comprehensive, and laid out for both the Council and the chapters a large amount of work necessary to put the Fraternity into the best condition.

This message was followed by a second one in May, giving an account of what had already been accomplished and announcing that the Council was endeavoring to form an organization of the Alumni of New York and vicinity. The work of the first year was for the most part preliminary, and prepared the ground for the larger work to be initiated at the next convention, the thirty-sixth.

Providence was the place of meeting of this convention, held with the Y Chapter, October 18 and 19, 1882. The Council, present for the first time, was represented by its President, Brother Williams, and its Secretary, Brother Warner. One or two of the chapters became a little restive when it was learned that the strict letter of the constitution was to be enforced, but the general sentiment was heartily in favor of the new organization, and all soon worked smoothly, under the able guidance of the president of the convention, Brother Oakford, of Φ. The work planned for the convention by the Council included the perfecting of the plan of organization of the Council by various amendments, the adoption of a system of fraternity and chapter heraldry, the extinguishment of chapter debts, the publication of a year book and other matters of internal regulation. All these matters were adopted substantially as planned. Public exercises in connection with the convention were held, at which Gen. Francis A. Walker, Σ, '60, presided; an oration, "The Tree of Knowledge," was given by Hon. Andrew J. Jennings, Υ, '72, and a poem by Rev. James I. Good, Ρ, '72.

Ο entertained the Thirty-seventh Convention, and gave the delegates such a time as only Ο and the Dekes of Detroit know how to give. The business sessions were held in the Hall of Ο at Ann Arbor, October 17 and 18, 1883. During the preceding year the Council had issued the first volume of the Δ Κ Ε Quarterly, which from the beginning has maintained the same high standard. They had also prepared and published in colors the arms of the Fraternity, had commenced the collection of a fraternity library (including college and fraternity publications), and had made substantial progress upon catalogue work. The principal business brought by them before the convention was the revision of the constitution, which was most creditably accomplished. Numerous applications for charters had been received during the year, but none were reported favorably. A scheme for a Pan-Hellenic conference was reported and referred back to the Council, with power to act. It was also authorized to procure its own incorporation by special legislative act.

At this convention appeared for the first time Tracy C. Drake, of Ψ Ω, Edward Marshall Grout, of Μ, Albert J. Beveridge, of Ψ Φ, and Geo. C. Austin, of Ρ, names destined to become well known to the public, as well as to the Fraternity. At the public exercises, Hon. Cladius B. Grant, Φ, '59, presided; Hon. Samuel F. Hunt, Κ, '64, gave an address, and Hon. Frank H. Hurd, Δ, '58, an oration. The convention closed with a reception at Detroit given by the Alumni Association of that city.

The work of the Council from this time on has been so constant, careful and uniformly wise and advantageous to the Fraternity, that no further mention of it need be made, except where some special work on its part calls for our attention. Innumerable details regarding the publication of the Quarterly, Catalogue and Song Book, as well as a general supervision of the affairs of the Fraternity, have involved an amount of labor that only those who have shared in it can appreciate.

The Thirty-eighth Convention was held with Β Φ at Rochester, N. Y., November 11 and 12, 1884. The fact of its being held immediately after the great Blaine-Cleveland campaign, while the result was still in doubt, interfered somewhat with the plans which Β Φ had made, but it marked, nevertheless, the high tide of conventions up to that time, and in the number of men of prominence who were in attendance, as well as its pleasing social features, it has not been surpassed. The meetings were held in Consistory Hall, where the delegates were welcomed by James M. E. O'Grady for the chapter, and by the venerable President of the University of Rochester, Dr. Anderson. For the first time in several years the Harvard chapter was represented by three delegates. Four applications for charters were received, but none were granted.

The question of the right of a member to resign from the Fraternity was brought up, and it was unanimously decided that no provision for such a contingency was provided, nor should it be allowed. The subject of a uniform badge was discussed and referred to the Council, and a plan for the general organization of the alumni and the purchase of homes by the chapters, was adopted. John Addison Porter, Φ, '78, and Franklin W. Lantz, Ψ Φ, '70, were appointed an Advisory Committee on Chapter Houses, and Melvil Dewey, Σ, '74, then Librarian of Columbia, a Committee on Symbolism and Insignia.

On the first evening a reception was given to the delegates, in the Powers Art Gallery, at which more than a thousand of Rochester's best citizens welcomed the visiting Dekes. At the public exercises held in the Academy of Music the following evening, Hon. William Rumsey, E, '61, presided; Prof. Crawford H. Toy, H, '54, Librarian of Harvard, was chaplain, Julian Hawthorne, A, '67, was orator, and Hon. George A. Marden, Π, '61, poet. At the banquet in the Powers Hall, Hon. George Raines, B Φ, '66, was toastmaster, and toasts were given by those who took part in the public exercises, and by John Addison Porter, Melvil Dewey and Edward Marshall Grout.

Γ Φ Chapter entertained the Thirty-ninth Convention at Meriden, Conn., October 21 and 22, 1885. Plans were here discussed for the revival of the chapters in the South which had become inactive during the war, and recommendations were made as to reorganization in the universities of North Carolina and Mississippi. Invitations were accepted to visit the Γ Φ house at Wesleyan, and the Δ K E house at Yale. At the public exercises, Hon. John D. Long, A, '57, presided; Senator Matthew C. Butler, Δ, '57, was the orator, and Julian Hawthorne, A, '67, the poet.

During the year the most noteworthy happenings in the Fraternity were the reorganization of the old I Chapter, at Central University, Richmond, Ky., and the organization of the Δ K E Club of New York, with Charlton T. Lewis, Φ, '53, as President, and with its club house at 36 West 34th street. This club, which was organized by the Council, has been of great service to the Fraternity in providing a solid working organization in New York City, and through its meetings and banquets, in bringing the Fraternity prominently before the public. The plans for the organization of the club were promulgated by Frank S. Williams at a dinner of the New York alumni, held at Delmonico's, February 6, 1885, at which more than three hundred were in attendance. Fraternal enthusiasm rose to high water mark. Numerous applications for membership were received that night, and on May 1st following the club started with a membership of two hundred and fifty. Its success was great from the first, and it was for years an important factor in the progress of our Fraternity.

The new and flourishing Alumni Association of Washington was the host of the Fortieth Convention on January 5 and 6, 1887, and showed what was meant by true southern hospitality. To the large number of delegates in attendance this convention will always be a most pleasant memory, alike for the amount and importance of the business transacted, the literary and social entertainment given, and the eloquence, wit and humor poured out at the banquet. The delegates in large numbers arrived early, and the local alumni were beaming with pleasure at the record attendance promised, but when the delegation of twenty from B Φ, headed by George E. Fisher, arrived in their special car, and with the banner of the Thirty-eighth Convention carried at the head, marched into the rotunda of Willard's, the enthusiasm found vent in shouts and Δ K E songs. From that time on everything went with a rush, and between business, entertainment and sight-seeing, it is feared that the hours for sleep were sadly diminished.

The business of greatest importance considered by the convention was the revival of the old B chapter at the University of North Carolina. The discussion was earnest, for the standing of the reorganized southern colleges was little known to the Fraternity at large. But if the Washington alumni had shown us the meaning of the word "hospitality," we were enlightened as to the quality of the old-time southern eloquence by three of the advocates of the application for the reorganization of B — Professor F. P. Venable, H, '74, of the faculty, and Hon. Henry R. Shorter, '53, and Judge Alfred B. Irion, '55 two of the alumni of old B. They swept the convention with the whirlwind of their eloquence. Tears dimmed the eyes of many of the delegates as these gray-haired men pleaded the cause of the new South; and when they finished and a vote was taken, not a dissenting voice was heard. It was truly a triumph of eloquence in the face of conservatism, lack of accurate information and prejudice against southern educational institutions, not because they were southern, but because of great uncertainty as to their future.

The revival of B precipitated another question, which caused a warm discussion. After the war had wiped out so many southern institutions, and with them some of our most loyal chapters, other chapters were organized in the North under the same names as some of these that were in a state of suspended animation. B of Columbia had become a flourishing and influential chapter under the same name as the old chapter at North Carolina; Δ of Chicago bore the name of the old Δ of South Carolina, while some other names were so repeated as to make our chapter nomenclature very confusing. The newer chapters had achieved success under these names, and a strong sentiment against a change existed. But in the interest of accuracy and especially in view of the near approach of the issuing of our catalogue, the Council recommended that the junior chapter in each case, either double the designating letter, or add another not already so used, to its present initial.

This provoked considerable opposition, and B of Columbia especially was naturally loath to surrender the name under which she had become so well known and loved throughout the Fraternity. A compromise was finally effected by which the chapter at North Carolina was revived under the name of B A. This compromise, however, only caused a renewal of the Council's recommendation at a later convention, and still warmer discussion, which ended in the magnanimous surrender of her name by Columbia to the successors of the older chapter, and her taking her place loyally in the column as Γ B.

The social side of the convention was equally memorable. At the public exercises on the first evening, the music was furnished by the Marine Band. Hon. Seth L. Milliken, Ξ, '56, presided. The oration was by Hon. Wm. L. Trenholm, Δ, '55, and the poem by Dr. Andrew C. Kemper. During the following day special receptions were given the delegates in the President's room of the Senate, by Senator Sherman, the President pro tem. of the Senate; in the Speaker's room of the House by the Speaker, Hon. John G. Carlisle, and in the great east room of the White House, where the delegates were introduced to President Cleveland by Hon. Isaac H. Maynard, Σ, '62. In the evening was the banquet at Willard's, where we ate creations by real Southern cooks, and listened to the eloquence of the speakers, and the brilliant wit and repartee of the toastmaster, Hon. John D. Long, A, '57, afterwards Secretary of the Navy, then a member of Congress. Hon. James W. Husted, Φ, '54, "the Bald Eagle of Westchester," then speaker of the New York Assembly, came over from Albany especially to respond to a toast, and returned to his duties at Albany the same night, after delighting all with his speech.

Then there were Hon. Charles S. Fairchild, A, '63, at that time Assistant Secretary of the Treasury; A. G. Wilkinson, Φ, '56, for a long time principal examiner in the Patent Office, and one of the delegates to the convention at Washington "befo' the wah," whose reminiscences of those olden times convulsed his hearers (especially his story of the delegate who discovered that the tail of the bronze horse, in the square in front of the White House, was screwed on); there were Congressmen galore, Hon. Hilary A. Herbert, H, '54, then head of the Naval Committee of the House, and afterwards one of those patriotic and efficient Secretaries of the Navy, whose great work in that department made possible the glorious victories of our navy in the war with Spain; ex-Governor McCreary, K Ψ, '59, of Kentucky, then serving in the House; and Hon. Mark H. Dunnell, '49, the veteran of Ξ, at that time a leading Congressman of the minority. But the stories of the banquet and of the adventures of the various delegates in Washington would alone make an interesting chapter, and we must hasten on to later history.

Not to be outdone by her Washington brethren, the Northwestern Alumni Association asked for the Forty-first Convention, which was held with her at Chicago, October 19 and 20, 1887. During the intervening time, the editor of the Catalogue, one of our most loyal alumni, Brother Henry Van Alen Anderson, Γ B, '84, who had succeeded the first editor, Dr. Ernest H. Lines, Π, '82, had died after a protracted illness, and the work on the Catalogue had been taken up by Brother George E. Fisher, B Φ, '68, who resolved to make it a monumental work in accuracy, in details, in the information given, and in workmanship. His great success three years later was the result of a lavish expenditure of time, labor and money, which none can fully appreciate except those who assisted in the work. It was of priceless value to the Fraternity and no one of her alumni has rendered her a greater service than did Brother Fisher by the production of this great work.

In the interest of accuracy in the Catalogue, the matter of the names of the Columbia and the North Carolina Chapter was again brought up, and after much discussion went over to the next convention. A comprehensive plan for the payment of the cost of the Catalogue was adopted. The project for the revival of K, at Miami, was presented by Judge Hunt, but also went over to the next convention. At the public exercises, a most charming and scholarly oration was given by Charlton T. Lewis, Φ, '53, and a poem by Senator Daniel B. Lucas, H, '54. The next morning a party of the delegates was conducted upon the floor of the Board of Trade by Brother H. Bausher, Jr., N, '58, who was, I believe, at that time President of the board. The party, headed by Charlton T. Lewis, soon attracted a crowd of brokers, all of whose eyes were fixed upon Mr. Lewis. "Who is that distinguished-looking gentleman?" one of the delegates asked a particular enthusiastic broker. "Why, don't you know?" was the reply. "That's the Duke of ————," a British nobleman who was then traveling in America. Thus suddenly raised to the peerage, Mr. Lewis remained "The Duke" to the boys during the rest of his stay.

The Forty-second Convention was held at Cincinnati, October 24 and 25, 1888, under the auspices of the Δ K E Central Club. The Δ K E Club of New York had in the meantime been moved to more palatial quarters, at 435 Fifth Avenue, and the report of the Council chronicled general prosperity throughout the Fraternity. Most of the time of the convention was occupied in the discussion of matters pertaining to the Catalogue, and to the settlement of the respective rights of the Columbia and the North Carolina Chapter to the name, B; the settlement was at last made as already noted. One of Columbia's representatives at this convention was Clarence Lexow, who afterward became famous for his investigation of Tammany.

Boston was the meeting-place of the Forty-third Convention, which was held with the New England Alumni Association, October 16 and 17, 1889. This was a convention of much importance to the Fraternity. The chapters were represented by more than one hundred delegates. The first business of importance to come before the convention was that of the relation of A, at Harvard, to the rest of the Fraternity. To a large number of Dekes it had long seemed that a condition of affairs existed there which should no longer be borne. While many of our most loyal alumni were members of that chapter, and while it was the wish of all to respect their feelings, to offer every opportunity to A to place herself on a par with the others, and to maintain in an institution which all respected as a leader of American colleges, a chapter which would be at the same time an honor to itself, its college and the Fraternity, yet it was felt that the Fraternity was greater than any of its component parts, and that it could not with due regard to its own honor and integrity permit a chapter to exist in such an anomalous state as that of the A of Harvard.

It was charged that this chapter, more familiarly known as the "Dickie Club," in common with other organizations in Harvard claiming to be chapters of well-known fraternities, maintained only a nominal connection with its Fraternity, seldom sending delegations to conventions, giving little or no recognition to visiting brethren, manifesting no desire to live up to fraternity regulations or traditions, and permitting membership at the same time in two or more fraternities. Measures were taken to bring the chapter to realize her duties and responsibilities, or, failing in that, to withdraw her charter, but at A's urgent request, the matter was referred to the next convention, in order to give them an opportunity to get into line, and the Council was directed to take the matter into its special charge during the year.

A petition for a revival of K at Miami University was presented by Judge Hunt and Senator Brice, and was granted by the convention, as was also one for a revival of the old Γ Chapter at Vanderbilt University. A charter was also granted to Φ E at the University of Minnesota, while the applications of Northwestern University, Swarthmore College and Wabash University were denied, and that of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was postponed. At the public exercises, addresses were given by Hon. Geo. A. Marden, Π, '61; Hon. W. S. Slocum, Σ, '69, and Hon. Sam. F. Hunt, K, 64; and a poem was read by Rev. Benj. R. Bulkley, B Φ, '76. The toastmaster of the banquet held at the Parker House was Hon. Francis A. Walker, Σ, '60, President of "Tech," and responses were made by Hon. Josiah H. Drummond, Ξ, '46, and Hon. Solon W. Stevens, Υ, '58, among others.

The first ten years of work under the Council thus closed with a record of three chapters revived and one new one added to our roll, thirteen flourishing alumni associations organized, the Quarterly established and successfully produced for several years, a new catalogue nearly ready for issue, and the chapters better organized and more carefully managed than ever before. The verdict of the Fraternity upon its first decade of centralized government was unanimously in its favor.

CHAPTER VI

THE CLOSE OF THE CENTURY

WITH the Forty-fourth Convention, held with the Δ K E Club of New York, November 13 and 14, 1890, the Fraternity entered upon the last decade of the century, and the second decade of its progress under centralized government. That experiment in government had proved very satisfactory to the Fraternity, and progress had been so steady and so great, under the careful guidance of the Council, that everyone wondered how we had existed so long and prospered so greatly before that system was inaugurated. The pace which had been set by the Council in its first ten years of work had been a rapid one. Could that pace be continued? Would men be found of sufficient loyalty and enthusiasm to take up the work which these pioneers had carried on so successfully when they, in the natural order of things, were obliged to give way to others?

The Council was in no sense an oligarchy, and the principle of rotation in this office had been carefully safeguarded in the Constitution. No matter how valuable the work of any one man might be, it was deemed unwise to tie the Fraternity up to him. Δ K E was and is too great to be dependent upon any one man or set of men. And no matter how important the work that lay unfinished before a council, no matter how great, wise and far-reaching plans had been proposed and entered upon, nevertheless each man at the end of his term must yield up his office, and permit his successors to carry out his plans, or in their discretion to overturn them. The general result has shown the wisdom of this provision, no matter how great has seemed the loss when, year after year, old, tried and wise councillors have stepped aside to make room for new men with new and untried ideas.

Two problems confronted the Forty-fourth Convention when it met, which required great wisdom and prudence to solve — the new catalogue and the A Chapter. Under the editorship of Brother Fisher, the scope of the catalogue had been greatly enlarged. Instead of a simple collation of names by chapters and classes, with no description except the occupation and last known address of each member, it had been determined to give a succinct statement of the principal facts in the history of each man; to supplement these by tables of kinship and geographical distribution; to obtain as far as possible from government records, the war record of each man who served in the army or navy on either side in our Civil War; and to exhibit in tabular form the growth of the Fraternity year by year, as well as the honors gained by our members in civil life. With a membership of more than 10,000, many of whom it was difficult to trace, this involved a great deal of labor, and an expenditure of money that for an organization of college boys meant a heavy burden. To provide means for accomplishing this great work was the task which confronted this convention, and which called for the exercise of careful thought on its part.

It was fortunate for the Fraternity that it had an alumnus as able and as willing as George E. Fisher to undertake this great work; and he had the satisfaction of producing a catalogue which, in wealth of detail and in completeness, far excelled anything which had yet been produced by any college fraternity. It was a long and difficult task, but he carried it through to success, and conferred upon the Fraternity a lasting benefit.

The matter of the Harvard Chapter was of still greater perplexity. On the one hand the loyalty of the large and influential body of its alumni was held in highest esteem by the Fraternity, while the lofty standing of the University made the retention of a chapter there of great importance, if it could be retained under suitable conditions. On the other hand, the history of the chapter for a few years was not calculated to inspire the hope of its being made a healthy branch of the parent tree; while, after a thorough investigation, a committee of the Council and another of the alumni of Boston, appointed at the direction of the previous convention, had reported that the conditions and customs of student life at Harvard were unfavorable to the healthy growth and existence of a chapter there. It seemed to them that there was a certain artificiality about the life there, a lack of the atmosphere of pure democracy, a disposition to regard Harvard as the only institution and a Harvard man as the only man worthy of consideration; and that, amid such surroundings, the loyalty due to the Fraternity, and which all the other chapters rendered voluntarily and without reserve, could not be obtained from the chapter there; that without such loyalty, without the active recognition of the equality and brotherhood of every Δ K E, no matter from what chapter he came, the chapter at Harvard would continue to be a source of weakness and a reproach to the Fraternity.

The existence of such an anomalous state was not confined to the Chapter of Δ K E at Harvard, as was proved by the membership of men in several fraternities at the same time. It was undoubtedly true that, while these various organizations retained the names of the fraternities by which they had been instituted, their ties had become so weakened that their connection with their fraternities was merely nominal and some of them have since lost their charters. Under the circumstances it was deemed unworthy of the dignity and strength of Δ K E to permit such a condition longer to continue. While this report was made with the deepest regret, it was felt that no other report was possible.

A sent a strong and loyal delegation to the convention, and the discussion was earnest and protracted. The convention showed a disposition to give A every opportunity to "get into line," and the matter was again referred to the Council, with instructions permitting the retention of the charter under certain conditions which the chapter was required to fulfill. These conditions, however, were not fulfilled, and in the following spring the charter was finally surrendered.

The convention provided against loss of representation at classic Boston by granting a charter to applicants from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, who for two years had been knocking at our doors; and under the name of Σ T the new chapter was formally instituted by the Council. We have great reason to be proud of this strong and loyal chapter, which has grown to be a power in the Fraternity, and a shining example of what loyalty to Δ K E, devotion to her interests, and steady, determined work can accomplish.

Provision was also made for an official and uniform badge and for a ribbon in the Fraternity colors, the exclusive sale of each to be vested in the Council. No more important convention, either as to the number in attendance, the general interest manifested, or the character and importance of the business transacted, had been held by the Fraternity. Debate was very warm, and points of order were frequent. Had any other than "Teddy Smith" of O been in the chair discussion might at times have been acrimonious; but his unfailing good nature, his quick wit, and his excellent knowledge of parliamentary usage, were invaluable. In his death the Fraternity lost a valuable member, a loyal and enthusiastic Deke, a born organizer, and, above all, a lovable and loving brother. All who ever had the pleasure of even a slight acquaintance with him keep to this day a warm spot in their memory for one whose death was a real and heartfelt sorrow to us all.

Among the delegates present were Julian Hawthorne, Hon. Theodore Roosevelt and Stewart M. Brice, from A; J. W. Husted, Jr., from Φ; Rev. St. Clair Hester, from B; Charles H. Beckett, from Π; Edward Marshall Grout and Oscar R. Davis (the war correspondent at Manila), from M; Frank S. Williams, from N, and Tracy C. Drake, from Φ Ω. Public exercises were held in the Metropolitan Opera House, at which Charlton T. Lewis presided, an oration was given by Hon. W. L. Trenholm, Δ, '55, in place of Hon. Chas. S. Fairchild, A, '63, who was ill, and a poem was read by Julian Hawthorne, A, '67. The banquet at Delmonico's was wildly enthusiastic. Hon. Wager Swayne, Φ, '56, acted as toastmaster, and an ovation was given to Dr. E. B. Shapleigh, one of the founders, who was a speaker. Toasts were also given by Judge Sam F. Hunt, K, '64; Charlton T. Lewis, Φ, '53; Almon Goodwin, Θ, '62, and Judge Henry E. Howland, Φ, '54. It is feared that there was much loss of sleep in the neighborhood by reason of this banquet, for the yell of every college represented was given by its representatives in solo, then by a few helpers in semi-chorus, and before long by the full chorus of three hundred or more. Even Vassar, Smith and Wellesley were not slighted, though it is needless to say no representatives were present.

The Cleveland Alumni Association entertained the Forty-fifth Convention, which met at the Hollenden Hotel, Cleveland, November 11 and 12, 1891. Who that attended can ever forget that convention, and especially the "Lambda Punch"? There was a convention of Methodist Bishops going on in the house at the same time, but mirabile dictu, they were not confused with us. The subject of the Catalogue, which was nearly ready for distribution, occupied much of the time of the meetings. A recommendation was made that the membership of the Council be increased, but it was not adopted. Measures were taken looking toward the publication of a new song book, which even then was much needed by the Fraternity.

But the "punch"! Ah, yes, the "punch"! That was the social event of the Convention, though the public exercises and the banquet were both successful. Λ had appropriated the first night to herself, and her hospitality could be characterized in no other way than as lavish. Early in the evening the delegates began to gather in the large parlors of the Hollenden, where Λ had established her headquarters, and by the time some of us returned, who had been calling upon friends in the evening, the festivities were at their height. Who can describe the scene? Yet who can forget the picture? Among the rapidly moving pictures which came before us, the one that most impressed me was Pete Neff in his masterly impersonation of Sitting Bull. Even now I cannot recall it without a smile. But it is useless to attempt a description. Joy reigned supreme, and what with "the tables groaning under costly viands," the fountains gushing forth nectar for the delectation of all, and the earnest solicitude of every Λ man that each separate delegate eat and drink with him, to prove that he had received his share, it was a wonder to us that any from that chapter escaped to tell the tale.

At the public exercises Hon. W. E. Sherwood, B X, '72, presided, and an address of welcome by Mayor Rose, of Cleveland; a poem by Dr. A. C. Kemper, of Cincinnati, and an address by Judge Sam. F. Hunt, were given. Professor G. C. S. Southworth, Φ, '63, was the toastmaster at the banquet at the Hollenden, and toasts were given by Hon. Clarence Emir Allen, B X, '77; Hon. Granville P. Hawes, Θ, '60; Hon. Bryant Walker, O, '76; Judge W. E. Sherwood, B X, '72, and "The Smith-Family-Robinson," an organization destined to go down to posterity along with "Ψ Ω, Λ, Δ X."

The Forty-sixth Convention was held in the South, and the Southern Alumni Association, at Chattanooga, was the host. The sessions were held at the Mountain City Club, and the South's reputation for hospitality did not suffer in the least. It was emphatically a convention of new men. None of the "old timers," whose faces are seen at so many of our conventions, could be found here, with the exception of Secretary Simpson, Secretary Sherman of the Northwestern Association, and C. Murray Rice, "of the universe." The work was well planned, however, and a good deal was accomplished, the principal thing being the change in the method of selecting each year the chapters who elect the councillors. An earnest effort was made by students of the Northwestern University, at Evanston, to obtain a charter, but the convention could not be prevailed upon to give the matter favorable consideration. The application for a revival of Δ Δ, at Chicago, was also put over for a year, in spite of vigorous work on the part of the Chicago alumni to obtain the charter at this time. Permanent headquarters for the Fraternity during the World's Fair were selected at the Grand Pacific Hotel, which was offered by Tracy Drake; this proved to be of great interest and advantage to visiting Dekes.

The social features of this convention were unusual and very agreeable. On the day before the convention opened, the delegates visited the celebrated battle-grounds of Chickamauga, Missionary Ridge and Lookout Mountain. In the evening a reception was given to the delegates by the Pan-Hellenic organization at the Mountain City Club, of which representatives from many other fraternities were in charge. On Wednesday evening, public exercises were held in the Unitarian Church, where a very eloquent address was given by Dr. Gilbert Price, of Nashville, who was called upon unexpectedly to take the place of Hon. A. H. Pettibone, O, '59, who was ill. The next day the delegates enjoyed a drive to Lookout Mountain, where the convention photograph was taken. An aged negro acted as guide to the battlefield, and created much enthusiasm by pointing out "Lake Michigander," "De Norf Pole," and many other somewhat indistinct objects, which, he assured the boys, were plainly visible on a clear day.

On the last night the banquet was held at the Reed House, preceded by two hours of real old Southern negro melodies, sung by the Fisk Jubilee Singers, as they only can sing them. There was none of the modern rag-time trash, but the genuine plantation songs, which when sung by negroes are so plaintive and so thrilling. The toastmaster at the banquet was Hon. Chas. R. Head, K Ψ, '66, and the list of toasts was a long one, including responses by Hon. A. E. Buck, Ξ, '59; Hon. C. W. Frazer, X, '52, and Professor W. R. Webb, Φ, '53. When it was all over, it seemed superfluous to go to bed, so the boys proceeded to take the Mayor at his word when he told them in his address of welcome that the city was theirs, and so they "owned the town" until the rising sun gilded the top of Lookout Mountain.

The Alumni Association of the Northwest entertained the Forty-seventh Convention at Minneapolis, October 12 and 13, 1893. The business sessions were held in the Assembly Room of the West Hotel, with Brother Bradfield, of O, presiding. It being the year of the World's Fair, an informal reception was given by the Chicago Association at the Grand Pacific Hotel on Monday evening, and many of those who were passing through Chicago were present. On Wednesday evening a public reception was given to the delegates at the West Hotel, where a formal welcome was extended by Rev. E. P. Ingersoll, D. D., E, '55, of St. Paul, after which music and dancing filled the evening. Thursday afternoon was occupied by a drive, followed by a reception given by the A Φ Sorority, at the home of Miss Jessie Long. A ball was given in the evening, at which more than two hundred were present.

The social events did not occupy all of the time, by any means, for much business of importance was transacted. Applications for a charter from Northwestern University and for the revival of Δ Δ at Chicago were to receive final consideration, and excitement ran high. There was much question as to the propriety of instituting at the same time two chapters, especially in institutions so near together. All felt that the importance of the University of Chicago, as well as the fact that we had a chapter in the old institution, demanded that a chapter be formed there at the first opportunity; and the fine personnel of the applicants, added to these considerations was sufficient to secure favorable action. The prayer of Northwestern, however, was not granted, though the strength of the institution was acknowledged, and it was felt that the zeal of the applicants, who for three years had maintained an organization and had laid siege to the various conventions, deserved a better reward.

Much time was spent in the discussion of plans for a new edition of the Song Book, and a committee, of which St. Clair Hester, B, '88, was chairman, reported in favor of the Council's issuing a small pamphlet edition to serve until such time as the Fraternity was prepared to publish a complete song book, which report was adopted. The Constitution was amended, increasing the requirements for granting charters for new chapters, and an application for the revival of Θ X at Union was referred to the Council for investigation. The convention closed with a banquet on Friday evening, at which Cassius M. Ferguson, Θ, '74, was Toastmaster, and responses were given by Hon. Mark H. Dunnell, Ξ, '49; E. F. Waite, M, '80; St. Clair Hester, B, '88; Jesse Grant Roe, P, '87, and the ever-faithful Doc. Mitchell, Ξ, '84. All were delighted with the excellent time that had been given them by the Alumni Association and the Φ E Chapter. The only thing that "jarred" the boys was, after standing in a Minneapolis zephyr for half an hour, and looking their prettiest while a local photographer arranged, grouped and rearranged them for the convention photograph, to find the next day that he had forgotten to take out the slides, and the plates were blank.

Fifty years old! And what a record of progress the Semi-Centennial Convention, held with the Council in New York, Nov. 14–16, 1894, had to celebrate! No rival could show such a roll of honors as was ours. No other fraternity could compete with Δ K E in her rapid yet conservative growth, in the wide extent of the territory which she covered, the national character of her growth, and the carefulness with which she had planted her chapters only in colleges which had already won a leading place among educational institutions, and gave promise of maintaining their positions. In literature, in science, and in education she was the equal of the best of those other fraternities, to whom the march of years had naturally brought many honors in those departments of life. But in the record of patriotism during the trying times of the Civil War, there was no one who approached her; and when the noise of conflict had ceased, and the problems produced remained to be solved by our legislatures, it was then that Δ K E took the lead which she has always since maintained. No wonder, then, that when the Convention was called to order at Sherry's, on November 15th, it found the greatest attendance of delegates in our history. All the old war horses were assembled, and the fun was fast and furious.

The presidency naturally went to Φ, and Brother H. W. Hyde was duly elected to that office. The report of the Council showed that the Fraternity was in unusually good condition, being free from debt and with many of the chapters in their own houses. The principal business of the Convention related to the revival of Θ X at Union, the distribution of the unsold catalogues and the publication of a song book. The application of the students of Union College was denied, though after the stirring address of "Pop" Gleason, of the old Θ X, in their favor, it gave each chapter a feeling of sorrow to vote against them. The rest of the work of the Convention was entirely of fraternity interest, and cannot be discussed here.

Its social side was a most pronounced success. There was a reception on Wednesday evening at the Δ K E Club, 435 Fifth Avenue, where the presence of Dr. Wm. Boyd Jacobs, our only living founder, was the occasion of great rejoicing. A beautiful loving-cup of silver, made by Tiffany, was presented to him at this convention, a description of which, together with an excellent account of the convention, appears in Vol. XIII, No. 1, of the Quarterly. On Thursday the literary exercises were held at Sherry's. Hon. Charles S. Fairchild, A, '63, presided. A history of the Fraternity, "The Story of Δ K E," was read by Hon. John DeWitt Warner, Δ X, '72, which is one of the Fraternity's classics, as is also the oration of Hon. Samuel F. Hunt, K, '64. Together they form a most masterly history of Δ K E and an exposition of her object and aims. Charlton T. Lewis, Φ, '63, was the toastmaster at the banquet on Friday evening, and it was a feast of wit, eloquence and good-fellowship. Can any one who was there forget the loving honors paid to Dr. Jacobs when the cup was presented to him? The cheering was kept up for more than fifteen minutes. What was neater than the witty response of Daniel H. Clare, M, '59, to "The Ladies?" And what eye was dry when "Pop" Gleason, Θ X, '60, marshalled the "ghosts" of our old members and told as only he can tell of their gallant deeds in many walks of life?

Numerous smaller receptions and dinners were given by the Club, the N and Γ B Chapters and others, while many of the delegates closed the festivities by accepting Φ's invitation and going down on Saturday to pay their vows at the shrine of the old mother chapter.

Syracuse was the place of meeting of the Forty-ninth Convention, which assembled in the Yates Hotel, November 14, 1895. L. Brent Vaughan, of the newly organized Δ Δ Chapter, was elected President. There was little business of interest to the public for this Convention to act upon, the question of most general interest perhaps being the consideration of a movement which had been started at one of the two leading English universities to obtain a charter from Δ K E for the establishment of a chapter there. The question naturally provoked much discussion, with the result that the general sentiment of the convention seemed to be that the time was not ripe for extending the Fraternity beyond the American continent. The social features of this convention were most pleasing. Beginning with a reception to the delegates at the Century Club on the evening of the 13th, where Syracuse's society was out in force to extend its welcome, it was followed by public exercises at Crouse College Hall of Syracuse University, where Judge Irving G. Vann, Φ, 63, of the Court of Appeals, presided; a poem was read by Professor J. Scott Clark, Φ Γ, '77, and an oration was given by Hon. Solon W. Stevens, Y, '58. A smoker at the Φ Γ Chapter House closed the day.

On Friday afternoon three receptions were given to the delegates at the Chapter Houses of the sororities; A Φ, from four to five o'clock; Γ Φ B, from five to six, and K A Θ, from six to seven o'clock. No delegate could resist the charms of the beautiful young ladies, and even the most rabid opponents of co-education were obliged to admit that there were advantages which they had failed hitherto to appreciate. The banquet was held at the Yates on Friday evening, Hon. George Raines, B Φ, '66, acting as toastmaster, and charming all with his wit and eloquence. Toasts were given by Dr. A. N. Brockway, T, '57, President of the Council; L. Brent Vaughan, Δ Δ, '97, President of the Convention; Judge J. D. Teller, E, '67; Rev. E. M. Mills, Γ Φ, '72; Dr. E. O. Kinne, Φ Γ, '76, and others.

The Γ Chapter secured the 50th Convention, which was held at Nashville, Tenn., November 12 and 13, 1896, the business sessions being held at the Duncan House. Doc. Mitchell was on hand to act as Sergeant-at-Arms. Sherman of Chicago and Murray Rice of New York were his supporters, while Sawtelle of Σ T, Dearborn of N, Kelsey of T and Freund of O, whose faces were familiar to all who have attended more recent conventions, were very much in evidence here. The evening before the convention was devoted to an informal reception to the delegates. On Thursday evening a reception given by the ladies of Nashville at the University Club was a most brilliant success, and it is said that on the next morning Cupid found his quiver so sadly depleted of arrows, that, as he had no jackknife in his trousers pocket with which to whittle out some new ones, he was obliged to refrain from indulging in his peculiar sport for a whole week, while awaiting a fresh supply.

The convention was organized by the election of Maurice F. Connelly of Δ X as President. There was no business of general public interest, the time being occupied by the consideration of legislation concerning matters of internal policy alone. The delegates were taken to Vanderbilt University in tally-ho coaches after adjournment. In the evening there was the usual banquet to close the convention, Rev. J. R. Winchester, D. D., H A, '70, presiding, and Doc Mitchell acting as toastmaster.

The Fifty-first Convention was held with the Δ Δ Chapter and the Northwestern Alumni Association in Chicago, November 23 and 24, 1897, and it was what is known among the ignobile vulgus as a "hummer." As usual, Chicago never does things by halves, and from the moment the boys gathered in Δ Δ's beautiful Chapter House, and heard the sweet strains of "On the Banks of the Old Raritan-Joe Mann," until the last delegate left town (which was several days later), each Chicago Deke acted on the principle that the success of the convention depended on his personal efforts, and he spared no labor to make that success complete.

All the "old guard" were in attendance, and their numbers were reinforced by numerous applicants for membership in their ranks. Brother W. O. Sawtelle, Σ T, was elected president; H. W. Harrington, Σ, vice president, and, with the assistance of the secretaries, Spitzka, N, and W. G. Walling of Δ Δ, business was transacted very expeditiously. The sessions were held at the Palmer House. Several matters of fraternity interest were brought before the convention. The adoption of the official badge, with plain gold border instead of the chased border, was decided upon. Φ alone, as the mother chapter, was allowed to have the name of her college under the scroll. An application for a chapter at Tulane was considered, but action was deferred until the next convention. The question of extension of the Fraternity to Canada caused much discussion, but no definite action was taken. The report of the Council and the special committee upon the condition of the Fraternity aroused much interest and earnest consideration, the general prosperity of the chapters being a matter for hearty congratulation.

The Convention Ball, held at Bournique's, on Tuesday evening, was notable, and every delegate was loud in his praises of this beautiful entertainment. The banquet at the Palmer House, on Wednesday evening, was noteworthy for the unusual excellence of the responses. Major E. B. Tolman, Δ Δ, '80, was the toastmaster, and there were toasts by A. J. Hirschl, Σ, '73; Judge N. C. Griffin, Θ X, '59; David B. Simpson, Secretary of the Fraternity; W. O. Sawtelle, president of the convention, and Hon. A. J. Beveridge, Ψ Φ, '85. If we may be allowed to speak of one toast in particular, where all were excellent, it must be said that the address of Brother Beveridge on "The College Man in Politics" was one of the most eloquent and profound that any convention has had the privilege of hearing. Two new songs, "A Hot Time with the Old Crowd" and "El Capitan," aroused much enthusiasm. On Thursday (Thanksgiving Day) the delegates were taken to the Coliseum, where they witnessed a fine game of football between the universities of Michigan and Chicago. How any more business and entertainment could have been crowded into four days no delegate could even imagine.

One of the most important of the recent conventions was the Fifty-second, held at the Russell House, in Detroit, November 17 and 18, 1898, with O and the Detroit Alumni Association. Foremost in importance was the granting of a charter to the applicants from the University of Toronto, for by this act the Fraternity accepted the policy of extension beyond the limits of the United States, where the character of the application warrants it. The wisdom of this action no one now questions. It is in strict accordance with the policy of a fraternity at once the most progressive and the most rationally conservative in the land.

Every Deke knows the proverbial hospitality of Detroit, and on this occasion she fairly broke her record. A reception at the Detroit Club greeted the boys on the night before the convention, and before it was over all were old friends. Detroit is emphatically a Deke city, and the Dekes were all out. At the first session, Brother Chickering, Θ Z, was elected president. The Council was authorized to proceed forthwith with the publication of the Catalogue and Song Book. Then the application for a charter to Tulane was considered, and, after debate, was granted. Next came the Toronto application. The applicants were represented by Mr. Black and Mr. Douglas, whose excellent appearance did much toward conquering the prejudice which undoubtedly existed against institutions outside of the United States. So radical a departure from our traditional policy was, of course, the occasion of earnest discussion, but the wisdom of such course was recognized and the charter was voted. Petitions from the University of Cincinnati and Marshall College were denied.

The report of the Obituary Committee showed that during the year five of our brothers had lost their lives in the war with Spain, including the first officer of the army killed in the war, Surgeon John B. Gibbs, Φ X, '78.

On the afternoon of November 17 a reception to the delegates was given at the residence of Hon. Dexter M. Ferry, and in the evening a ball at Philharmonic Hall was thoroughly enjoyed. The next afternoon there was a trolley ride to the Country Club, where an elaborate luncheon was served. In the evening came the banquet, at the Russell House, with Henry Russell, O, '73, as toastmaster. Toasts were given by Hon. Claudius B. Grant, O, '59, Chief Justice of the Michigan Supreme Court; United States Senator John Patton, Jr., Φ, '75; Dr. A. N. Brockway, T, '57, of the Council; President Allen L. Chickering, Θ Z, '98; Hon. Louis Barbour, O, '63, Regent of the University, and Mayor W. C. Maybury, O, '70, of Detroit. The next day closed the entertainment by a special trolley ride to Ann Arbor, where the delegates were received and fed at O's beautiful house.

The last convention of the century, the Fifty-third, was held with the Σ Chapter of Amherst College, Springfield Mass., November 16 and 17, 1899. It fittingly closed the period. There was a large attendance of delegates, every chapter but one being represented, and that chapter failing in representation only by reason of an alumnus who had been delegated being called away at the last moment. The Council was represented by President Frank S. Williams, N, '78; the Secretary, David B. Simpson, P, '86; John B. Ekeley, M, '91; John H. Safford, E, '84, and A. G. Warren, B Φ, '83. Dr. F. D. Mitchell, Ξ, '84, another member of the old guard, was also in attendance. Clarence G. McDavitt, Π, '00, was elected President, and the two new chapters, at Tulane and Toronto, were represented for the first time. The attendance was so large that the hotel selected for the headquarters was unable to keep the delegates, and they had to be divided among the other hotels of the town. Among the familiar faces were Sawtelle, Σ T; Spitzka, N; Walling, Δ Δ, and Harold Walker, Σ. The principal work of the convention was the granting of a charter to the petitioners from the University of Pennsylvania. The conservative spirit which had been growing in the Fraternity was fearful of the difficulties which would surround a chapter in an institution which was already the home of a number of flourishing chapters of rival fraternities. But the hearty endorsement of our sole surviving founder, Wm. Boyd Jacobs, Dr. John Bach McMaster, Gov. Roosevelt, and many others was sufficient to overcome all opposition, and the charter was granted without a dissenting vote. The chairman of the council committee on the new Catalogue, Jno. B. Ekeley, announced that the Catalogue would be ready for distribution during the ensuing year, though in this case it was not a biographical catalogue, but merely a list of names, addresses and occupations, with a table of geographical distribution. Mr. Warren, the editor of the Song Book, also reported that that publication was to be ready for distribution on the 1st day of January, and announced that the prizes in the song competition had been awarded as follows,—"We Sing of Δ K E," to Wm. Gray Harris, Γ Φ. Second, "Sons of Δ K E," to W. A. R. Kerr, A Φ. Third, "El Capitan Marching Song," to Arthur H. Nason, Θ.

At the fraternity dinner held at the Russell House on the evening of the 17th, the Hon. B. Chapin (Σ, '91), Mayor of Holyoke, was the toastmaster, and toasts were given by Hon. John D. Henderson, of T; Mase S. Southworth, of Φ; Prof. Wm. L. Cowles, of Σ; Prof. Brainard Kellogg, of A A, and Frank S. Williams, of N.

The chapter at the University of Pennsylvania was installed Saturday evening, December 9, 1899, as the Δ K chapter, under the direction of Brother Warren, of the Council, with Rev. J. Thompson Cole, H, and Rev. Herbert J. Cook, Σ, as Chaplains. The ceremony took place in the large hall in the anterooms of the Odd Fellows Temple, and was marked by the presence of the Nestor of the Fraternity, Wm. Boyd Jacobs, Geo. R. Wales, A A, and twelve members of the Washington Alumni Association, Frank S. Williams, John B. Ekeley and A. G. Warren, of the Council, a delegation of undergraduates from P, Φ X, N, B Φ, Γ B and A X. There were many expressions of admiration from the alumni at the beauty, dignity and solemnity of the ritual which was used on this occasion. The dinner which followed the installation was a fitting introduction of Δ K E to staid old Philadelphia. Judge Robt. N. Willson, Φ, '60, acted as toastmaster, and responses were made by Hon. De Alva S. Alexander, Θ, '70; Major-General Matthew C. Butler, Δ, '57; Hon. Chas. A. Prouty, Π, '75; Dr. John B. McMaster, N, '72; Hon. Robt. W. Tayler, B X, '72, and John S. Conway of the new Δ K chapter.

The end of the century found the Fraternity thoroughly organized, with all its chapters in flourishing condition, with one chapter planted beyond the limits of the United States, and with another just established in the University of Pennsylvania, while a large majority of the old chapters were living in their own homes, built for the most part for their use. The future prosperity of the Fraternity seemed assured.

CHAPTER VII

THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

THE year Nineteen Hundred was marked by the appearance of both the new Catalogue and the new fraternity Song Book, publications which were received with marked favor by the Fraternity. The Fifty-fourth Convention was held with the Υ Chapter at Providence, R. I., November 14–16, 1900, and every chapter except two was represented by official delegates. The occasion marked also the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Υ Chapter, so that it was more of a gala occasion than the ordinary business convention. On Thursday evening a very brilliant reception was given at the Trocadero, with an attendance of more than six hundred.

The most important business of the convention was the granting of a charter to the petitioners from McGill University at Montreal, Canada, which was organized January 12, 1901, as the Τ Α chapter. The banquet was held on Friday evening at the Trocadero with over two hundred present. A handsome silver loving-cup was presented to the Υ Chapter by the Alumni Association of Providence, as a memento of the Fiftieth Anniversary. Wm. Allan Dyer, Υ, '86, President of the Association, acted as toastmaster, and toasts were given by President Edward H. McGill (Υ, '52, Φ, '54) President of Swarthmore College; Chief Justice John H. Stiness, Υ, '61, of the Rhode Island court; Chas. F. Mathewson, Π, '82; Aldice G. Warren, Β Φ, '83, President of the Council; Jesse Grant Roe, Ρ, '87, Editor of the Quarterly; Willoughby G. Walling, Δ Δ, '99, President of the Convention; Hon. Andrew J. Jennings, '72, and Geo. F. Tucker, '73, both of Υ.

The installation of Τ Α at Montreal on January 12th was the most elaborate of any ceremony which had marked the beginning of a new chapter. The Council was represented by President A. G. Warren, Brothers Richard T. Greene, Frank S. Williams, and Dr. Brockway, Editor of the Catalogue; the sister Canadian chapter, Α Φ, sent a delegation of sixteen members, and four other chapters were also represented. The new chapter started under the most favorable auspices, and the Fraternity seemed to be establishd in Canada on a very firm foundation.

The Washington Alumni Association entertained the Fifty-fifth Convention, December 11–13, 1901. It had been fourteen years since our convention had met in Washington, and the brethren at the helm determined to make it a memorable occasion. The headquarters of the convention were at the New Willard, which had been the scene of meeting of three previous conventions. Every chapter of the Fraternity was represented by official delegates, and among the duly accredited delegates, besides the undergraduates, appeared such war horses as Hon. M. H. Dunnell, Ξ, '49; Hon. Hilary A. Herbert, Ψ, '56; Prof Brainard Kellogg, A A, '58, and B. W. Sherman, A A, '90, representing the Chicago Alumni Association, while there was an echo of ante-bellum times when on the roll call Virginius Dabney answered for H — though it was the son of "V." Dabney, whose name is so intimately associated with H's history. The three days of the convention were replete with both business and pleasure. There was the usual smoker on Wednesday evening; Thursday after the first session of the convention, Brother John D. Long, A, '57, the Secretary of the Navy, gave a reception to the delegates at his office. Thursday evening the delegates attended a theatre party, and afterward a supper in the Rathskeller. At the close of the business session on Friday receptions were given by Senator Frye, the President pro tem. of the Senate, and Congressman Henderson, the Speaker of the House; and on Friday afternoon a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon was made.

Two matters of Fraternity importance were acted upon by the convention, and its action was unanimous; a charter was given to the applicants from Stanford University, and the election of honorary members was forbidden by a strong amendment to the Constitution.

On Friday evening came the banquet, the crowning feature of the convention. Hon. Charles A. Prouty, Π, '75, a member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, presided; grace was said by Rev. Dr. Randolph H. McKim, H, '59, Rector of St. John's Church, and toasts were responded to by Major-General Matthew C. Butler, Δ, '57; Richard T. Greene, Φ X, '89, President of the Council; Howard S. Harrington, Γ B, '99, President of the Convention; Charlton T. Lewis, Φ, '53; Congressman Robert W. Tayler, B X, '72, of Ohio; Hon. Hilary A. Herbert, Ψ, '56, Ex-Secretary of the Navy; A. N. Mitchell, A Φ, '99; Mun Yew Chung, Φ, '83, of the Chinese Legation; Dr. Wm. H. Hawkes, Y, '67, of the Washington Alumni Association, and Hon. Mark H. Dunnell, Ξ, '49. The banquet was closed very gracefully by the presentation to the two Canadian chapters, of the American and British flags which had been used as a decoration for the Convention room, the American flag going to T A of McGill, and the British flag to A Φ of Toronto.

The flag of Δ K E was planted on another outpost on the Pacific coast on Saturday evening, February 28, 1902, when the Σ P chapter at Leland Stanford, Jr., University was duly installed pursuant to the authority given by the Washington convention when a charter was granted. The ceremonies were under the direction of the Θ Z chapter of the University of California, whose undergraduate members went down to Stanford University in a body and transformed the house of Σ P H, the name under which the petitioning body had been organized, into a temple of Δ K E. Prof. Martin Kellogg, Φ, '50, the venerable Ex-president of the University of California, delivered a very solemn and impressive charge to the new chapter, and gave the greatly prized charter into their keeping. The ceremonies closed with a dinner to the new organization at which about seventy guests sat down. The event of greatest social importance during the year was the dinner tendered by the Γ B chapter to Hon. Whitelaw Reid, K, '56, just before his departure for England as a special Ambassador of the United States at the coronation of King Edward. The speeches on that occasion were glowing tributes to the services of Brother Reid, who, as Ambassador to France during President Harrison's administration, and as one of the Commissioners who negotiated the treaty with Spain at the close of the war in 1898, had been of great service to the interests of his country.

The Fifty-sixth Convention met with the Memphis Alumni Association and the X Chapter at Memphis, Tenn., November 13 and 14, 1903. While matters of importance were brought before the convention, they were largely matters of detail and not of general historic interest. Matthew C. Brush, Σ T, was chosen president, and the Council was represented by its president, Dr. H. B. Wilcox, Φ, '02; Harry Stewart Hall, Γ B, '98, and the secretary of the Fraternity, Brother Simpson. Applications were received from students at the Washington University, of St. Louis, and the University of Texas, but the general sentiment of the delegates was that extension in these colleges was not desirable, though the applications were referred to the Council for investigation. The convention was closed with the usual dinner at the Hotel Gayoso.

The college year was marked by the death of four veterans of the Fraternity who had been numbered among her most loyal alumni, General Wager Swayne, Φ, '56; Hon. Josiah H. Drummond, Ψ, '46; Judge Wm. Rumsey, E, '66, and Hon. Wilson S. Bissel, Φ, '69, Postmaster General under President Cleveland. The year marked also a change in the fraternities at Yale, by which the Junior Societies, Δ K E, Ψ Y, and A Δ Φ, changed their organization so that instead of being merely Junior societies, they now elected members from the Sophomore class, and gave three years of fraternity life with active membership from the three upper classes. The change was a radical one and its results have been of great benefit to the fraternities.

Syracuse entertained the Fifty-seventh Convention which met with the Central New York Association, and Φ Γ Chapter, November 11–14, 1903. It was a thoroughly business convention, though the social side was by no means neglected. On Thursday evening a reception at Φ Γ's beautiful chapter house was tendered to the delegates at which the flower of Syracuse's society was present. The business sessions were of great interest, H. C. Williamson, Jr., X, having been elected president. The applications of Washington University and the University of Texas, which had been referred to the Council by the last convention, were disapproved, but a new application from the Sphinx Club, an organization at the University of Illinois, was received with some favor, and was referred to the Council for investigation. The convention closed with the usual banquet at the Yates, at which nearly two hundred brothers were in attendance.

Our ranks during the year were again depleted by the loss of a number of our most influential alumni, of whom mention can be made only of Thos. U. Dudley, H, '55, the Bishop of Kentucky; Judge Jonas Hutchinson, Φ, '63; Dr. Wm. H. Hawkes, Y, '67, the popular secretary of the Washington Alumni Association; Prof. Jacob Cooper, Φ, '52; Charlton T. Lewis, Φ, '53, whose services in the New York Club and at the various conventions can never be forgotten, and Hon. Mark H. Dunnell, Ξ, '49.

The year also marked the dissolution of the New York Club, founded soon after the organization of the Δ K E Council, and a source of great strength to the Fraternity for many years. It was found that the colleges from which a large proportion of its membership was drawn maintained in New York alumni clubs, that were able to provide many advantages which a fraternity club was not large enough to furnish. This led to a decrease in membership and a change of quarters in an attempt to economize in expenses. At last the people who had been most influential in its organization decided that it was better not to attempt to carry on a club under such conditions, so in the fall of 1903 it was dissolved.

On January 30, 1904, at a meeting held at the University Club in New York, the Δ K E Association of New York was organized to take the place, as far as an association could, of the old club. Whitelaw Reid was elected president, Charlton T. Lewis, Col. John J. McCook, Dr. John P. Munn and Frederick B. Jennings, vice presidents; Jas. Anderson Hawes, secretary, and Walter B. Safford, treasurer. The new Association made its bow to the Fraternity at a dinner at Delmonico's on April 15th, which was a great success. Charlton T. Lewis made his last appearance in the Fraternity, acting as toastmaster on that occasion, only a little more than a month before his death. Among the speakers were Robt. E. Peary, Chas. F. Matthewson, Hon. Edw. M. Grout, and Col. John J. McCook. This was the first of a series of public dinners of great importance to the Fraternity which have been held under the auspices of the new Association.

The Fifty-eighth Convention met at the Auditorium Hotel in Chicago, November 17 and 18, 1904, under the auspices of Δ Δ and the Northwestern Association. It seemed, to many, like old times to assemble again in Chicago. Julius A. Migel, M, '05, was elected president, and Doc. Mitchell again occupied his old post as sergeant-at-arms. The Council was represented by President Henry R. Danner, Φ X, '92, and Secretary Simpson. The application for a charter at the University of Illinois, which had been put over from the last convention, was favorably reported upon by the Council, and received the honor of a unanimous vote in the convention.

A reception was given on Thursday evening, and on Friday a tally-ho ride to the University of Chicago and a reception at the Δ Δ House, at the close of the business session. At the banquet on Friday evening, Prof. Geo. E. Vincent, Φ, '85, acted as toastmaster, being introduced by Willoughby G. Walling, Δ Δ, '99, the president of the Northwestern Association. Responses were made by Judge Richard S. Tuthill, A A, '63; Prof. Albion W. Small, Φ, '76; Commander Robt. E. Peary, Θ, '79; Prof. Jos. C. Pickard, Θ, 46, and Julius A. Migel, M, '04, the president of the convention.

The installation of the new Δ Π Chapter at the University of Illinois was held on December 17, 1904. The chapter was instituted by Henry S. Danner, President of the Council, assisted by a delegation from Δ Δ, and of course according to fraternity custom, the festivities concluded with a dinner. A dinner was also tendered by the New York Δ K E Association to its president, Hon. Whitelaw Reid, the new Ambassador to England, on February 14, 1905, at the Waldorf-Astoria. Hon. Henry E. Howland, Φ, '54, acted as president, and a most eloquent response was made by Brother Reid after his health had been proposed. Toasts were also given by Judge Vernon M. Davis, N, '76; Jas. Russell Soley, A, '79; Roswell P. Burchard, N, '80, and Hon. Hugh R. Garden, Δ, '60.

On March 30, 1905, occurred the death of the last of that band of Yale men who in 1844 founded Δ K E, Wm. Boyd Jacobs of Philadelphia. His death occurred at his summer home at Windsor, Vermont, after a long illness. By his will he bequeathed to the Fraternity the silver loving-cup presented to him at the Semi-Centennial Convention of the Fraternity in 1894.

N, Γ B, and the New York Δ K E Association entertained the Fifty-ninth Convention which met at the Waldorf-Astoria, November 8–10, 1905. As usual at New York the attendance was very large. M. B. Sands, of Φ, was the president of the convention, and among those on the floor were the familiar faces of Brothers Burchard, Williams, Spitzka, Dr. Brockway, Edward M. Grout, Fred Dearborn, and others, while the Washington Association was represented by Brothers Wales and Langworthy. Preliminary work upon the new Catalogue was authorized by the convention, and an application from a body of young men at the University of Wisconsin was presented by Rev. Bro. Fred T. Galpin, B Φ, and M, '94, and referred to the Council for investigation.

One of the matters which was brought to the attention of the Convention, and upon which action was taken, was the accidental killing on October 28, 1905, of Stuart L. Pierson, a Freshman at Kenyon College, while awaiting initiation into the Λ chapter. A great deal of public feeling had been roused by the action of the coroner at Fredericktown, ten miles away, who went to Cincinnati, made an examination of the body, and issued statements of a highly sensational character to the press. A committee was appointed by the Convention to investigate the whole occurrence, and they received statements from the members of the Λ Chapter, who were deeply affected by the accident, from N. L. Pierson, Λ, '80, the father of the boy who was killed, who was a member of the Λ Chapter and was present to take part in his son's initiation, and from President Pierce of Kenyon College, who was not a Δ K E. The facts as ascertained by this committee were as follows:

The young man had been told to meet the committee that would lead him to the lodge for initiation, at a certain railroad bridge at nine o'clock on Friday evening. Young Pierson had expected his father the night before on a train due at two o'clock in the morning, but as this had been delayed by a wreck, he did not arrive until six o'clock in the morning, and the boy, who was up all night and busy all the following day, was worn out with fatigue on Saturday night. He was with his father all day Saturday and told him his instructions. About a quarter before nine he left his father to meet the committee at the bridge; the committee was delayed until twenty minutes to ten, and did not reach there until ten o'clock, when they found his mangled body near the end of the bridge. Hearing a train approaching, they barely succeeded in carrying the body off the bridge before the second train reached there. No doubt the worn-out young man had seated himself upon the railroad track, and in his weariness had fallen asleep and was run over by the train which passed before the committee arrived. The coroner who examined the body gave out the unwarranted statement that the boy had been tied and placed upon the track. The press all over the country took up the matter and severely criticised both the chapter and President Pierce of Kenyon, though both the chapter and the President encouraged from the first the fullest investigation. Even the father was blamed and was accused of attempting to cover up the facts of his son's death because of his loyalty to the Fraternity. The committee of alumni appointed by the convention to investigate the matter made a report exonerating the Λ Chapter from responsibility for the accident, and expressing their confidence in the chapter which had been subjected to such harsh and unjust criticism, and this report was unanimously adopted by the convention.

The social events of the convention consisted of a smoker at the Γ B Chapter House on Wednesday night, a theatre party at the Hippodrome, followed by a welsh rarebit supper at Shanley's, given by the N Chapter, a boat trip around Manhattan Island on Friday afternoon, and the convention dinner on Friday evening in the large ball room of the Waldorf-Astoria. Col. John J. McCook, Λ, '66, was toastmaster, and responses were made by Hon. H. A. Herbert, Ψ, '56; Rev. David J. Burrell, D. D., Φ, '67; Hon. David J. Foster, Φ, '80; Senator Matthew C. Butler, Δ, '57; Merrill D. Sands, Φ, '06, president of the convention; J. D. Knapp, T A, '00, president of the Council; Andrew W. Gleason, Θ, '60, and Hon. E. R. Merritt, Φ, '84.

The Sixtieth Convention met at the Cooley House, Springfield, Mass., November 14–16, 1906, with Σ and E. While there was no elaborate programme of entertainment, the business sessions were of great importance, thirty-nine of the forty-one chapters were represented, and fully two hundred and fifty loyal Dekes from all parts of the land were present. Frank H. Philbrick, of Δ X was made president. A charter was unanimously granted to the local society of P Δ Φ at the University of Wisconsin, to be known as the P Δ Chapter. A new edition of the Song Book was authorized, the edition published in 1900 having been exhausted. Applications were received from the Emanon Club of Indiana State University, and from bodies of students at Worcester Polytechnic Institute and the University of Cincinnati, but these were referred for investigation to the Council, which was represented by President Wm. A. McQuaid, Φ, '89, and Secretary Simpson. The convention dinner was held on Friday evening at Cooley's, with Col. John J. McCook, Λ, '66, acting as toastmaster, and responses being made by Prof. Carroll L. Maxcy, E, '87; Melvil Dewey, Σ, '74; Hon. Samuel L. Powers, Φ, '74; the president of the council, the president of the convention, and others.

The P Δ Chapter was duly installed in the University of Wisconsin on December 22, 1906, Brother Henry R. Danner, Φ X, '91, acting for the Council. Seventeen charter members were initiated and celebrated their admission by a dinner which was held at the close.

On January 12, 1907, occurred the death of Judge Samuel Furman Hunt, K, '64, whose services in the re-establishment of the K chapter, and in orations and addresses at fraternity conventions will not soon be forgotten.

On January 16, 1907, the New York Δ K E Association tendered a congratulatory dinner to Robt. E. Peary, Θ, '77, who had carried with him to the point farthest north yet reached by man the Δ K E flag presented to him by the Northwestern Association in Chicago, before he set out on his dash for the pole. While he was the star of the occasion, the honors were shared also with Ambassador Whitelaw Reid, who, being home from England on a vacation, was present at the dinner. Hon. George C. Holt, Φ, '67, acted as toastmaster. Commander Peary gave a most interesting account of his journey, in which, though he failed to reach the pole, he penetrated the icy regions further than man had ever been before. Responses were made also by Gen. Horace E. Porter, Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, Jr., Φ, '96, Hon. Whitelaw Reid and Col. John. J. McCook.

Among the alumni whose deaths during the year Δ K E was called to mourn were Prof. R. Ogden Doremus, of N; Hon. Geo. A. Marden, Π, '61, and Oscar W. Erdall, Γ B, '00.

The Sixty-first Convention met at the Seelbach Hotel, Louisville, Ky., November 13–15, 1907, under the auspices of the I and Γ Chapters. All the chapters were represented but two. R. G. Estee of Γ B was elected president. No business of importance, except in matters of fraternity routine, was transacted, and no charters were granted, though a number of applications had been received. The dinner on Friday evening was presided over by President Jas. Lewis Howe, Σ, '72, of Washington and Lee University, to whom a loving-cup was presented by the alumni of the I Chapter, as a mark of appreciation of the services he rendered in the reorganization of that chapter after the Civil War. A most witty response to the toast "Raising a Kid for Δ K E" was made by Brother Muir Weissinger, Γ, '88, and toasts were also given by Senator Jos. B. McCreary, K Ψ, '59; Mr. Wm. H. James, K, '00; Frank S. Williams, Henry S. Danner, and others.

On February 20, 1908, the New York Alumni Association gave a dinner to the Dekes of the old South at Delmonico's. Among the representatives of the old South present were two veterans, Dr. Geo. Tucker Harrison, H, '55, and Capt. Hugh R. Garden, Δ, '60. It was a touching exhibition of the hold which the Fraternity has upon all its members, from the youngest to the oldest. Frederick B. Jennings, E, '72, the president of the association, acted as toastmaster. The response of Judge Chas. H. Beckett, Π, '81, to "The Dekes of the Old South," was an address of such eloquence, earnestness and pathos that it has become one of the fraternity classics. The reminiscences of Dr. Harrison and Capt. Garden, as well as the ringing speech of Dr. St. Clair Hester, B, '88, on the New South, made this one of the most memorable occasions in the history of Δ K E in New York City. The Fraternity was called to mourn the death during the year of Wm. L. Alden, P, '58, the well-known journalist, and Edward Wells, Jr., Φ, '84, formerly Secretary of the Fraternity.

The Sixty-second Convention will go down in history. It was an innovation from the fact that it was held at three different places. It surpassed all precedents in points of numbers, and was one of the most enthusiastic and successful ever held. It started in New Haven on November 11, 1909, continued at Hartford, November 12 and 13, and finished at New York, November 13. The hosts at New Haven and Hartford were Φ and A X, and at New York, the New York Alumni Association in conjunction with those two chapters. A special car from New York brought about fifty alumni on Wednesday afternoon to join with the undergraduates already assembled at the Φ Chapter House in New Haven in a smoker, where the enthusiasm began. After midnight the entire party went to Hartford, which they reached at 3 o'clock Thursday morning. The business sessions began at 10:30 Thursday morning, when John T. Whiting of O was elected president. Applications were received from students at Stevens Institute of Technology, New York University, the University of Washington and New Hampshire College of Mechanical Arts, but none of them received favorable consideration. The principal business which came before the convention was in regard to the publication of a new Catalogue. An elaborate plan had been worked out and was presented by the Council, represented by the President, Dr. St. Clair Hester, and Secretary Simpson. The thanks of the Fraternity were given to Dr. A. Norton Brockway of T, the former editor of the Catalogue. A tax was imposed upon the chapters for the preliminary work of collecting data for the new Catalogue, and the Council was authorized to employ an editor to carry on the work. After the resolution was passed, Dr. Hester reported the appointment of Aldice G. Warren, B Φ, '83, as such editor, and the convention promised him the heartiest support of the Fraternity in the work. A radical change from the previous custom of the Fraternity was made in the authorization of a plan to equalize the traveling expenses of all delegates to the convention, so that in future the expense to a chapter would be no greater to send a delegate from California than to send one from Columbia.

The dinner on Friday evening at the Waldorf-Astoria was the greatest one in the history of the Fraternity. Nearly eight hundred were present, more than four hundred and fifty of whom were alumni. The Waldorf-Astoria had never seen such a gathering of college men, and no one who attended this dinner will ever forget it. Among the guests were the presidents of three Δ K E Alumni Associations, Rev. Dr. Wm. H. VanAllen, A A and Φ Γ, '90, of the New England Association, Judge Ashley M. Gould, Σ, '81, of the Washington Association, and Hon. S. Davis Page, Φ, '59, of the Philadelphia Association. Judge Vernon M. Davis, N, '76, presided. Regrets were read from President Roosevelt, A, '80; Ambassador Reid, K, '56; Secretary of the Navy, Metcalf, Φ, '76; Solicitor-General Henry M. Hoyt, Φ, '74, and U. S. Senators Lodge, A, '71, and Beveridge, Ψ Φ, '85. Responses were made by Senator Frank B. Brandegee, Φ, '85, of Connecticut; Judge Beckett, Π, '81, of New York; Rev. Karl G. Reiland, A X, '97; Chas. F. Mathewson, Π, '82, and Dr. St. Clair Hester, B, '88, representing the Council.

The Sixty-third Convention was held with the Δ K Chapter, November 10–12, 1909, at the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel, Philadelphia, in celebration of the tenth anniversary of the founding of the chapter. Several matters of importance were acted upon by the convention; Tyler T. Henshaw of Θ Z was elected president. The new system of equalization of delegates' expenses was tried for the first time and worked to perfection, every chapter of the Fraternity being represented. In order to increase the representative character of the Council and to provide for more frequent representation of the various chapters, the number of councillors was increased to nine by constitutional amendment, and the conservative character of the Fraternity was emphasized by another amendment which renders necessary affirmative action by two successive conventions in order that a charter may be granted for a new chapter. Applications from the University of Indiana, Louisiana State University, and the University of Washington were received with considerable favor, but no action was taken upon them except to refer them to the Council for further investigation. At the banquet held on Friday evening, S. Davis Page, Φ, '59, the President of the Philadelphia Association, presided, and Noah H. Swayne, 2nd, Φ, '93, acted as toastmaster. Responses were made by Hon. Geo. E. McLean, E, '71, President of the State University of Iowa; Hon. Chas. A. Prouty, Π, '75, member of the Interstate Commerce Commission; Judge Chas. B. McMichael, A, '70, and Hon. Jos. N. Kennard, M, '82.

The most important event of the year was the dinner tendered to Commander Robt. E. Peary, Θ, '77, in commemoration of his discovery of the north pole, and of his planting thereon along with the flag of his country, a flag of Δ K E. The great ball room of the Hotel Astor was crowded by more than six hundred alumni. A loving-cup was presented to Commander Peary by the association, and a very loyal response was given. Hon. A. Barton Hepburn presided, and Commander Peary gave a most interesting account of his journey to the pole, exhibiting pictures which showed in the most graphic way the hardships which he was obliged to encounter, and the difficulties which had to be overcome. On the wall opposite the speakers' table hung the Δ K E flag which had been presented to Commander Peary by the association before his departure, and which he had carried with him to the pole. Toasts were also responded to by Admiral Murdock; Dr. Alfred E. Burton, Θ, '77, Dean of Massachusetts School of Technology, who was a classmate of Commander Peary's in college; Hon. Norris G. Osborn, Φ, '80; and Capt. Ted Coy of Φ and the Yale Football team, 1909.

CHAPTER VIII

GENERAL FRATERNITY INTERESTS

THE foregoing chapters have been devoted to a discussion of the conventions and the most striking events which have occurred. growth and progress of Δ K E year by year, as shown by the annual There are, however, certain facts which are most vital, and which mark her advance along material lines, though such advance can be seen best by a study of her whole history or that of a period. A few of these facts we shall now briefly review.

FRATERNITY PUBLICATIONS.

As we have seen from the foregoing history, one of the earliest publications of the Fraternity was a catalogue of its members. The first Catalogue was published by Φ in 1851 and consisted merely of a list of the names and addresses of the members of the few chapters which were then in existence. In 1857 a second Catalogue of similar nature was published, both of these being small pamphlets, but serving well the purposes for which they were produced, and again in 1874 a catalogue appeared which was a much more pretentious publication. It contained in addition to the names and occupations of the various members, a cipher indicating the offices which they held while active members of the various chapters. No further catalogue appeared until the monumental one of 1890. This was a work of the utmost importance to the Fraternity and required an enormous amount of labor to collect and arrange the materials which were used in it. No one who has not been engaged in work of that character can appreciate the enormous amount of labor, the patience required in tracing members of whom all traces had been lost, and the great expense connected with the undertaking. Brother Fisher set a standard for fraternity catalogues, which not only Δ K E but other fraternities also have found it difficult to attain.

The last catalogue which was issued by the Fraternity before the present edition was the Catalogue of 1900. This was undertaken by a committee of the Council composed of John B. Ekeley, Dr. A. Norton Brockway, John H. Safford, Herbert B. Wilcox, and Charles H. Judd. Brother Ekeley was the chairman of the committee, and held that position until June 1900, when he went to Europe to take a course of study in Germany, and Dr. A. Norton Brockway was elected editor of the Catalogue. The Council decided not to attempt so pretentious a work as the Catalogue of 1890, but contented themselves with a list of names, occupations and addresses, and a geographical and a name index. The present catalogue is intended to be more nearly akin to the Catalogue of 1890, but omits many of the tables which were contained in that book. One of the greatest difficulties in the production of works of this nature is the great expense attached to it, and it is only by the most careful management that such works can be produced without involving the Fraternity in debt.

The second publication which has borne the imprint of the Fraternity is the Song Book. Among the earliest of the productions of our members have been songs written to celebrate the glories of the Fraternity and to sing its praises. Many of these songs have been of excellent literary character and have been set to music which has tended to popularize them in the Fraternity.

A number of editions of the Song Book have been issued. The earlier ones were quite small, and it was not until 1871 that a thoroughly good edition appeared. At that time a book containing 154 songs with the music to the most of them was printed, and obtained a wide circulation in the Fraternity. From that time until 1900 no further edition appeared, except a small pamphlet containing 42 of the most popular songs and the music of only seven of them. This was intended as a makeshift until a complete edition of the songs could be issued. In 1899 the Council appointed the present editor of the Catalogue, editor of the new Song Book, and in 1900 the new edition appeared, containing 100 songs, among which were all in the edition of 1871 that had achieved a lasting hold upon the Fraternity, and a number of new songs which were written for the book. It was tastefully bound in the fraternity colors. The edition was soon exhausted, and it became necessary to issue a second edition in 1907. A number of instrumental pieces have been written for the Fraternity, the best known and most popular of which are the Δ K E March written by Alfred H. Pease of A, and the Δ K E Waltz written by Lewis S. Thompson, A.

The first number of the Δ K E Quarterly appeared in January, 1883 and was a very attractive magazine from the beginning. John DeWitt Warner, Δ X, '72, was its first editor, and the standard which he established has ever since been maintained. In October, 1887, Edward Wells, Jr., of Φ, was appointed editor, and held that position for two years, when he was succeeded in January, 1890, by David G. Downey of Γ Φ. In 1892 Bro. Downey was succeeded by Walter B. Safford and Sanborn Gove Tenney, who acted as editors for the next two years, and were in turn succeeded by the present editor, Jesse Grant Roe in 1894. Since that time Brother Roe has continued to act as editor, and has maintained the magazine upon the old lines which were first laid out, namely, to make it a means for disseminating news of the Fraternity, and not as a literary journal. For this reason its contents have been restricted almost entirely to chapter letters, alumni notes, convention reports and matters of peculiar interest to the members of Δ K E. It has become firmly established as the organ of the Fraternity, and means are under consideration for effectively endowing it so that its future success will be assured.

FRATERNITY HERALDRY.

One of the earliest acts of the new Fraternity at Yale, was the adoption of an embryonic system of fraternity heraldry, and the earliest fraternity publication, the catalogue of 1851, displayed the Δ K E escutcheon in her frontispiece, substantially as it appears to-day in the arms of Φ. A description of these arms, and their significance, is reproduced from an article in Vol. III of the Quarterly by Franklin W. Lantz, Ψ Φ, '70.

"The armorial achievement of Δ K E came to be employed for the purpose to which heraldic devices have been applied by the almost uniform practice of the race. Since the first assumption of the arms, they have undergone some modifications, in accordance with the edicts of the Fraternity, but not enough to affect their identity, nor more than many of the historic coats of the world. Such changes as have been made have had in view the greater beauty and heraldic significance of the arms, and have been carried out in the spirit of the development which has completed the whole scheme of Δ K E armory, and settled it in the shape that it will permanently retain."

It was not until after the organization of the Council, however, that a general system of chapter heraldry was worked out, largely through the aid of Bro. Lantz, and these recommendations were adopted by the convention and appropriate devices selected by the various chapters. In explanation of the general system, and the manner in which it was worked out for our own uses, the article of Bro. Lantz is again freely used.

"In studying the significance of the arms, it is necessary to observe the methods of the science, so far as they have been employed in this instance. The display of devices upon shields, a custom as old as the use of defensive weapons, assumed peculiar importance early in the Middle Ages, because the state of the military art then required the combatant to be so fully protected by his armor as to conceal him from recognition. The figures on the shield were then relied upon as marks of identity; and this use, to serve the object in view, was necessarily shaped into a more or less systematic practice. Originally the outer 'coats,' which covered the mailed bodies of the knights, were made into actual representations of the blazon their wearers had assumed; and black and white, red, blue and yellow, the commonest of tints in which the stuffs were dyed, were naturally the 'colors' in which coats of arms were composed. Later, when luxury suggested broidery of silver and gold, these 'metals' took the places of the colors white and yellow, to which their sheen bore nearest relation, while a regard for artistic effect almost invariably prompted the juxtaposition of 'metal' and 'color.' As a result, when color was charged upon color, or metal upon metal, so conspicuous for that reason was the escutcheon affected, that it became regarded as a fit blazonry only to commemorate some great achievement — a challenge to notice — arma inquirenda.

"So, when our elder brothers selected arms for Δ K E, they made them grandly symbolical, the heart of gules linked by the chain of or, the chevrons counterpointed, the radiated eye in chief, the escutcheon of pretense with its combined shields, the winged globe cresting the achievement. Arma inquirenda, too, they made them. For was not a new kingdom founded when Δ K E was established? Did not Athene come to her own when Δ K E's altar was set up at her seats of culture?

"From a heraldic point of view, the arms are unusually significant and peculiarly appropriate to the character and objects of the Fraternity. The devices, the disposition of the tinctures, and the arrangement of the several coats, all express a meaning. The charges upon the main shield, which is quite distinct from the two coats borne upon the smaller shield surmounting the middle portion, and alone constitutes the primary arms of the Fraternity, are in the highest degree striking, and convey at once to the eye a significance as beautiful as it is appropriate. And by displaying red upon blue, this shield is brought into the category of arms of 'inquiry.' To the principal coat are added two others, in accordance with the laws of heraldic marshalling. These are borne upon the smaller shield, illustrating by their positions upon the larger the method of bearing arms by which the wearer of the principal coat shows his claims to the possessions represented by the other. A man married to an heiress places her arms upon his own in this manner. The joining of the two coats side by side upon the smaller shield is in the form known as an impalement. The marshalling of these coats in the Δ K E escutcheon, therefore, shows a close relation between them, or a joining of the qualities represented by each singly, while their position upon the main shield shows the pretension of the Fraternity to them. The crest, which is the beautiful emblem of the soul, and the motto completing the achievement, require no comment.

"The description of the arms of Δ K E, couched in heraldic language, may pleasantly recall fraternity associations:

"Arms. Azure, between two chevrons contrepoint, the superior or, the inferior gules, as many hearts of the last, issuing thereout a chain pendant over all, the link in the base point in form of a Greek letter Φ, of the second; in chief an eye proper, radiated or; and upon an escutcheon in pretence, argent, a lion rampant sable, langued gules, impaling argent, a chevron between two keys endorsed in saltier in chief sable, and in base three mullets, two and one, in form of a triple star, gules, azure, or.

Crest. A globe, or, winged argent.

Motto. Κηρόθεν φίλοι ἀεί."

"In developing the scheme of heraldic devices so as to recognize the growing importance of the chapters, and their relations with each other and the general fraternity, Δ K E has followed a practice which has the sanction of the very best usage, and each chapter has now a complete achievement of its own, obtained by differencing the fraternity arms. Of the various modes provided by the science for reaching such a result Δ K E has selected those which are most suitable to the manifold purposes she has in view. To preserve the essential Δ K E character in the chapter arms, the tinctures in the fraternity arms are simply inverted, all the chapters having the same coat in common, but differenced for each by the Greek-letter characteristic. The blue shield is changed to gold, the upper chevron from gold to red, and the lower from red to blue, and the gold chain and letter to red, while the hearts remain as they are, and the eye is omitted. Upon the shield so changed is placed an inescutcheon, which displays a charge either silver or gold upon black, or black upon silver. Each chapter has a separate coat upon the inescutcheon, as well as its own crest and motto, the latter being uniformly Greek. The chapter arms are not arma inquirenda, that distinction being reserved for the blazon of the Fraternity. It will readily be seen that in this way a complete system is produced, with well-defined limitations, yet capable of any extent of application, and providing for each chapter an armorial coat that displays the fraternity colors and emblems, while offering a pleasing contrast to the fraternity arms when used with them in chapter-house decorations and elsewhere, and at the same time conspicuously exhibiting the individuality of the chapter in its special emblems."

"As the first among the Greeks to adopt in a scientific and intelligent way the one orderly method of emblematic representation ever sanctioned by the approval of mankind, Δ K E may justly felicitate herself upon the successful manner in which she has handled a vexed question, and added another triumph to the many she has won in her race for the leadership of the fraternity system. And in contributing her stimulus toward the preservation and diffusion of a science which, though neglected in this country, has commanded the highest esteem of the world, not more for the services it has rendered than for the simplicity, directness and accuracy of its methods, she has given another illustration of the active and liberal but well-defined policy which has made her so powerful an auxiliary to the colleges where she is seated, in the promotion of culture in every field."

CHAPTER HOUSES.

In no department has the development of the Fraternity been more marked than in its chapter homes. Although the secret societies at the time of Δ K E's founding were under the ban of faculties throughout the land, and the places selected for meeting were kept absolutely secret, the membership of fraternities has grown so great and their worth has been proved in so many ways, that this opposition to them has practically disappeared. Instead of choosing the most hidden and obscure places for their meetings, the fraternity house is now in many cases a conspicuous and beautiful feature of a college establishment. The alumni contribute to build these palatial homes, the college authorities welcome them, and inter-fraternity visiting is now the rule rather than the exception.

Δ K E was the source of the movement which resulted in adding to the land these beautiful fraternity homes, and to the Λ chapter at Kenyon College belongs the honor of building, occupying and owning the first hall of a college fraternity in the United States. When that chapter was organized a law had been enacted in Kenyon College forbidding any of the students to belong to a secret society, and the penalty for belonging was expulsion. Undoubtedly the danger added spice to the other charms of membership, and the chapter at Kenyon flourished from the beginning. For months the pioneers of Λ met in a deserted log hut on the Owl Creek Bottoms about a mile east from the college. In 1854, however, the graduating members displayed for the first time the badges of the Fraternity and created the greatest astonishment. A petition was presented to the faculty, and they consented to abolish the rule relative to secret societies provided a member of the faculty be permitted to attend the meetings. The members consented and the matter was settled, but to the astonishment of the faculty the chapter proceeded to choose its own faculty representative, who was a charter member of the Λ chapter, and after this the rule of the faculty never interfered with the workings of the Λ chapter. After the ban of secrecy had been removed, the boys became weary of skulking through the woods to secret places of meeting, and decided to build a hall in some snug and unfrequented spot. James M. Le Duc, of '55, and D. D. Benedict and Fred D. Tunnard, of '56, were made a building committee. Brother Tunnard in Vol. II of the Quarterly gives the following description of the erection of this first fraternity house in the United States:

"The site selected was in a deep ravine, out in the dense woods, whose monarchs towered above the spot in a steep ascent on both sides, and amid a heavy growth of underbrush and hazels. A small stream flowed down the center of the valley, and a beautiful spring gushed from the hillside. It was a mile distant from any dwelling. The college owned the land and its authorities encouraged the enterprise by donating the ground and all the timber needed. D. D. Benedict was appointed by his co-laborers as architect and master-builder, with Fred D. Tunnard as his first assistant. Eli Hutchins and other men of the neighborhood were employed to fell the trees necessary for the cabin, collect them at the spot designated and place them in proper position to form the frame of the Hall. The shingles for the roof were riven out of oak and were six feet long. After the frame was completed, Benedict and Tunnard, with Dick Sawyer of the village of Gambier, went to Mt. Vernon, five miles distant, and brought out the flooring and ceiling. With the assistance of one man this was put in its proper place. The building was twenty feet wide, forty feet long and ten feet high.

"Then came a remarkable scene connected with this enterprise — a scene which rises from the vista of the past in a vivid delineation, an imperishable record on memory's long neglected tablets. Every youth in the chapter — from the dignified Senior with his lofty conceptions of his self-importance, down to the fledgling Freshman, whose apparent greenness was bait for a sedate bovine — were detailed to chink and plaster with mud this pioneer edifice. 'Twas a rare frolic and holiday for these disciples of classic literature and abstruse learning. The quiet solitude of that unfrequented dell then witnessed a scene such as never before, or since, has disturbed its serene calm. One squad fitted pieces of wood into the gaping apertures between the unhewn logs; another manufactured mortar of the sticky clay, down by the rippling stream; a third brought it to improvised apprentice plasterers. They thought not of soiled or torn clothes, nor the horror of mater familias in distant home, had she witnessed this unique method adopted by her petted son in drinking the waters of the Pierian spring. They were a motley crew, with sleeves above their elbows, barefooted, and pantaloons rolled above their knees — arms and legs painted with clay, the color of an aboriginal Comanche — a veritable hive of bees, or colony of beavers at work.

"Occasionally comical 'Nebraska Bill' (Bryan) would mount the stump and harangue the crowd, or eloquent Tom James would climb to this natural rostrum and grandiloquently talk of the manliness of manual labor; while Johnny Leithead would succeed him only to complain that he was a constitutionally tired boy. Dainty George Chapman, who abhorred soiling his hands with mud, used a shingle for a trowel; 'noisy' Fred Tunnard, an ubiquitous personage, was everywhere at once, doing all the work, and 'blowing' too; good little Frank Hurd, the pet of the chapter, was not required to work, but made a good mud slinger; and Benedict, boss of all work, was the 'hero in the strife.' The work was accomplished in a single day, a fair sample of the energy and industry of those boyhood days, and the traits of character which have since distinguished the men who have been heroes in the world's battle.

"Within, the ceiling was tongued and grooved planks, and the sides and ends lathed and plastered with a layer of plaster of paris, while pictures on the walls, a carpet on the floor, marble top stands and cushioned chairs, made this room a comfortable, cosy and luxurious retreat for the heretofore wanderers and 'artful dodgers.' The interstices between the outer wall and inner ceiling were filled with sawdust and charcoal, the double window shutters and solid doors padded, so that not a whisper or murmur reached the outer world. After the completion of the Hall, Tunnard and Benedict once again advanced on Mt. Vernon and brought back a genuine cooking stove, with oven, skillet, griddles and pots complete, which cost $20. There was an initiatory supper. And such a supper! Not by any means the luxurious and epicurean repasts of these latter day gatherings. Those were the primeval days of the Fraternity. The jovial 'fellows' quarreled for the use of the single skillet, and each must needs open the oven door to inspect the roasting chickens and baking potatoes. But that was a feast for a king, and right royally was it discussed, amid songs and jokes, toasts and bursts of Demosthenean eloquence. 'Twas different from those former repasts when 'hide and seek' was so successfully played; when each member roasted his potatoes in the ashes and cooked his meat on a forked stick. That building was a model of elegance within, with a rough exterior, verifying the adage that 'Appearances are often deceiving.'

"Circulars were sent far and near, soliciting subscriptions to defray the cost of this construction. Joe Larwell responded with a $5 bill, the only advanced subscriber. Frank Hurd gave the first $10 — a gold piece — of his pocket money, and other active members emptied their slim purses into the general fund. Not including the stove, this 'pioneer property' of the mighty Δ K E Fraternity cost a little less than $50! What would the present Δ K E think of building a hall, with a single $5 bill to commence it? It was not 'filthy lucre' that reared the little hall amid the hills of Central Ohio, but that game spirit which is a characteristic of the Fraternity, backed by a devoted love for the mystic Greek letters, born of their trials and past troubles — their loyal hearts united by the golden chain of friendship, whose links have never been broken, no matter how calcined and battered and bent by the fierce flames through which they have passed."

To Φ at Yale belongs the honor of working out the most feasible type of fraternity hall, to build it of durable materials and to furnish and embellish it for fraternity purposes. The old "Tomb" at Yale with its windowless walls, its forbidding exterior, and its mystic symbols has raised the hopes and desires of many an undergraduate, and its original plan has been copied by O at Michigan and M at Colgate, as well as by a number of other fraternities. The interior plan provided for an assembly hall for large meetings and smaller halls for ordinary meetings, and facilities for dramatic representations, which, from the beginning, have been an important feature in the work of the Φ chapter. This lodge was built in 1861, and in after years was entirely remodeled with an addition of a number of very handsome features, of interest only to the elect.

The next step in chapter-house development was the building of a house in which the members of the chapter might have rooms, and in most cases, board. It was not until some time in the eighties that the movement appeared to gain much headway. Since then, however, progress has been so great that most of the chapters own their own homes, while a few others occupy rented homes merely as a temporary arrangement. The houses of Θ at Bowdoin, Π at Dartmouth, E at Williams, Γ Φ at Wesleyan, Δ X at Cornell, Φ Γ at Syracuse, O at Michigan, Δ Δ at Chicago, Γ at Nashville and Θ Z at California, are examples of what chapter houses should be, while to mention all the homes which are worthy of mention would be practically calling the roll of the chapters. It would be a matter of considerable interest if we could go into an estimate of the amount invested in these homes of Δ K E, but at present the data for such an estimate are not at hand. It cannot, however, be less than $600,000. There is still an opportunity for improvement in many matters relating to assembly rooms, and minor matters of decoration, but on the whole the Fraternity is to be congratulated for the excellent record it has made in this department. Nothing is more likely to promote the prosperity of a chapter, or conservatism in its management, than the ownership of and responsibility for a fine home.

ALUMNI ORGANIZATION.

One of the earliest records of an attempt to organize the alumni was a resolution introduced in the Twenty-seventh Convention in 1873 by James I. Good of P, directing a number of chapters located in or near the largest cities of the country to call meetings of the alumni resident in those places for the purpose of more thoroughly organizing them. There is no record as to what was the result of these efforts, or whether indeed the direction was ever carried out, and it was not until after the organization of the Council that any comprehensive scheme of alumni organization was undertaken.

This, however, was one of the first subjects which the new Council considered, and recommendations were made to the various chapters that they take such steps as they could to organize their alumni and obtain their co-operation. The work was carried on with great success, and before the close of the century a system of clubs and alumni associations had been organized, extending throughout the union. Naturally the three most active associations were the Δ K E Club of New York, the Northwestern Association of Chicago, and the Δ K E Association of Washington. Many of the smaller cities, however, maintained organizations which have been most active in their work, and have contributed towards maintaining the interest of the alumni in the chapters and in the Fraternity.

Several such associations in addition to the three above mentioned have entertained conventions of the Fraternity, and several have been active in the organization of clubs which have afterwards obtained charters from the Fraternity for new chapters. There are now in active existence twenty-six associations which maintain a regular organization, have periodical meetings and dinners, and report regularly to the Quarterly and the Council. There is room, however, for much improvement in this particular, and both the Council and the undergraduates feel that one of the greatest needs of the Fraternity is a system by which the alumni may become thoroughly organized, and may be given such a representation in the councils of the Fraternity that the permanence of these clubs and associations may be assured.

CONCLUSION.

Such is the history of Δ K E as it is recorded in the minutes of conventions, in the archives of the Fraternity, in the faded letters, yellow with age and fast crumbling into dust in the strong-boxes of the chapters. Her real history is found in the lives of those loyal sons who, after a period of training in her halls, have gone forth to achieve, to conquer, to "bring things to pass." Many have fallen, some just as the contest was beginning, others in the thick of the fight, and some after the field was won. They have "fought a good fight." They have "kept the faith." Their example is an inspiration to those who remain. Of the rest of us, who are left to continue the work which they so well began, what profession, what business, what calling in life has not its representative upon our rolls?

If, then, you would read our history, search the pages which follow, as well as those which have gone before. See how the principles upon which our Fraternity was founded have been followed by her sons. Read in their lives the record of what Δ K E has accomplished, how she has influenced her children, and through them, our country and our race. Like the Roman mother, Δ K E proudly points to her sons and exclaims, "These, these are my jewels!"

YALE UNIVERSITY

[YALE COLLEGE UNTIL MARCH 8, 1887]

New Haven, Conn.

FOUNDED JUNE 22, 1844

THE Φ Chapter and the Fraternity of Δ K E was organized in Old South College, an historic structure built in 1794, and through the greater part of the nineteenth century a centre of Yale sentiment and life. "In 1844 the colleges were provincial," said Mr. John DeWitt Warner in his address before the Semi-Centennial Convention. "Yale, the largest college in America, was the only one that could be considered national, drawing its students from all parts of the country. At Yale, too, there was then a more constructive student life, and student institutions were stronger than elsewhere in America."

In the spring of 1844 discontent with elections to the two existing fraternities of Ψ Y and A Δ Φ led fifteen well-known members of the Class of '46, all but one of whom lived in Old South, to launch a new Fraternity. It was in Room No. 12, occupied by George Foot Chester, that the organization took place. The preliminary arrangements were there made and there probably the motto and pin were selected. "Δ K E Society Yale College" was the name chosen and on the original scroll, or badge, as it was then called, was placed the word "Yale." The original members, all now deceased, were: William W. Atwater, Edward G. Bartlett, Frederick P. Bellinger, Jr., Henry Case, George Foot Chester, John B. Conyngham, Thomas F. Franklin, W. W. Horton, William Boyd Jacobs, Edward V. Kinsley, Chester N. Righter, E. B. Shapleigh, Thomas D. Sherwood, A. E. Stetson, and Orson W. Stow.

The new Society almost immediately spread its influence over the country as neither of its two rivals had done. From the Yale Classes between 1846 and 1862 there were only 43 Southerners elected to Ψ Y and 48 to A Δ Φ, while 93 were chosen for Δ K E.

We might note, in passing, that for many years Δ K E and Ψ Y were the only two national fraternities in Yale College, as A Δ Φ went out of existence. Eventually, however, it was re-established and at the present time, in addition to these three, Z Φ and B Θ Π are represented in the College, the latter being a very recently established Chapter.

The first regular meeting place of the Society was in a room in Adelphian Hall, corner of State and Chapel Streets. Henry Case was the first Treasurer of the Society and as the total amount paid by each man for organization and during the year was $15.13, his arduous duties did not prevent his receiving honors in scholarship with most of the other founders. It has been declared by several of the original members that at first they had no intention of extending beyond Yale, but during the summer of 1844, Shapleigh and Bartlett, both of whom lived near Bowdoin College in Brunswick, Maine, called together some men from that college and on their return to New Haven in the autumn applied for a Chapter for Bowdoin. This was granted and T. D. Sherwood was sent to Maine to effect the organization.

The next few chapters were established in the fall, followed by extension through the South under the able management of Henry Hitchcock, and an application received from Harvard in October, 1851, praying for a charter of "the ancient and honorable Fraternity of Δ K E," and signed by John Quincy Adams and other well-known names, brought us beyond the formative period and established us as one of the leaders in the Fraternity world.

The parent Chapter developed from the beginning architectural aspirations, the earliest temple-like halls of secret societies in this country being those of Skull and Bones and Δ K E at Yale. They were followed by the Δ K E buildings at the University of Michigan and Madison University (now Colgate College), these being the most marked specimens of the type to which they belonged. Other fraternities adopted the idea later but it is a matter of interest and pride that Δ K E blazed the way and established a type that has been followed by many secret societies in the land.

The first hall of Φ Chapter, to which reference has just been made, was erected in 1860, largely through the efforts of Mr. Henry Holt of New York City, a member of the Class graduated that year. It occupied the same site as the present structure on York Street, New Haven, between Elm and Chapel Streets, and remained the Chapter headquarters until the erection of the present building in 1896. Since this latter date the members from each succeeding Class have done something towards the decoration and general improvement of the hall, until now our home is one of which we may be proud.

At a meeting of Φ Chapter, November 14, 1846, the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, That we do consider it expedient to hold a general convention of the Δ K E Fraternity in New Haven on or about the 25th of December next for the purpose of promoting the more intimate acquaintance between the members of different chapters and to consult upon their several interests."

This "general convention," consisting of the Chapters, Φ, Θ, Ξ, and Σ, was held in New Haven, December 23, 1846.

The third convention, with thirty-nine delegates, was also held in New Haven, July 26, 1853, pursuant to the following notice which was sent by the parent Chapter to all other chapters and published in prominent newspapers throughout the country:

"Δ K E FRATERNITY

"A convention of the Δ K E Fraternity will be held at the Φ (parent) Chapter in Yale College, New Haven, Conn., on Tuesday, July 26, 1853. An oration will be delivered by William H. Richards, Esq., of New York City, and a poem pronounced by Charlton T. Lewis, of Westchester, Pa."

At this convention a proposition was made to establish an annual prize of from $50 to $100 to be accorded to the best writer on any subject selected by a committee.

On July 29 and 30, 1862, was held in New Haven the famous Civil War Convention of the Fraternity, and the messages sent through the lines from the southern chapters to the parent chapter in New Haven on that occasion read like a romance. We insert here the form of letter sent by Φ to the chapters in the South:

CONVENTION OF Δ K E,
HALL OF Φ, July 30th, 1862.

DEAR BROTHERS:

The opening of this letter announces to you that the General Convention of our Fraternity is now in session with the parent Chapter.

When your name was called, no delegate responding, the Secretary of the Convention read the last letter received from you by the Φ Chapter, and in proper order, the latest letters received from our Southern Brothers.

The sentiment of their letters was unanimous in their attachment to the Fraternity, and in their determination to let no political differences interfere with their devotion to its interests.

The reading was followed by enthusiastic applause and expressions on every side of the most fraternal feeling for those Brothers, from whom the present unhappy strife has separated us, and a committee was immediately appointed to convey to you, as soon as the way should be open, the greetings of the Convention.

It is necessary to say but little, but we wish you to feel that little is from the very heart of all the Northern branches of the Fraternity. The Convention deeply regrets that unhappy causes deny us the pleasure of seeing representatives from your Chapter. The differences of opinion, which have led to the division of our country ought not to have any influence on those principles, which have so long bound together Δ K E in happiness and prosperity. Whatever may be the result of the National contest, we trust that our good old Society Union may remain unimpaired. We ask you to resume communication with us, to send delegates to the next Convention, and to cherish with us the hope that we may soon be working together to maintain Δ K E in her present eminence, and advance her to her proud destiny.

Fraternally yours always,
HENRY HOLT, Φ,
MAX. F. B. WOODHULL, K.

In 1867 another convention was held in New Haven and in November, 1908, still another, under the joint auspices of Φ and A X Chapters, this last concluding with a banquet at the Waldorf-Astoria in New York City, which stands as the largest and most distinguished college Fraternity gathering held in this country up to that time.

In 1882, when the government and organization of the Fraternity was changed, the Mother Chapter relinquished certain privileges theretofore possessed and in place thereof was granted a permanent representation on the Council, under the new constitution. Therefore Φ always has one member of the Council, while the other chapters rotate in order of establishment. The representatives of Φ on the Council have been Dickinson W. Richards, '80, on the Councils of 1882–84; John W. Brouner of the M Chapter, who represented Φ on the Council of 1885; Henry B. B. Stapler, '74, on the Councils of 1886 to 1887, and the president for these two years; Edward Wells, Jr., '84, on the Councils of 1888–91, and the secretary of the Council for these years; Frank D. Pavey, '84, on the Councils of 1891–94, and the president for two years; Frederic E. Grant, '92, on the Councils of 1895–98; Herbert B. Wilcox, '98, on the Councils of 1899–1904, and the president for one year; Wm. A. McQuaid, '89, on the Councils of 1904–5, and the president for one year, and James Anderson Hawes, '94, on the Councils of 1905–10, and the present incumbent of the office.

During her long existence at Yale, Δ K E has borne her full measure of college honors. The prominence of her members in literary, scholastic, religious, and general activities, as well as in athletics, has been so great that a detailed list would read almost like an honor roll of the college instead of that of one Fraternity. And in this connection it is worthy of note that in recent years all of the higher officers of Yale University have been Δ K E men, including the President, the Secretary, the Treasurer, the Librarian, the Registrar, the Bursar of the University, and the Dean of the College, although the members of any of the fifteen or more fraternities represented in the entire university are equally eligible to any of these offices except the last named.

To refer briefly to the activities of the parent Chapter throughout these years it may be said in the first place that all of the early catalogues of the Fraternity were prepared and published by Φ — in 1851, 1855, 1858, 1863, and 1867.

Moreover there was quickly developed a pronounced literary tendency, inaugurated shortly after the establishment of the Society by a poem by Bartlett — the first production of the kind presented in a Δ K E hall. The literary exercises in the course of time displayed the most varied character and became a prominent feature of the Chapter's meetings, while with the growth of the Fraternity there was developed a system of culture unparalleled outside of the old literary societies. Theodore Winthrop, soldier and author, of the Class of '48, Yale, was the first member of the Fraternity to win through his writings a national and enduring fame — a fame the more touching because of his heroic death while leading a charge at the battle of Great Bethel, June 10, 1861.

In music, too, Φ has done efficient work for the Fraternity, the most distinctive, perhaps, of all Δ K E songs, namely, the famous "Φ Marching Song," which is sung on nearly all Fraternity occasions, having been written by Hugh A. Bayne. Others written by Yale men are: "Hail, Holy Goddess," by G. C. Southworth; "Fair Δ K E," by P. B. Porter; the "Anthem," by S. T. Frost; "Δ K E," by F. B. Kellogg; "Campaign Song," by J. M. Holmes; "Δ K E Rejoices To-night," by P. B. Porter; another "Marching Song," by A. E. Lamb; "In Δ K E," by George Tucker, and several more recent ones, such as, "Here's a Health To Our Time-Honored Φ."

Another distinctive activity has been the theatrical entertainments given at Φ. In both of the halls built on York Street, the stage has been a centre of interest and there are few if any graduate members who do not look back with pleasure to initiation evenings and other occasions when plays were given. Sometimes indeed the performances have risen above the usual plane of such productions and latent talent has been developed.

One night in each year the fraternities at Yale depart from the rule usually observed and have a public parade. This is known as Calcium Light night, when the elections to the different fraternities are given out. Each fraternity has its distinctive costume of weird design and color, with deep hoods and long robes — that of Δ K E being a dark red academic gown and hood with a white belt, and a red lantern to be carried by each man. The long lines of strange marching figures winding in and out among the campus elms and singing their fraternity songs as they go, form a spectacle at once interesting and impressive to an unusual degree.

As not only many members of our fraternity from other chapters, but also many graduates of Yale who have not kept in close touch with college affairs during the last few years, do not understand the present existing social system at New Haven, it might be of interest briefly to refer to this. Up to about the year 1875 there existed the old class social system at Yale, as portrayed in "Four Years at Yale." Mr. John Addison Porter, writing in the New England Magazine, for May, 1881, sets out the situation as it existed at that critical period:

"Of late years the secret society system of Yale College has been challenged with increasing frequency. In 1875 the Sophomore societies were abolished by the faculty; in 1876 an organized band of students broke into and claimed to have rifled one of the Senior society halls. This unprecedented vandalism was continued in 1878 by another set of collegiate members defacing both the Senior buildings. During this year a daily anti-society newspaper was started and vigorously conducted so as to thwart the society man in every way. Soon after, the Freshman societies ceased to exist, by order of the fates which control the destinies of the University. Lastly, this year, the crusade against the societies was transferred to the columns of prominent metropolitan journals where alumnus and undergraduate emulated each other in striving to point out enormities committed by the societies."

The conditions soon thereafter quieted down and some years thereafter saw the organization and rise of Sophomore societies of a different kind from those which had gone before. Without going into the questions involved, we may say that they were weighed in the balance and found wanting, and this last effort to maintain a strictly class society system through the entire college course went down in failure. Owing largely to the influences of the preparatory schools and the small number taken into the Sophomore societies, a strong feeling of hostility was engendered, and the fact that in the Junior societies there was an inner circle rendered these organizations much weaker than they would otherwise have been. Matters came to a climax first about 1894, and at that time the faculty took a hand and notified the Junior societies that some improvement was expected of them. Efforts were made to improve conditions by several members of that class and again in the class of 1896, but it was several years thereafter before the system was changed. The class of 1900 finally took a definite stand against the Sophomore societies and through the influence of graduates, the Sophomore societies were finally abolished and the Junior societies began to be in fact, as well as in name, fraternities, taking in their members at the beginning of the Sophomore year and having them continue as active members during the balance of the course. Attention may be called to the fact, however, that for over a half century Δ K E differed from the other Junior societies in that with us, Seniors were always at least nominally active members and the chief offices have always been filled by members of the Senior class. This accounts perhaps for the admittedly better organization, spirit and interest in the Fraternity which has existed in Δ K E as compared with the other fraternities at Yale.

At the present time Freshman year is left absolutely free and clear, so that every man has an opportunity to prove his worth, and the agreements between fraternities with this in view have been strictly kept. We believe that election to the leading fraternities at the beginning of Sophomore year is on as fair a basis and is carried out with as honest endeavor to do the right thing for the fraternity and for the college as is possible. After the twenty members from each class are elected at the beginning of Sophomore year, there are additional members elected in the spring of Sophomore year, and a few during Junior and possibly one or two as late as Senior year; thus holding out before each and every undergraduate up to the end of his course the hope and possibility of receiving social recognition from his fellows for work done for the college. The present condition of affairs at Yale is most encouraging, as not only are the relations with the Faculty of the best, but we believe that the fraternities stand certainly in as high esteem with the undergraduate body at large as they ever have done. Further, with the elimination of the inner circle, which used to be composed of the members who belonged also to the Sophomore societies, there have arisen a very strong spirit of unity and a cordial feeling of good will and friendship between members of different classes in each fraternity. A number of graduates have devoted a considerable amount of time and work to the matter and we believe that not only locally have conditions so improved that former graduates would hardly recognize their old society, but we are certain that the great increase of fraternity spirit and interest evidenced during the last few years by the Φ Chapter is appreciated and welcomed.

The fifteen young men gathered in Old South Middle under the shadow of the New Haven elms builded better than they knew. And to-day Φ is justly proud of the great national Fraternity, that had its beginning at Yale nearly three-quarters of a century ago, and which is more fairly representative, we believe, of the strong spirit of a reasonable American democracy than any other similar organization.

Among the better known alumni of Φ, a casual perusal of the catalogue list would include:

THETA

BOWDOIN COLLEGE

Brunswick, Me.

CHARTERED NOVEMBER 5, 1844

THETA of Δ K E, the eldest of the daughters of Φ, came into being at Bowdoin College within five months after the founding of the Fraternity at Yale, and through all the years since 1844 has been a strong and loyal chapter. It owed its origin to the intimate friendship between Elisha B. Shapleigh, Yale, '46, one of the founders of Φ, and John S. H. Fogg, Bowdoin, '46. They were natives of Eliot, Me., had together prepared for college there, and maintained a correspondence after entering their respective colleges. After Φ had been founded in June, 1844, Shapleigh and one of his associates, Bartlett, whose home was in Portsmouth, N. H., went to Bowdoin to consult with Fogg and others there regarding the establishment of a branch of the Fraternity. This was early in September.

As a result of this visit a petition was sent to Φ by Fogg and others upon which, action was prompt and favorable, and Thomas D. Sherwood, another of Φ's founders, went to Brunswick and initiated the charter members November 6, 1844. The chapter was not designated as Θ until ten months later. The date on the charter, which was made out at the first convention held in New Haven late in December, 1846, is November 1, 1844. There were eleven charter members, two from '45 and nine from '46, while four members from '47 were initiated a week later. By the first constitution the membership was limited to fifteen. With the consent of Φ this limit was raised to twenty-two in October, 1845, and at the first convention the limit was removed.

One of the most important things in Θ's early career was the establishment of Ξ Chapter at Colby College. There were then no fraternities at Waterville, and after several months of correspondence it was arranged to establish the chapter, and, with the consent of Φ, the charter members were initiated June 25, 1846, by Fogg and Jackson of Θ, '46. The first instance of members of one chapter visiting another occurred September 3, 1845, when Sherwood and Bartlett of Φ spent an evening with their Θ brethren. Exactly a year later the members of the new chapter at Colby visited Θ in a body, making this visit to Bowdoin the first occasion for wearing their pins. Θ sent as delegates to the first convention, Metcalf and Ware, both of '47. The first break made in the ranks of the Fraternity was the death of Ware in July, 1847.

Three conventions of Δ K E have been held with Θ, those of 1852, 1858, and 1869. The record of Θ in the Civil War is one of its brightest pages. Seventy-three of its sons bore arms in the great conflict, seventy in the armies of the Union and three in the armies of the South. Of the former, forty-six were graduates, sixteen were undergraduates and eight were in the service before entering college. Fifty-two of them won commissions, the highest ranking officer being Gen. Chas. P. Mattocks, '62. Eleven were killed in battle or died of wounds. Of the three in the Confederate service, two fell in battle; one, Robert McK Spearing, '57, winning the rank of a colonel before giving up his life at Fredericksburg.

Before the building of its chapter house in 1900, Θ occupied in turn three halls, the first two for about twenty years each, and the last for fourteen years. All were on Maine street, Brunswick. It was also the custom for many years for all, or nearly all, of the members to room in South Appleton Hall. The chapter-house movement began as early as 1874, but for many years the objections of the college faculty and governing boards were an obstacle not to be overcome. One attempt followed another, each coming a little nearer success, and finally in 1899 the Θ Chapter House Association was organized by a few alumni who took the work from the hands of the undergraduate committee, raised the money and built the house. A large corner lot, adjacent to the campus, had been bought in 1896. The house is of the colonial type, and the total cost of house, lot and furnishings was about $30,000. It is splendidly adapted to the lot with its broad lawns and stately elms, and makes a beautiful home of which Θ is justly proud. It was the first chapter house built at Bowdoin, and is acknowledged the best of the eight houses now there.

The names on the membership roll of Θ reach a total of 716. This includes the 26 honorary members, nearly all of whom were admitted in the first three years of the chapter's life, except six who were elected when the convention was held at Bowdoin in 1869. There are some very famous men in this list of honorary members — Hawthorne, Blaine, Senator Hale, Chief Justice Tenney, Governor John A. Andrew and others,— but it is worthy of note that nearly all were admitted before they had achieved fame. Among the active members, some of the best known are: Lafayette Grover, '48; Paris Gibson, '51, and William Drew Washburn, '54, who have been in the United States Senate respectively from Oregon, Montana and Minnesota; Charles Carroll Everett, '50, for over 30 years on the faculty of the Harvard Divinity School; John Nelson Jewett, '50, leader of the Chicago bar; Wilmot Wood Brookings, '55, Governor of Dakota; James R. Osgood, '54, Boston publisher; Judge William Gaslin, '56, of Nebraska; Judge Enos T. Luce, '56, of Massachusetts; Rev. Edwin Pond Parker, '56, for over 50 years a Hartford, Conn., pastor; Prof. Cyrus F. Brackett, '59, for 35 years on the Princeton faculty; Rev. Americus Fuller, '59, long president of Aintab College, Turkey; Augustine Jones, '60, for 25 years head of the Friends School, Providence; Dexter A. Hawkins, '48; Granville P. Hawes, '60, and Almon Goodwin, '62, prominent at the New York bar; Charles P. Mattocks, '62, general and judge; William E. Greene, '63, of San Francisco, for 26 years Judge of the Superior Court; Enoch Foster, '64, Judge of the Maine Supreme Court for 14 years; Dr. Charles Jewett, '64, of New York, one of the world's leading gynecologists; Henry L. Oak, '65, of San Francisco, librarian and historian; Orville D. Baker, '68, leader of Maine bar and brilliant orator; Charles O. Whitman, '68, biologist of Chicago University; Clarence Hale, '69, United States District Judge for Maine; DeAlva S. Alexander, '70, member of Congress from Buffalo; Geo. M. Seiders, '72, attorney general of Maine; Prof. Edwin H. Hall, '75, of the Harvard faculty; Dr. Myles Standish, '75, Boston's leading eye specialist; Robert E. Peary, '77, discoverer of the North Pole; Prof. Geo. T. Little, '77, librarian of Bowdoin; Alfred E. Burton, '78, Dean of Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Edwin U. Curtis, '82, mayor of Boston; Morrill Goddard, '85, New York journalist; Dr. F. N. Whittier, '85, for over 20 years Bowdoin's athletic director; C. B. Burleigh, '87, editor and author; Austin Cary, '87, pioneer forestry expert; Prof. Harry DeF. Smith, '91, of the Amherst faculty; and many others who have won success and wide recognition in their lines of life work.

A notable occasion in Θ's history was the celebration of the chapter's semi-centennial held in connection with the annual alumni reunion during Commencement week of 1894. Over 150 alumni were present, the largest number of Dekes ever assembled in Maine. There were also representatives of seven other chapters of Δ K E. The banquet was held in the Brunswick Town Hall and prominent among the exercises which followed were an oration by Hon. Orville D. Baker, '68, and a poem by Judge Webster, '67. These two gifted alumni served in the same capacity at the dedication of the chapter house at the Commencement reunion of 1901, when about 100 alumni were present. In 1904, when Θ passed its sixtieth milestone, a history and catalogue was published by John Clair Minot, '96, a volume of 270 pages containing the story of the chapter's life to that time, together with a brief biography of each member.

Seven other intercollegiate fraternities have chapters at Bowdoin: A Δ Φ, 1841; Ψ Y, 1843; Θ Δ X, 1854; Z Ψ, 1867; Δ Y, 1892; K Σ, 1895, and B Θ Π, 1900. X Ψ, established in 1844, died in 1868. Thus Θ of Δ K E has always had worthy rivals, but in every branch of college activity it has kept its place at the front. No other fraternity at Bowdoin has won as many honors or made so good a record in scholarship, athletics, college journalism, musical lines or any branch of undergraduate work.

COLBY COLLEGE

[WATERVILLE COLLEGE UNTIL JAN. 23, 1867]
[COLBY UNIVERSITY UNTIL JAN. 25, 1899]

Waterville, Me.

CHARTERED JUNE 25, 1845

XI of Δ K E, the fourth chapter founded and the third oldest existing chapter, was founded at Colby — or, as it was then known, Waterville College, in Waterville, Maine, June 25, 1846. In the fall of 1845 a movement had been set on foot by Walter M. Hatch of the class of '47 and others, looking toward the establishment of Δ K E in the college. There was much correspondence in regard to the matter with the members of Θ Chapter at Bowdoin College and between that chapter and "Mother Φ" at Yale. As a result, in June of the next year a petition for a charter, addressed "To the President and other Officers and Brethren of the Δ K E Society, Θ Chapter, Bowdoin College," was drawn up and signed by the following: Josiah H. Drummond and George R. Starkey of the class of '46; Walter M. Hatch, Henry I. Ware, Gilbert L. Palmer, David S. True, of '47; Ephraim W. Young and Horatio Q. Butterfield, of '48. The petition was at once granted and three days later, on the evening of June 25, 1846, Brothers Jackson and Fogg of the Bowdoin Chapter initiated the petitioners into the mysteries of Δ K E and installed Ξ Chapter. The charter members were the petitioners named above except Palmer and True, who were initiated later, and also Stephen L. Bowler and Alexander Gamble of '47 and Benjamin W. Dean of '48. Of these brothers all have died with the exception of Rev. Stephen L. Bowler, who, at the ripe old age of eighty-seven, is alive and well at his home in Bangor, Maine.

The meetings were held in various rooms in North College for nearly a year, but under date of May 1, 1847, the records read: "Society met in their hall." This hall, however, soon proved inadequate and on June 12, 1849, the chapter moved to more commodious quarters in the Boutelle Block on Main street. Here were held the meetings of the chapter until February 26, 1876, when another move was made to the hall on the third floor of the Ticonic Building, then newly constructed. These convenient and pleasant quarters were the home of Ξ for a period of twenty-eight years, during which time a chapter house had been bought but had not been occupied as a whole. But the chapter-house movement had been set on foot some years before the purchase of a house.

As early as October 21, 1884, we find the record of a vote "that a committee of three be appointed on the chapter-house business." This committee consisted of H. D. Eaton and F. M. Perkins of the class of '87 and C. H. Pepper of '89. The agitation for a permanent home was from this time on kept continually before the chapter and its alumni by the successive committees appointed, although there were periods of but few additions to the building fund. An incorporation of the Chapter House Association was effected in May, 1893, with Hon. Josiah H. Drummond, '46, the beloved "Father" of Ξ, as its first president. The other officers were: Lincoln Owen, '89, vice-president; Frank W. Padelford, '94, secretary and manager; Hon. Percival Bonney, '63, treasurer. The raising of funds went steadily forward and in 1898 the association purchased the Daniel Wing estate on College Avenue, an ideal location occupied by a house which has since proved admirably suitable for remodeling as a fraternity home. For some years the house was rented to outside parties, who maintained a dining club for members of the chapter. In the summer of 1904, the old hall in the Ticonic Building was given up and the property of the fraternity was moved up to the chapter house, which has since been wholly occupied by the chapter, both for living purposes and for all meetings. In the summer of 1906 extensive alterations and additions were made to the house, so that it is now a most convenient and pleasant home for Ξ.

Ξ has sent forth into the world since 1846 over five hundred loyal sons, many of whom have won national fame in their several professions. In the Civil War, Ξ was represented in the Union army by forty-four gallant brothers, nine of whom met death on the battlefield. The rolls show the officers held by Ξ's sons as follows: One Major-General, one Brigadier-General, four Colonels, eight Lieutenant-Colonels, six Majors, fifteen Captains, ten First Lieutenants, six Second Lieutenants, one Orderly Sergeant, six Sergeants, five Corporals, seventeen Staff Officers, and nine privates. General H. M. Plaisted, '53, was afterwards a member of Congress and Governor of the State of Maine. Ξ claims five Congressmen, two United States Ministers, four college presidents, besides many sons who have won distinction in all the professions and as state officials, mayors of cities, journalists, bankers, merchants, publishers, and artists. At the present time she is represented in the Supreme Court of Maine by two out of eight justices; Associate Justices, William P. Whitehouse, '63, and Leslie C. Cornish, '75. The present Director of the United States Geological Survey is a younger son of Ξ, George Otis Smith of the class of '93. Three of her most eminent sons in the teaching profession are members of the faculty of the University of Chicago, Albion W. Small, Nathaniel P. Butler, and Shailer Mathews, who is the editor of The World To-day and the author of several books on modern religious thought.

In 1895 when the records of the college were searched to find the proportion of honors taken by Dekes, it was found that Ξ had to her credit over forty-five per cent. of the prizes awarded for scholarship, excellence in composition, debate or declamation, while the total membership in the chapter had been less than twenty-five per cent. of the students of the college. The record of the last decade is perhaps hardly equal to this, owing to the increase in the number of fraternities, but Dekes have captured more than their share of honors in scholarship and in all the activities of college life at Colby.

SIGMA

AMHERST COLLEGE

Amherst, Mass.

CHARTERED NOVEMBER 1, 1846

THE year of our Lord 1846 was not the year of the great comet nor were there recorded any other portents in the heavens. Nature was in her calmest mood. In fact, there seemed to brood over her countenance a smile of triumphant satisfaction; for on November first of that year Σ Chapter of Δ K E was born.

Amherst College had then been in existence a quarter of a century. Since the fateful day when the president of Williams College, with part of his faculty and more than half of his student body moved from the Berkshire Hills to the Connecticut valley and founded a new institution, Amherst had stood, full-panoplied, in the front rank of American colleges. She was surprisingly non-sectional from her earliest days. Just as to-day she draws more men from New York than from Massachusetts, and the middle west follows close behind, so in that day Louisiana and Florida and all of the then Western frontier sent her their representatives.

In 1837 A Δ Φ came to Amherst and throve there; four years later Ψ Y followed with a chapter; and thereafter, for five years, these two societies chose men from the student body according to their lights. But in the fall of 1846 a group of seven students, drawn toward each other by a spontaneous growth of mutual regard, rather than by any artificial process of selection, determined to organize as a secret society. Δ K E had been founded two years before at Yale College, and had thriven mightily. These seven men applied to the Dekes of Yale, were examined and found to be not only a congenial and worthy body, but also, as it happened, very prominent in Amherst student affairs, and they were at once initiated. A charter was issued on November first. The seven charter members were Louis Palemon Ledoux, George W. Goodale, Francis A. Howe, Henry J. Patrick, James W. Raynor, William S. Smith, and Alfred Stebbins.

Σ loves to pause over these names. They were men actuated by the same spirit that rules to-day in the home they founded. They represented no section or locality,— one even was from New Orleans; they stood for the best of Amherst life, but they were not chosen because of proficiency along some one particular line. They were friends — and became a fraternity. Later on, one of these men became a physician, one a college professor and five became clergymen. Their followers, from then till now, have numbered seven hundred and fifty-seven men, and we like to think that, by and large, they have all measured up to the hopes of that first seven,— though a college boy's hopes are always very high!

The first chapter meeting was held in room 10, South College, on the evening of November 23, 1846, at ten o'clock. Secrecy was distinctly necessary in those days. A Δ and Ψ Υ seemed intuitively to realize that this was no laughing matter for them. And the ancient doors of a later meeting place are preserved unto this day, bearing upon them honorable scars of seventy years ago, when they guarded our assembled fathers from jealous foes without. Later the meetings were held in North College, until rooms were at length found away from college property, in Hunt's Block.

The incorporation of the chapter under the laws of Massachusetts occurred in 1864. The purchase of the present beautiful property, with its grove of oaks and its useful orchard, and the addition of a building to the old mansion, complete a list of the more important events in our physical history.

Σ always stands for Amherst. A brother cannot be loyal to Σ without being loyal to the college. To-day we have five Dekes on the faculty, and three on the Board of Trustees. They are a unit in believing that the good of the fraternity means the good of the college and they stand shoulder to shoulder with our student brethren in every laudable undertaking.

Σ has always stood for the whole fraternity. She is deeply interested in the maintenance of a Deke standard of excellence throughout the entire body; she has always believed in thorough inter-chapter acquaintance and neighborliness as a means of bringing this about; and she has always stood for conservative growth. Children of Σ are the chapters at Williams, New York University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and to the latter she is godmother as well.

Amherst has sent out many good men in the seventy years since Σ's founding, and Σ has had more than her share of them. They have gone into every field of endeavor. Among college presidents we may cite, for example, Gen. Francis Amasa Walker of Boston Tech. and William F. Slocum Jr., of Colorado College; among men of science and letters, Professors John Bates Clark and Mayo Smith of Columbia; among men of the law, Judge Sears and J. S. Runnells of Chicago, and John W. Simpson of New York; among publishers, George A. Plimpton and Irving Putnam; among librarians, Melvil Dewey; among architects, Wm. R. Mead, of McKim, Mead and White; among merchants, Lincoln MacVeagh; among journalists, Charles Hallock and Daniel Kellogg of the Sun; among singers, Allen Hinckley of the Metropolitan Opera; among publicists, State Treasurer Chapin of Massachusetts, and Gov. Utter of Rhode Island. Who shall dare say where the list of men of note ends and the men of lesser achievement begin? Not this historian. He feels sure, however, that one of the best things any of the above-named brothers ever did in all his career was to join Δ K E — and the humblest of us has that to his credit. So as an ending to this meagre chronicle you are urged to read the full roll of our more than seven hundred brothers listed in this book, and know that in Amherst at least, by the very reason of our being on that list, we are all distinguished men.

BURGES JOHNSON, Σ '99.

GAMMA

VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY

Nashville, Tenn.

CHARTERED AT UNIVERSITY OF NASHVILLE, APRIL 19, 1847. INACTIVE, 1861–1889. REVIVED AT VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY, NASHVILLE, TENN., OCTOBER 16, 1889.

GAMMA received her first charter from Φ in 1847, at the University of Nashville. There were six charter members, as follows: Richard Lawson Ford, Texas; Minor Meriwether, Tennessee; James Wetherald Butler, Arkansas; Robert Eakin Deery, Tennessee; Henry Money, Texas; Henry M. R. Fogg, Tennessee; three lawyers, a journalist, a manufacturer, and a planter.

The early history of Γ can only be discovered by reading the letters written by her members to the other chapters, copies of which have been preserved. From this source it is learned that originally only members of the two highest classes in the University were eligible for membership. For some time after organization the existence of the chapter was kept secret, and even after the members began to wear their pins in public, the place and time of meeting was long kept secret. Being the first secret organization in the University, Γ was subject to all the prejudices and petty rivalries arising from such a breach of custom. But later rivals appeared who only served to stimulate her activity and increase her strength.

The circumstances under which Γ became inactive, in 1861, cannot be ascertained. The last recorded letters of the Chapter are dated April, 1861, and contain no hint of approaching disaster. It can only be said that the sectional differences which ravaged our country at that time must bear the blame.

The present Chapter, bearing the name "Γ," is just twenty-one years old, having been revived in 1889, at Vanderbilt University, of Nashville, an institution of the Methodist Church, endowed by Commodore Vanderbilt. The original roll of members contained thirteen names, as follows: Harry Bush Rigg, Wiley Bush Brown, Wm. Henry Hulme, Charles Donnell Rice, U. Mitchell Sanderson, Walter E. Stokes, R. E. Lee Brown, Wm. Thomas Locke, Edwin Mims, Samuel Walker Ross, Walter B. Nance, Robert K. Morgan and Julius Kennard Goodwin.

Since the date of revival, Γ's history has been uneventful, being characterized only by the overtaking, one by one, of all her rivals. There have been no steps backward, and if there have been periods when her advance was slow, it was all the more sure.

Γ has had only two homes. The first was a rented house, which was retained from 1897 to 1907 — when the present house was finished. The movement to build a permanent home for Γ was instituted by the active Chapter in 1900, and was pushed by active work on the part of alumni, until the present house was erected, situated convenient to the University, and in the best residential section of the city.

UNIVERSITY OF ALABAMA

CHARTER, JUNE 20, 1847. INACTIVE, OCTOBER, 1856-85. REVIVED, NOVEMBER 19, 1885.

BEFORE THE WAR

THE idea of organizing a chapter of Δ K E at the University of Alabama was suggested to Louis J. DuPré, a Senior, by Cyprian George Webster, Φ, '46, of Yale College. He conferred with his friends, Richard B. Owen and Charles F. Henry, and together they selected as eligible men for their purposes from the Senior class, James I. Bonner; from the Junior, Edward G. Baptist, Thad. N. Perry, George W. F. Price, Milford F. Woodruff; from the Sophomore class, Edward L. Jones, John H. Lee, Charles A. Pegues, and Peyton W. Reynolds. These applied for a Δ K E charter. In June, 1847, Charles H. Foote (Φ, '49), of Huntsville, Ala., arrived in Tuscaloosa and initiated the applicants for the charter, probably in a room at the Indian Queen, one of the two hotels then at Tuscaloosa. For some time after the institution of the chapter its existence was kept secret; but soon the badge, with its cabalistic letters, was worn, exciting curiosity in the uninitiated, only to be baed of its gratification.

At first Ψ had no rivals, but in a year after its establishment, A Δ Φ planted a chapter at Alabama, and later Φ Γ Δ, Σ A E (parent chapter) and a local society were organized. Yet Ψ always prospered, although having no settled abode, meeting for a short time at the Indian Queen, then at Washington Hall, sometimes in the room of a member, at another in rooms over stores, or wherever accommodations could be secured, such as to baffle the eye of the curious — ever seeking to shroud everything pertaining to the chapter in deepest mystery; yet the members attended with punctilious regularity, and performed their duties, especially literary ones, with great zeal. The students, even the wealthiest (and there were many sons of very wealthy parents), lived in the college dormitories in unostentatious and republican style. The exercises of the chapter were purely literary. Essays and criticisms were presented by members officially designated for the purpose. When these performances were of more than ordinary merit they were ordered to be filed in the archives of the society. Occasionally a paper was ordered to be sent to Φ at Yale, and in exchange, documents of a similar character were received from other chapters.

The founders and early members were men who had their impress upon the affairs of the University, and who handed down their influence to their successors in the chapter. They were acknowledged to be men conspicuous for their industry, intellect, and social qualities. They bore a high character for scholarship, morality and integrity with their fellow-students, and with the faculty.

Ψ was one of the foremost chapters in urging the issues of the Δ K E magazine, and at the Washington Convention of 1855, put before the Fraternity its plans to that end. In planting Δ K E in the leading institutions of the South, Ψ did more than any other chapter, X, Δ, and B being among the fruits of her work.

About 1852 the faculty suggested to the fraternities the idea of voluntarily disbanding, and asked that the question be submitted to the chapters. Δ K E gave an emphatic negative. In the summer of 1856 the faculty adopted hostile legislation, and in the fall the members of Δ K E returned to find that they could not longer be permitted to have an open, honorable existence, and determined to return their charter; and in October of that year the chapter ceased actively to exist.

Ψ SINCE 1885.

From 1856 to 1885 is a far cry, but during all these years, while the spirit of Δ K E was not quenched, no chapter existed at the University of Alabama, there being a ban upon fraternities passed by the faculty. This prohibitory measure was repealed in the summer of 1885 and immediately the friends of old Ψ set to work to revive the chapter. This was not accomplished without difficulty, as may well be imagined. It was no trouble to gather together a number of excellent men who desired affiliation with Δ K E but it was some trouble to convince the Council that Alabama was worthy the honor of a Δ K E Chapter. The men bound together by this hope had a rather interesting period of doubts and fears and at one time the Council turned down the petition, but the convention of 1885 granted the charter and twenty-one candidates were inducted into the mysteries of Δ K E. Those receiving the charter were as follows:

The re-establishment of the chapter was largely the work of Dr. David L. Foster, Ψ, '53, and several other loyal brothers. President Burwell B. Lewis, Ψ, '57, gave the chapter his unqualified endorsement, though the attitude of the faculty toward fraternities made it unwise for him to take any active part in chapter affairs. The same was true of Prof. John C. Calhoun, H A, '68, who through many years was Ψ's best friend and counselor. Other important members of the faculty were Dr. William Stokes Wyman, Ψ, '51, professor of Latin, several times offered the presidency of the University and often acting in that capacity, though he would only accept the office for a year, and Col. John D. Weeden, Ψ, '58, a courtly gentleman of the old school, whose death occurred in 1908.

A list of the men of Ψ would be a catalogue of some of the brilliant men of the South in these later years. Among the many we may only mention Col. James Courtney Hixson, Henry Russell Shorter, Jr., Charles S. McDowell, John White Craig, Robert Emory Park, Jr., Thomas Atkins Street, Felix E. Blackburn, John Evans Henry, Norman Gunn, J. Fritz Thompson, Christopher C. Nesmith and Oliver Harlan Cross.

Ψ has suffered more or less all through its later history from poverty. In fact, rich men are scarce in Alabama even now, and twenty years ago they were scarcer still. The inability to build a chapter house has made it more difficult for the chapter to preserve its records and do its work than would otherwise have been the case. The exigencies of military discipline at the University also precluded chapter house life for a number of years and the chapter was forced to hold its meetings in different rooms of students and even though for considerable periods rooms were rented in the city of Tuscaloosa, there was lacking that spirit that comes from having a home of one's own. It has been unfortunate particularly in the matter of its records, its charter and other books having been destroyed several years ago.

A new charter was secured at the convention held in the fall of 1909, and the present active members are treasuring this with great pride.

In the autumn of 1907, however, the loyal fellows composing the active membership of Ψ decided that a chapter house was necessary and they rented one of the old colonial homes of Tuscaloosa, situated in the best residential district, not too far from college, and here they set up their household gods. It was an entirely new departure for the University and predictions of failure were common. But inspired by that zeal that ever characterizes the real Δ K E, these boys persevered and for two years they have lived in their "own hired house" and set an example that has been watched with pride by their own alumni and not without gratification by faculty and students of the University. Pioneers in the chapter house work, already several other fraternities have followed their example and have built and are building houses of their own. Δ K E has not yet sufficient funds to build a home, but is working towards this end and hopes to reach the desired goal within a year at most.

TOM GARNER, '88.

Perhaps more intimately connected with the history of Ψ chapter during the last twenty-five years than any other one man has been Thomas H. Garner, '88, editor of the Times-Gazette, of Tuscaloosa. Few men have rendered Ψ such loyal, unselfish and helpful services. Throughout the period of its early life, after its reorganization in '85, when an unsympathetic administration of the University, a severe military discipline and an inexperienced quota of men combined to make its progress difficult, Brother Garner, as an active member, displayed a splendid zeal and an intelligent leadership in its behalf, and contributed in a very large degree to its successful fight against untoward circumstances. Since that time, as a no less loyal and devoted alumnus, he has been the good counselor and ready friend of the students who have, from time to time, composed its active membership. He is an elder brother to the younger Dekes, and there is not one who has been a member of Ψ in recent years who does not entertain for Brother Garner the highest esteem and sincerest devotion.

UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI

Oxford, Miss.

CHARTERED APRIL 14, 1850. INACTIVE 1861-5.

ON the fourteenth of April, 1850, Φ, of Δ K E, then the head of the Fraternity, granted a charter to found X Chapter in the University of Mississippi, located in Oxford in that State, to: John Saunders McRaven, William Claudius Pegues, John Lewis Webb, William James Webb, Henry Johnson Holmes, Thomas Rodney Shields, Edwin Smith Walton, John Milles Wright.

This old parchment, faded and poorly written, is still the proud possession of the Chapter. It is written entirely by hand and bears the names of all the charter members, also the now unrecognizable great seal.

Of our charter members very little is known; six of them are dead, one is living in Texas, one in Arkansas and the other in Mississippi.

Δ K E was the first Greek letter fraternity to be installed in the University of Mississippi. Until the University was suspended by the outbreak of the Civil War, X enjoyed a most prosperous career, having in the first thirteen years of her existence initiated one hundred and twenty-five members.

At the suspension of the University the members of the Chapter, with very few exceptions, joined the Confederate Army. Of her War record X is justly proud. She gave one hundred men to the State in which she was born. True sons of Δ K E they must have been, as is evidenced by the number of officers in our number. There were four Colonels, eight Lieutenant Colonels, thirty-three Captains, eighteen First Lieutenants and twenty-nine Staff Officers.

The last meeting held before the five years of strife was on April 26, 1861, and the first meeting after that period on January 6, 1866. A blank page is all that separates the accounts of these two meetings in our records, witnessing how little effect this gigantic struggle, which for four long years held a continent in its throes, had on our little Chapter, though, as far as can be learned only three of those present at the former meeting attended the latter.

The first Chapter after the war must have been a picturesque one, having as its members eleven veterans of our Civil War. Sweet it must have been to these men, for the most part still young in years, after having endured the hardships of life in camp, to come together in the unity of Fraternal Love. Still sweeter must have been the reading of the letters from their Northern brothers which are so full of sympathy and solicitude. These letters have been preserved to us and it delights us even now to read them.

From the reorganization in 1866, till the present day, X has enjoyed a prosperity unequaled by any Fraternity in our College. The honor roll of X is indeed an enviable one. She has in the fifty-six years of her active life graduated with first honors twenty-five men, with many more who took second and third honors.

Scarcely a year has passed that some member of our Chapter has not taken some of the medals offered by the Literary Societies and the University. Since the introduction of athletics into our school the Dekes have always had their share of men on the football and baseball field. We have about four hundred and fifty male students in our University and our present competitors are: Δ Ψ, Φ Δ Θ, Σ A E, Σ X, Φ K Ψ, Δ T Δ, and K A (Southern).

That X has ever been a leader among the Fraternities is evidenced by the alumni in our State and especially so by the number of men that we have in the town of Oxford, having at the present time six active members who live in this town.

X does not pick her men from any one special class of students, but has always had men who came from all phases of college life. The two men who are in Oxford, England, now on the Rhodes Scholarships from Mississippi, are Dekes from X. Our present Chapter is composed of fifteen men.

UPSILON

BROWN UNIVERSITY

Providence, R. I.

CHARTERED JULY 25, 1850.

THE charter of Υ Chapter was issued July 25, 1850, to Edward Sumner Atwood, James E. Brown, George B. Parker, William Stevens Ferry, Frederick Bates, and Howard M. Jones.

The constitution of the Chapter was adopted in October, 1850, and revised in 1851. At first the meetings were held in the room of one of the members, on Dorrance Street, where the Narragansett Hotel now stands, and soon after rooms were secured at 21 South Main Street in Providence. Exact dates cannot be given, as the early records are missing. Probably they were lost in a fire which destroyed the rooms in 1899.

The original membership of the Chapter is notable for the men of strong character and ability who became distinguished in later life and the chapter has ever sought to maintain that type of character and ability as the standard of membership.

Among the first members of the Chapter were William Stevens Perry, who became the bishop of the Episcopal Church in Iowa; Edward Sumner Atwood, a prominent Congregational minister and writer for religious and other publications; Eaton W. Maxcy, a priest of the Episcopal Church, notable as a preacher and earnest worker; Albert G. Utley, a judge of the court of magistrates in Providence, R. I., now a prominent citizen of Arizona, and Edward H. Magill, a distinguished educator and president of Swarthmore College, 1871–1889.

Space does not permit a record of the distinguished men of the Chapter, which would include senators and representatives in Congress, governors and other civil officers, presidents and professors in colleges, clergymen, educators, judges and men distinguished in many lines. It has maintained its high character, both in the Fraternity and among fraternities.

In the spring of 1899, the fraternity rooms were burned and for four years it maintained its meetings in a schoolhouse on Benefit Street, then unoccupied. In 1903, the Chapter held its meetings in Caswell Hall on the campus of Brown University, but this not proving satisfactory it secured temporary rooms on North Main Street until 1907, when it bought a chapter house on College Street, where it is now very comfortably established. The average membership of the Chapter is twenty-eight, seven in each class. It has had but one honorary member, Gen. Ambrose E. Burnside, who was admitted while he was Governor of Rhode Island.

Within the last thirty years it has had eighteen class presidents and with the exception of the first year the Fraternity has had the presidency of the Brown Union to the present time. The Chapter has had a majority of captains and managers in the various athletic teams from their beginning. The records at hand do not show the commencement honors, but the standard of the Fraternity has been maintained throughout the history of the Chapter, for good scholarship and good fellowship. Ample evidence thereof appears in the Fraternity Song Book of 1900, where just one-quarter of the hundred songs were written by members of Υ.

HON. J. H. STINESS, '61.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA

Chapel Hill, N. C.

CHARTERED APRIL 5, 1851. INACTIVE 1861-87. REVIVED MARCH 19, 1887.

ON January 10, 1851, a memorial was presented to Φ of Δ K E, praying that a chapter be established at the University of North Carolina. The investigation that followed resulting favorably, a charter was given, and on April 5, 1851, B of Δ K E was launched out upon its honored career.

The University was at that time at the acme of its ante-bellum prosperity. Known and loved in all parts of the nation, she each year gathered under her classic oaks hundreds of youths from the most refined and cultured homes in our country. With a faculty famed for its integrity and personal magnetism she had grown to be the aristocratic university of the South. It was in such fertile ground that B of Δ K E was planted.

The new chapter, the first of its kind, naturally had the choice of the undergraduates and whether or not she exercised her opportunity wisely her record is her most convincing argument. Her example was such that before the year was over she had a rival and by 1860 she was one of eleven Greek letter fraternities, though she has never yet lost her prestige. For membership, social rank was considered first, but literary attainment and scholarship were also carefully noted and encouraged. At each meeting, held in the residence of John W. Carr, debates were held, and an orator, essayist and poet appointed. Members considered these appointments privileges and some interesting and eloquent discussions resulted. With such material and ideals the Chapter at once sprang into prominence in every phase of college activity. She took leading positions in the two rival literary societies, and of the sixty students who were editors of the University Magazine before the War, Δ K E furnished seventeen. It can easily be learned from very imperfect records that she was even more ably represented among the commencement officers and speakers. William Hall, of Wilmington, had the unprecedented honor of being "present and perfect" at all recitations during his four years at the University. The chapter became conspicuous in the Fraternity and was largely instrumental in the founding of chapters at Virginia and other southern institutions.

Distinguished as was her standing at college, the chapter record during the great War of Secession was, if possible, even more brilliant. Of the 118 initiates, 15 died before the War began, 10 are known not to have been in the War (2 being Union men, 2 physicians, disabled from service, and 2 restrained because of religious vows). Of 16 others, there are imperfect records, but 67 certainly — 87 probably — fought in the Confederate ranks. Fourteen are known to have been killed and one-third of the remainder severely wounded. Her members were noted for their bravery. B gave to the cause 1 Brigadier-General, 5 Colonels, 2 Lt. Colonels, 8 Majors, 21 Captains, 11 Lieutenants, 5 Surgeons, 2 Chaplains, and also several commissioned officers. The majority of these warriors were under twenty-five, and many even under twenty, years of age. Such is the war record of the old chapter of B of Δ K E, unsurpassed by any like tribute to the majesty of our grand old Fraternity.

In 1861, because of the sadly diminished attendance at the University, it was thought best to dissolve the chapter. At the close of the War this aristocratic old University fell into the hands of the "carpetbaggers" and the administration was taken away from the old faculty. The "reconstructed" University proved to be a complete failure and after a period of eight years in which her doors were closed she was placed again in the hands of her old friends. Although she had lost her former prestige, still from her wasted halls and decimated ranks she bravely met persistent opposition and rapidly regained her old position in the affections of the people of the State. Improvements were made and the campus reassumed its ante-bellum activity. As usual, politics absorbed the attention of the students. One band of very close friends, after a sweeping victory in one of the literary societies, decided to bind themselves into a fraternity and forming a temporary organization, became recognized candidates for Δ K E. In their purpose they were enthusiastically encouraged and recommended by the alumni of old B, who had long wished to see their chapter revived. This application was presented by Major Henry R. Shorter, '53; Hon. A. B. Irion, '55, and Dr. F. P. Venable, H, '74. The charter was granted by the Convention and on March 19, 1886, the new-old chapter was duly organized and given the name B A of Δ K E, as during the Reconstruction period a new B Chapter had been founded at Columbia. The old members were eager, however, for the old name to be given back. Delegates Venable and Shorter were sent to the Convention at Washington for this purpose and Columbia acceding, the old name was regained.

The work of the Fraternity was then taken up with a vim. Through the generosity of Harry Lake and other members a chapter house was built on the edge of the campus. In this neat little home the new B, inspired by the noble record of the old, and urged on by the progressive spirit of enthusiasm of its new members, became again one of the leading factors in college life.

Her sons are widely scattered, though loyal wherever they are; many of them have achieved distinction and all are useful citizens in their communities.

In the words of the editor of our Quarterly: "So long as the good old names mark the descent of the grand old blood, so long as the sons of the pluckiest, sturdiest soldiery that the gray ever clothed, gather in Memorial Hall, peopled with their father's renown and sacred to their father's memories, so long will Chapel Hill be a fit place at which to set up the Δ K E altar."

C. S. VENABLE, '10.
